REPEAL PLANK WINS, 934-213

BENNETT TELLS OF TUMULTUOUS REPEAL BATTLE

Platform Is Given Wild Reception.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Early evening of yesterday's second session of the Democratic national convention.

Tumult outside the Stadium. Thousands clamoring at the doors and trying to surge within. But police guards and doorkeepers hold them in leash, turning away hundreds whose claim to admission is dubious.

There have been abuses, ward heelers and party hangers-on having previously gained entrance on the strength of their cheek, which is brass. Responsible party managers have protested against this, with the result that doorkeepers are now more scrupulous.

Calm Within the Hall.

Inside the hall an interlude of quiet at 7 o'clock, when the convention was to have resumed business, but did not. A sort of vesper calm—this interlude, with the organist playing dreamy airs of sentiment and the setting sun casting long shafts of pensive light across the slowly filling seats.

After the afternoon exhibition the calm is a comfort to tired delegates.

But it lasts only three-quarters of an hour.

At a quarter to 8 the blare of music in honor of two men of the hour begins—"Maryland, My Maryland" for Ritchie and the inevitable "Sidewalks" for Al.

Chairman's Voice Drowned.

Chairman Walsh pounds for order. Fanfare of trumpets and roll of drums drown out his voice. The fanfare is a welcome to William Gibbs McAdoo, over whom the banner bearer of the California delegation waves the state's flag.

Ritchie comes down the aisle to visit with McAdoo. Their exchange of pleasantries is very cordial.

Rabbi Mann of Sinai temple, Chicago, accomplishes what Walsh could not. He secures order by making the evening prayer. He prays for leadership that shall guide men out of the wilderness of unemployment, for freedom of the press that still shall not degenerate into license but be sublimated into a sense of responsibility, and for freedom of speech that shall not lapse into mob action. He pleads for conduct worthy of the founders of the nation.

Walsh Quiets Crowd.

But no sooner has he finished than mob restlessness swirls in the aisles beneath him and Walsh's temper breaks. "Cannot gentlemen be gotten out of the aisles?" he shouts. "Of course I said gentlemen"—and he puts a withering emphasis on that word. The sarcasm is effective.

Amid decent quiet tall, courtly, distinguished looking Gilbert Hitchcock of Nebraska, chairman of the platform committee, takes the prow to read what he describes as "one of the shortest and certainly the most impressive platforms ever submitted to a national convention." Grateful cheers for his description.

Loud cheers when Hitchcock reaches the clause, "We oppose cancellation of debts owing the United States," and crashing cheers when he releases the words, "We advocate repeal of the 18th amendment."

Then jubilation by marching delegates, by bands, by pipe organ, by cowbells.

Cermak Starts Parade.

Mayor Cermak seizes the Illinois delegation's standard and starts the parade.

Standard after standard follows him—all of them except Delaware, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, and Virginia. But Texas is divided. Its standard stays fast, but some of the Texas delegates have joined the march under the banner lettered "Texas Loyals."

Thousands of spectators rise and cheer with the delegates. The Crusaders unfurl a banner reading "End Prohibition" and it becomes a rallying point for more marchers.

Fifteen minutes the demonstration lasts and nobody used to taking the pulse of mass demonstrations can deny that this one has been spontaneous.

Standards bearing portraits of Franklin Roosevelt are held aloft. Cheers for them, but cheers for a measure overwhelm cheers for a man.

Judge Henry Horner is intrusted with Illinois' standard by Cermak and the judge holds it high. Enthusiasts almost sweep him off his feet.

Rift in Texas Ranks.

Texas standpatters and Texas liberals are scuffling around their standard and tugging at it. But no blows are struck. The standpatters win.

Walsh demands orders—demands it

LANSING WORKERS HAVE PLAN TO AVOID PAY CUT

Lansing, Mich., June 29.—[Special.]—Lansing city employés, it was disclosed today, are proposing a unique plan to avoid a further reduction in salaries by offer to pool 20 per cent of their present pay, the fund of $250,000 thus created to be available to the municipality to offset delinquent taxes. The money would be eventually paid over to the city workers when normal conditions have been restored.

The present fiscal year started with a $600,000 tax delinquency, about $250,000 in excess of the normal figure. With the salary pool available, it is pointed out, the city will find it unnecessary to borrow and pay interest pending receipt of tax funds. Elective officials, unaffected by an earlier salary reduction, would be included under the new plan.

All California Employes on 5-Day Week Tomorrow

San Francisco, Cal., June 29.—(AP)—All California state employés will go on a 5 day week July 1. Gov. James Rolph Jr. said the step would bring an annual saving of $4,000,000. "No employé will lose his position," he added, "and none receiving less than $100 a month will be affected." The governor will voluntarily go on a 5 day week so far as salary is concerned.

George Norris, Long Dry, Sees Law Failure

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—News of the adoption by the Democratic platform committee of a dripping wet plank for submission to the approval of the convention was paralleled in Washington today by the defection of one of the senate's hitherto most ardent drys—Senator George W. Norris [radical Rep., Neb.].

Senator Norris declared himself for modification to permit beer and wine. For years a champion of the dry cause, he said he reluctantly had been forced to realize that "enforcement seems to be a failure."

Tried It Long Enough.

"I can't get away from the fact that prohibition hasn't been satisfactory," he said. "I am not sure but that we have tried it long enough. But I don't want to leave it wide open. It may be that modification of the Volstead act will be a necessary experiment that we will have to try. I think we can do it under the constitution.

"No matter how much I have believed in prohibition, I can't close my eyes to the fact that the country seems to be the other way and that enforcement seems to be a failure. I don't know that this will be any better. We will have to feel our way. I have been terribly disappointed in the way the law has worked out. I am not sure but what it is the best way out, and incidentally, it would bring in new revenue and that appeals to me now."

Much Other Comment.

There was much other comment by members of congress on the platform committee's action.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Ark.], Democratic vice presidential candidate in 1928, said he preferred the resubmission plank.

Speaker John N. Garner [Dem., Tex.], himself a candidate, declined to comment, but was understood to have told a friend, "That's very good."

Other comment by members of congress was as follows:

Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.], leader for the Republican wet plank—In the interest of the greatest possible forward step in economic relief, fiscal reform and temperance, I hope the Democratic convention will adopt the plank favoring ultimate repeal and immediate modification. I hope congress will remain in session so we may carry the proposal into action.

Senator Harry B. Hawes [Dem., Mo.]—Splendid.

Senator Royal S. Copeland [Dem., N. Y.]—It suits me.

Senator Edwin S. Broussard [Dem., La.]—I am glad the party has come around to my views on the question.

Senator John J. Blaine, [radical Rep., Wis.]—There is nothing uncertain about that plank, and pending repeal it is very desirable to legalize beer and wines.

Senator Duncan U. Fletcher [Dem., Fla.]—It appears to be a good solution of the problem.

Senator Arthur R. Robinson [Rep., Ind.]—You cannot modify the present law to permit wines and beer without nullifying the constitution.

Pianist Saves Wife of U. S. Disarm Envoy from Lake

GENEVA, June 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Robert Pell, wife of one of the American delegates to the disarmament conference, narrowly escaped death by drowning today in a lake opposite their villa at Celigny. Ernest Shilling, American pianist, who is their neighbor, rescued her.

Today's Program

Senator Walsh, the permanent chairman, will call the convention to order probably at noon today. The scheduled order of business follows:

ROOSEVELT HAS "NO COMMENT TO MAKE" ON REPEAL PLANK

Albany, N. Y., June 30 [Thursday].—(AP)—Informed of the Democratic convention's action in adopting for its platform repeal of the 18th amendment and modification of the Volstead act, Gov. F. D. Roosevelt early today said he had no comment to make.

In an interview recently the governor said he was confident the convention would clearly indicate the method by which repeal might be accomplished.

He has been an advocate of an amendment abrogating the 18th amendment and in 1930 outlined his views in a letter to Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York.

In 1930 he urged "elimination" of the "force and effect of the 18th amendment" by a new constitutional amendment.

In the recent interview he said he was confident that "in the next congress practical machinery will be put into actual effect."

DEMOCRATS VOTE OVERWHELMINGLY TO WIPE OUT PROHIBITION LAW

Roosevelt or Not? Balloting Will Start Today.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Whether Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York is to be the Democratic nominee for President or is to be thrust aside in favor of another, will be decided by the balloting scheduled to begin late today in the national convention which meets in the Stadium at noon.

With rivals councils of war at the Congress hotel headquarters early this morning, planning their strategy on the eve of the battle, each side was engaged in a furious drive to gain delegates and hold its own in line.

Doubt There'll Be Deadlock.

The indications are that with depression flattened pocketbooks counselling against a protracted stay of the delegates in Chicago, there will be no deadlock, such as the 103 ballots in the Madison Square Garden in 1924, or even the 50 ballots at San Francisco in 1920.

Probably not more than one or two ballots will be required to decide the fate of Roosevelt. Going into the contest with more delegates than all his rivals combined, Roosevelt may be nominated on the first ballot by a rush of bandwagon jumpers.

If, however, the efforts to "stop Roosevelt" prevail, his opponents will bring forward Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland and Newton D. Baker of Ohio as compromise offerings.

Bid for Baker or Cox.

To gain the 52 votes of Ohio for Roosevelt and to strengthen the ticket with a conservative running mate from a big pivotal state, the Roosevelt leaders are bidding for either Mr. Baker or James M. Cox, the 1920 nominee, for the candidate for Vice President. Other vice presidential possibilities under consideration in the Roosevelt camp are Gov. Ritchie, Speaker Jack Garner of Texas and Melvin A. Traylor of Illinois.

Although Al Smith and other anti-Roosevelt leaders were predicting, for public attention, the defeat of the New York governor, some of them were privately confessing their doubts that he can be stopped. Adverting to their lack of organization, one of them remarked that they appeared "to be beating Roosevelt the way the anti-Hoover Republicans beat Hoover at Kansas City."

Wet Plank a Factor.

Speculation was rife in all groups on the possible bearing on the nomination of the convention's adoption early this morning of a dripping wet prohibition repeal plank.

Roosevelt leaders said the plank is acceptable to the New York governor. In his telephone conversations with his representatives on the scene, he had stipulated that the word "repeal" should appear in the plank, but that, as to the remainder of the declaration, they were to use their own judgment. He thus refrained from committing himself on the question of unequivocally advocating repeal or only declaring for the submission of repeal.

Ritchie Advocate of Repeal.

Both Ritchie and Baker have long been advocates of repeal. Another pioneer advocate of repeal whose name will be balloted upon for nomination is Al Smith of New York. He and his friends feel that he more than any other deserves the nomination, now that his party has caught up with his views on the question. Now that the party has gone dripping wet an effort to stampede the convention into his renomination is within the range of possibilities.

Standing before a vast convention audience that went wild over his speech for the repeal plank, Smith last night made good humored reference to his premature candidacy on this issue in 1928.

"Because I happened to be four years ahead of my time," he said, "just look what happened to me."

Gallery Crowds for Al.

Had it been left to the multitude in the galleries they would have renominated him on the spot.

Michael Igoe of Illinois made a speech for the repeal plank which was in effect a subtle suggestion that Smith be renominated.

Some convention leaders expressed the view that the adoption of the dripping wet plank would redound to the benefit of Roosevelt in the nomination fight to the extent that it improves the chance of the party to carry the wet eastern states despite the coolness of this conservative re-

TEXT OF WET PLANK ENDORSED BY CONVENTION

Following is the text of the dripping wet plank which was approved at midnight by the Democratic convention and which today will go through as a part of the party's platform.

We advocate the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

To effect such repeal, we demand that the congress immediately propose a constitutional amendment to truly representative conventions in the states called to act solely on that proposal.

We urge the enactment of such measures by the several states as will actually promote temperance, effectively prevent the return of the saloon and bring the liquor traffic into the open under complete supervision and control by the states.

We demand that the federal government effectively exercise its power to enable the states to protect themselves against importation of intoxicating liquors in violation of their laws.

Pending repeal, we favor immediate modification of the Volstead act to legalize the manufacture and sale of beer and other beverages of such alcoholic content as is permissible under the constitution and to provide therefrom a proper and needed revenue.

In Nebraska one delegate was absent; one refused to vote. In Ohio one was absent.

The text of the Democratic platform as completed by the resolutions committee appears on page 4. The liquor plank is as adopted; other planks must still be voted on today. A summary of the comparative positions of the Democrats and Republicans as enunciated in their platforms appears on page 6.

Crowd Goes Wild Over Demands of Liberal Chiefs.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The Democratic party went wet last night. By a runaway vote of more than four to one the delegates voted down a dampish minority plank which proposed submission of repeal. The test was between that dampish declaration and the majority plank, which recommends outright repeal of the 18th amendment.

In burying the straddle plank the convention got all set to adopt today a platform with the dripping wet plank, which will make the party the open advocate of repeal of the 18th amendment and of immediate changes in the Volstead act to legalize nonintoxicating beer. It was a momentous night in the history of political conventions.

By Overwhelming Vote.

The delegates tossed the dampish plank out of the window by a vote of 213¾ to 934¾. With this overwhelming poll they defeated a motion to substitute the minority plank for the wringing wet declaration.

The roll call turned into a runaway. It finished as a rout, a stampede. It was the most astonishing thing to happen in a national convention since the civil war. It means the Democrats are now become the party of abolition of the "noble experiment."

A vote on final adoption of the platform was not taken. Two other minority reports on other matters, one from Gov. Alfalfa Bill Murray of Oklahoma, the other from William Gibbs McAdoo, are still to be voted on. After this the adoption of the platform with the dripping wet plank in it is next door to a certainty for the vote will be only a perfunctory affair.

The "Damps" Crumple.

As the surge of anti-prohibition sentiment registered itself, the moists and damps crumpled. The rollcall saw only eleven states casting majorities for the damp plank; the rest were rolling up a landslide vote to write an out and out anti-prohibition policy for the party, with a return of the liquor question to the states for control as ordained under the ancient rights stipulated in the constitution. Eleven states are two less than the thirteen required to keep prohibition in the constitution.

The handful of dampish states was composed of Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Georgia, Kansas, dry old Kansas which at that cast eight of its twenty votes against the moist plank; Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Dakota, West Virginia, and Virginia.

Roll Up Big Majorities.

Delegates from the rest of the land rolled up majorities in their states by which the Democratic party would become the active sponsor of anti-prohibition and anti-Volsteadism—not merely of resubmission.

Bone dry states of the west and midwest, agricultural as well as industrial, threw in their votes. The east, New England, and part of the south, including Texas with its 46 delegates, once as dry as the desert, but recently cracking wet in elections—all joined in the rout. The end saw party chieftains of liberal views hugging each other in an ecstasy, saying the night had heard the trumpets of doom for prohibition and the recrudescence of the Democrats as a party of the people

Stadium Is Jammed.

A mighty audience, filling the Stadium, witnessed the floor battle, and the great arena resounded with demonstrations. Great men in the party led the procession of the party to the side of anti-prohibition. Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, a candidate; Al Smith of New York, party nominee in 1928; Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, Senator Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio, home of the Anti-Saloon league, where league candidates were recently turned out into the blizzard, urged the party to take an open and unequivocal stand and reflect the sentiment of the country in its platform policy.

Michael L. Igoe of Illinois, William A. Comstock of Michigan, members of the group which started the revolt against the dampish party mandarins last week; E. H. Pollard of Iowa, traditionally dry, and others advocated the espousal of outright repeal by the Democrats.

Committee Showed the Way.

Meanwhile the straddling damps—the mere submissionists of repeal—stood bewildered. The landslide had given mutterings of its approach earlier in the day. The resolutions committee, by a two to one vote, 35 to 17, had thrown out the minority submission plank which had been put in by six merely moists on the subcommittee of platform writers and had adopted the Igoe-Walsh dripping wet plank to bring the party out as the foe of prohibition.

The revolt against domination of the party platforms by the drier elder statesmen had been started Saturday by a group in the resolutions committee. It had for nucleus an old dry area in the great lakes region, Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Illinois. Then came Senator Walsh of Massachusetts with a call for a conference. Twenty states signed up for an unequivocal stand against prohibition. Yesterday the swing had become so great that the wet plank was adopted by a two-thirds vote in the platform committee. It left the merely moists petrified with amazement.

Stand Is Historic.

Democratic chieftains hailed the news as betokening that the Democratic party now takes a stand on prohibition as historic as that of the Republican party against slavery, the issue which brought the G. O. P. into power.

The liberal leaders dwelt on the straddle of the Republicans on the great issue of the day. It appeared clear that the delegates themselves, who know what the people are talking about, would write the party policy on prohibition rather than the merely moist penmen from Washington. So the damps took to the woods. Of the six subgroup members who turned out the submission plank which was kicked out by the resolutions committee Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee was the only one to put up his head on the rostrum, and ex-Gov. Al Smith gave him hail and farewell.

Elders Duck the Landslide.

Others ducked the landslide—Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska, Wilson floor leader in the senate; William G. McAdoo, Wilson's secretary of the treasury and son-in-law; A. Mitchell Palmer, former attorney general, who penned most of the platform; Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, former secretary of the treasury, who had sponsored the submission plank, one and all ducked the debate. The discussion became one-sided and by the time the roll was called the moists were in utter collapse.

As a rather amusing instance of how fast and hard the delegates were running away from the old time dry statesmen, long soaked in the Washington atmosphere, Maury Hughes of Texas arose to speak, as scheduled, for the minority damp plan.

As an intended orator for the moists Hughes had a chunk of news for the wets which brought the house down in gales of laughter. He had just got the message from Garcia in time. He did a lightning change from damp to wet.

"I have just been informed," he said, "that the Texas delegation in caucus decided to support the majority wet report. I'm for the majority plank."

With this the damps simply folded up the old umbrella.

Acclaim for Al Smith.

Al Smith, who as nominee in 1928 launched the party fight against prohibition, was wildly acclaimed as he took the floor. He was hailed as the trail blazer and as opening the path to the party to become the great liberal party on prohibition. Senator Hull, for the straddlers, had said espousal of repeal should not be a party matter and remarked that the submission plank went as far as Smith did in 1928.

Smith brought down the house by pointing out that public sentiment has been turning anti-prohibition so rapidly, especially in recent months, that what was an advanced position a short time back is now far behind public thought.

Twenty minutes of applause and parading greeted Smith and his plea for the frankly wet plank. The ex-governor referred in his speech to the recent Republican national convention as an awful example of straddling and evasion.

Postmasters Ruled G. O. P.

"But the delegates were so wet," he said, "that the Republican convention would have adopted the Bingham submission of repeal plank if 400

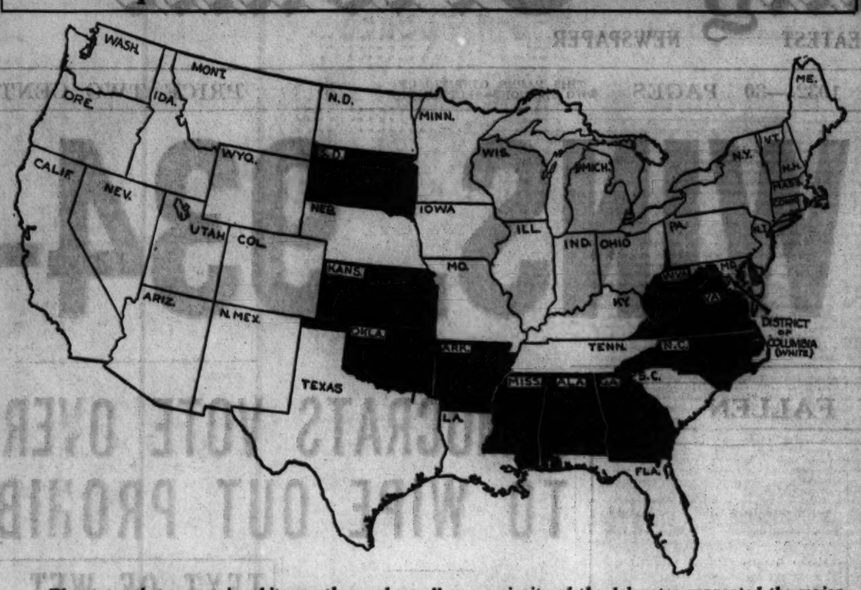
Map Shows How States Voted on Prohibition



The states that appear in white are those where all or a majority of the delegates supported the majority "dripping" wet plank in the platform. Those in black are the ones which voted in favor of the minority report, which did not commit the party to repeal, but only to submission of the question of repeal. The delegates from Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico, Canal Zone, Virgin islands, and Philippines, which do not appear on the map, all voted for the "dripping wet" plank. Only three states—Georgia, Mississippi, and Oklahoma—cast their entire vote against the dripping wet plank. Some of those in black were against the dripping wet plank by only a small margin.

federal officeholders had not prevented.

This reference to Washington and administration domination of the Republican convention was not lost on the delegates, apparently, for all day long the air had been charged with talk that the dry elder Democratic statesmen of Washington were seeking by the merely submission plank to keep the party from taking any stand that might offend the drys in the states of the south, which are now cracking wide open on popular votes.

Some of the liberal leaders themselves when informed of the action of the resolutions committee, among them John J. Raskob, expressed an opinion that the wet plank has perhaps gone too far. But when the delegations began to cast their votes and the tidal wave rolled up, the chieftains, outside of the minority who were against giving offense to southern drys, took the view that the great day had come.

Landslide Looms Early.

The roll call had hardly been going five minutes before the approaching landslide began to show. Arizona, dry before national prohibition, voted against the dampish minirity report. California, although Mr. McAdoo had voted merely damp in the resolutions committee and was backing the minority report, turned him down and voted three to one against the simply moist plank.

Colorado, a dry state, gave an almost solid block to the wets, followed by Connecticut, one of the two states which never ratified the eighteenth amendment.

Florida, a Hoovercrat state, which did not like Smith's wetness in 1928 despite Miami's leading industry, went almost solidly wet. Idaho, home of Borah, Republican pillar of the 18th amendment, a bone dry state, voted solidly wet.

Illinois, Indiana, Iowa.

Illinois, which two years ago had a Democratic landslide which elected Senator James Hamilton Lewis by 744,000 plurality on a dripping wet plank, gave its 58 votes to the wets. Indiana, old bone dry home of the Anti-Saloon league and the Ku Klux Klan, and Iowa, a dry state, both went solidly wet. Kansas, an old prohibition state, went two-fifths wet. Kentucky rolled up the wet vote. Louisiana, in the south, went wet, so did Maine, old time stronghold of prohibition decades before the 18th amendment.

Maryland and Massachusetts voted solidly to make the Democratic party the advocate of anti-prohibition. So did Michigan, which went dry before national prohibition, the "life for a pint" state. Minnesota, part of the dry belt, went wet; so did Missouri, and Montana, which kicked its state enforcement laws off the books. Nebraska, one of the dryest of the agricultural states, home of the late William J. Bryan, apostle of prohibition, voted wet, 9 to 5.

Others Fall in Line.

Industrial New Jersey, a wet state, and New York, as wet as they come, voted solidly wet. North Dakota, which has had prohibition since statehood, voted wet. South Dakota went dry, 4 to 6.

Ohio was another eye-opener. This state, home of the Anti-Saloon league, went almost solidly wet. So did Pennsylvania and South Carolina, one of the early prohibition states of the south.

Tennessee, a southern dry state, went wet three to one, while Texas, an old bone dry area, went solidly wet. So did Utah and Vermont and Wisconsin, which a few years ago repealed its state prohibition enforcement laws after a popular referendum.

DEBATE IN CONVENTION

The three hour debate in the convention on the real wet vs. the moist plank began at 9 p. m. Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts opened it. He said: "The issue is repeal of the 18th amendment or nullification."

"The 18th amendment is doomed," he continued. "I plead with the Democratic party," he added, "to meet the issue squarely, and if we favor repeal, say so, in terms that cannot be mistaken.

"The question of slavery, which rent the country three-fourths of a century ago, just as the question of prohibition is rending the country today, was a moral question.

"After years of straddle and compromise on the slavery question there came a day when that issue, as a political issue, had to be met, and when statesmen and parties had to declare themselves on the question. In my judgment, we are precisely at that point today on the prohibition issue."

Restores State Rights.

Walsh argued there was no merit in the contention that "naked repeal of the amendment would deluge the country with liquor without regulation or constraint, and bring back the open saloon."

"It will do nothing of the kind," he continued. "Simple and straightforward repeal of the 18th amendment, without reservation, automatically restores to the states their own untrammeled rights to deal with the liquor traffic as each state sees fit. That is as it should be."

On the proposal to modify the Volstead act, pending repeal, Walsh said: "We of the majority also believe that the Democratic party ought to offer to the country more than its pledge to repeal the 18th amendment. Our party ought to call upon congress for immediate liberalization of the Volstead act."

Senator Cordell Hull, a former chairman of the Democratic national committee, presented the minority report recommending submission of repeal only, by saying:

"I desire that there be no misunderstanding as to the fundamental difference presented by the majority and minority reports. Under their proposal adopted by this convention, only those who can subscribe earnestly and conscientiously as a matter of party doctrine to the proposal that the amendments be repealed can be classed as Democratic in full standing. They cannot otherwise be full fledged Democrats."

"The submission plank is wetter than any proposal which had been made in this convention up to the last sixty hours. It proposed that the prohibition issue is not to be made a mere partisan issue in this nation.

A Partisan Movement.

"I invite my adversaries to assign some good reason why this should be made a partisan movement, rather than to permit the people to come together and to make their decision as the constitution provides."

He argued that if prohibition was to be done away with," it should be done under the rules laid down by the constitution, and that the submission plank would do just that because it would permit a decision."

He read from a statement, saying: "We believe the people should have an immediate opportunity to determine" as the constitution provides whether the amendment should be repealed.

With one voice, many delegates asked who was being quoted.

"His name," said Hull, "was Woodrow Wilson." "A great cross-section of both parties is trying to divert attention from all other issues."

He quoted at length from Wilson in defense of his position, and then proceeded to quote Al Smith as well.

"The people should be permitted to say whether any amendment to the constitution should be voted up or voted down," was the statement he attributed to Smith.

Smith Answers Hull.

Former Gov. Smith began answering Senator Hull by saying:

"Of course the fact that the senator only found out in the last three days that there is sentiment in this country for repeal is just too bad. There is absolutely nothing that the convention can do about that except extend sympathy."

Referring to Hull's declaration that the party should not mix itself up in the question of constitutional amendment, he asked:

"What about the income tax? What about the popular election of senators? Didn't the party take a position on those amendments? Since when has it become any violation of party creed to declare emphatically in favor of the rights of the states?

"The senator quoted from my speech of acceptance. That was four years ago. Did the senator agree with me four years ago? He did not. And because I happened to be four years ahead of my time look what happened to me.

"Things have moved pretty rapidly in four years, and in that four years some of the chief complaints against the administration at Washington have pertained to that particular question.

"If there's anything the American people dislike its a dodger. The Republican candidate four years ago was in just that position. He wanted to be right with everybody. He described the amendment as a noble experiment.

"He indicated he was going to do something about it. He did do something. He appointed a commission which spent a half million dollars, and when he got the report he sent for the blotting paper and dried it up.

"In this hall, two weeks ago, the Republican convention met. I promised myself to listen to it on the radio, but the speech of the temporary chairman was all I could stand.

"I believe in giving that convention all the credit in the world for its good intentions, but it's an awful thing to have the boss call you up and have him say, 'No matter what you think about it; this is what I think.'

"I hope, in the interests of the party, in the interests of the country, in the interests of the taxpayers, that the report of the majority of the committee may be adopted by this convention."

He asked for an "honest, fair" definition of what constitutes an intoxicant "in place of the definition of the Anti-Saloon league, written into the constitution by Wayne B. Wheeler himself." He commended particularly that part of the plank which proposed amendment of the Volstead act, Illinois for Repeal.

Michael L. Igoe of Illinois plunged into a defense of the majorty plank. "My actions here tonight," he said, "are indicative of the feeling throughout the United States. Three different times the people of Illinois have declared themselves opposed to the 18th amendment and they are not alone.

"Four years ago the voice you have just heard was like a voice crying in the wilderness. Tonight that voice is answered by roars and cheers of delegates who acclaim him the great leader of this cause.

"So we of Illinois gladly respond to the call he has made tonight and all America acclaims him the leader in a great cause."

T. A. Walters of Caldwell, Idaho, taking up the minority case, said:

"The issue is not whether the 18th amendment is a failure or success as this question is not before the convention.

"We are spending much time on something that will not secure the approval of this country. While men outside this convention hall are begging for bread we waste our time in this convention talking about booze."

Viewpoint of Farmer.

From the viewpoint of the Iowa farmer, E. H. Pollard of Fort Madison urged the convention to adopt the plank calling for repeal and immediate change in the dry laws to supply an added market for grain.

"In addition to providing employment for the unemployed," he said, "the beer plank is the pledge of the Democratic party to furnish immediate relief to the farmer of the middle west by providing a much needed market for his grains.

"The majority plank is the pledge of the dry states of the Union [if any there be] to the rest of the states, given through the Democratic party, that they will be permitted to handle their liquor problems, as well as other local problems, according to the dictates of their own consciences."

Calls Repeal Political Issue.

Senator Bulkley of Ohio said:

"The 18th amendment must, can and will be repealed. Any person who does not think it is a political issue is badly mistaken. Politicians don't decide what the political issues are. The people do themselves."

He paid tribute to Senator Hull, but contended the Tennesseean "has argued solely on the score of expediency and precedent."

"What possible purpose did we have in proposing repeal of the 18th amendment?" he asked. "The only possible purpose is to get it repealed, and why not say so?"

Ritchie for State's Rights.

Basing his argument upon his familiar state rights theme, Gov. Ritchie appealed to the convention to support repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"Those states which want prohibitory legislation are entitled to have it," he said. "If this meets the circumstances or desires of any of the states, then such states should be free and undisturbed in their right to have the legislation they wish. More than that, effective federal measures should be established to protect such states against shipments from other states which would contravene their laws and the will of their people.

"But other states whose problems are different also should be free to enact laws within their own borders best suited to their conditions, laws which, in their experience, are best adapted to promote temperance, morality, and order among their own peoples.

"If national prohibition were repealed and state control substituted the federal revenues thus derived would give infinite relief to an overtaxed people. It would be entirely unnecessary to have many of the emergency taxes which now congress has imposed.

"So away with the 18th amendment and not only will the American people be relieved of these new taxes when they are taxed more than they can stand already but there will be employment for thousands and thousands of people now out of work, new markets will be opened for the farmer, and crime, the gangster and the racketeer will no longer be financed by the outlaw profits of an outlaw trade, to victimize and prey upon peaceloving and law-abiding citizens.

"Pending the repeal of the 18th amendment all these results would be promoted by such liberalization of the Volstead act as the 18th amendment permits, so as to allow the manufacture of light wines and beer."

Disagrees with Majority.

W. C. Fitts of Birmingham, Ala., closed the case for the minority. He disagreed with contentions as to the importance of the question, declaring: "The weightiest consideration in the minds of many men is to find the way to live, not to find the way to drink."

"The great objection to the 18th amendment has been that it is intolerant, that it seeks to put upon states that which they do not want. Now, this proposed majority plank would outdo the 18th amendment in intolerance, while by the minority report intolerance would be wiped out."

He said the opposition proposed to open "up the country to all kinds of indulgence in intoxicating liquors, with the result that they will never get the amendment repealed. They will have such abuses, such violations, that will turn public opinion against their own cause."

Others Join Debate.

Others who added their voices to the majority cause were William A. Comstock of Michigan; Robert H. Jackson of Florida; Philip Hornbein of Colorado; former Senator Peter G. Gerry of Rhode Island; Mrs. Catherine J. Sloane of Virginia; F. A. Desportes of South Carolina; Robert C. Jurchie of New Hampshire; Mayor T. S. Walmsley of New Orleans; Mrs. Jean Springstead Whittemore of Porto Rico, and Maury Hughes of Texas, who joined the majority cause after his delegation switched to repeal.

Two Other Minority Reports.

Besides the contest on the wet and moist planks, two other minority reports were submitted. Gov. Alfalfa Bill Murray put in his Oklahoma planks on bonus, currency and oil. Mr. McAdoo had a minority plank for changes n the federal reserve system. They will be debated further today.

MINORITY PLANK IS QUICKLY BEATEN IN STAMPEDE VOTE

Following is the text of the merely moist plank which was rejected by the resolutions committee, but submitted to the convention as a minority report, and there badly beaten:

We advocate that the congress immediately propose to truly representative conventions in the states, called to meet solely on the proposal, a repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

In the event of repeal we urge that the Democratic party cooperate in the enactment of such measures in the several states as will actually promote temperance, effectively prevent return of the saloon, and bring the liquor traffic under complete supervision and control by the states; and that the federal government effectively exercise its power to protect states against importation of intoxicating liquors in violation of their laws.

PLATFORM ASKS BILLION SAVING IN U. S. BUDGET

Party Demands Slash for First Time in 40 Years.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

For the first time in 40 years the platform of a Democratic national convention makes a definite and specific promise to cut the cost of government if that party is placed in charge of the nation. It was reported at the Congress hotel that Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt had a dominating influence in the plank pledging economy.

GOV. ROOSEVELT.

It pledges a sincere effort to save 25 per cent, which is approximately a billion dollars a year. A report has been circulated that Gov. Roosevelt has been studying federal governmental expenditures for some time, and has reached the private conclusion that 800 millions can be saved.

Ritchie Estimate Near Billion.

Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, another presidential candidate, has openly stated that he believes "more than 500 millions a year" could be saved easily, and it is understood that his private estimate is a trifle higher than Gov. Roosevelt's and closely approaches the billion dollar estimate of Bernard M. Baruch, chairman of the war industries board under President Wilson.

Former Senator James Reed of Missouri, another Democratic candidate for the presidency, enumerated possible federal savings totaling about 700 millions, and added others which he advocated.

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank of Chicago, another candidate, is a vigorous advocate of a big slash in governmental expenses.

First Plank in Platform.

Altogether there appears to be sincerity on the part of the candidates concerning the party's pledge on economy. Its importance is emphasized by the fact that economy is the first plank in the platform, which has not happened before in the last 40 years. In the platform of 1928 economy was the last thing the Democrats thought of. It was the last pledge in the platform.

This time the resolutions committee says that the party platform "is a covenant with the people to be faithfully kept by the party when entrusted with power," and that the "Democratic party solemnly promises by appropriate action to put into effect the principles, policies, and reforms herein advocated."

Text of Economy Plank.

Specifically, the economy plank says:

"We advocate an immediate and drastic reduction of governmental expenditures by abolishing useless commissions and offices, consolidating departments and bureaus, and eliminating extravagance, to accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of federal government; and we call upon the Democratic party in the states to make a zealous effort to achieve a proportionate result."

In one respect, this promise appears more definite than the economy plank adopted by the Republicans, while in another regard the Republican pledge seems to have the edge.

The Republican Plea.

The Republican plank on the subject of economy follows:

"Constructive plans for financial stabilization cannot be completely organized until our national, state, and municipal governments not only balance their budgets, but curtail their current expenses as well to a level which can be steadily and economically maintained for some years to come.

"We urge prompt and drastic reduction of public expenditure and resistance to every appropriation not demonstrably necessary to the performance of essential functions of government, national and local."

The Democrats "advocate immediate and drastic reduction," while the Republicans "urge prompt and drastic reduction." Between them to that point there is no difference. But the Democrats promise that the reduction will not be less than 25 per cent. The Republicans promise resistance to every appropriation which cannot be demonstrated to be necessary to the performance of essential functions of government. That may mean more or less than 25 per cent.

Would Mean Large Slash.

If the Democrats and Republicans make an honest effort to make good their individual party promises it is certain there will be an enormous slash in the cost of the federal government and the public will win whichever party succeeds in November.

But the pledges of the platform are no better than the men elected by each party. The record of each party shows a distinct tendency in normal times to spend all of the taxes it is deemed discreet to collect.

But both the Republican and Democratic platforms proclaim the severity of the present depression. The Democratic platform in its first line refers to the "unprecedented economic and social distress," but the preamble does not stress the enormous governmental expenditures as a cause for the distress.

But economy is the first plank in the Democratic platform, as it was in the Republican platform. Jeffersonians, in the second plank, advocate an "executive budget system" like the one operated in Maryland and advocated by Gov. Ritchie.

Indeed, the Democratic and Republican platforms are very similar in the order in which they present the planks, presumably in the order of importance.

A sound currency is the third plank in the Democratic set of resolutions. It is the second in the Republican platform. Tariff is the fourth subject treated by the Democrats, extension of federal credit to states is the fifth, unemployment and old age insurance is the sixth, and agriculture is the seventh. Protection of bank depositors is the third plank of the Republicans, a world conference on monetary matters is fourth, the subject of home loan banks is the fifth, and agriculture is the sixth.

Change Tariff Plank.

The Democratic declaration for economy was modified to some extent by the plank on tariff. Senator Hull of Tennessee—a Roosevelt leader—sponsored a plank pledging the party to "a competitive tariff for revenue only." This provoked considerable debate in the committee on resolutions.

The opposition desired the elimination of the phrase "for revenue only" and succeeded in getting the word "only" out. But the 1932 tariff plank is much more directly opposed to the Republican policy than was the 1928 declaration of the Democrats. Four years ago the Jeffersonians seemed to favor a tariff to protect or promote industry as well as bring in revenue.

Both parties recognize that a return to normal business conditions is the most important task of the government, judging by the position in which this subject is discussed in the platforms, and that a cut in governmental expenses is the first thing to be done.

A mere recital of the appropriations is conclusive evidence of the need for a curtailment of federal expenses. Following are the appropriations for a number of years before and since the war:

Year.	Appropriations.	Year.	Appropriations.
1912 ..	$ 634,459,600	1928 ..	$4,237,559,000
1913 ..	617,383,600	1929 ..	4,515,282,000
1914 ..	684,767,800	1930 ..	4,928,822,000
1915 ..	674,497,000	1931 ..	4,870,668,000
1916 ..	678,677,000	1932 ..	4,674,073,000

Only twice since the world war have the federal appropriations been under four billions a year.

In 1923 the appropriations were 3 billion 951 million dollars and in 1925 the amount was 3 billion 952 million.

MEMORY OF BRYAN HONORED BY 200 OF HIS FRIENDS AND KIN

Incidents in the life of William Jennings Bryan were recalled around a breakfast table yesterday in the Hotel Sherman where 200 former political associates, friends, and members of his family gathered to honor his memory. It was the first quadrennial Bryan breakfast and speakers expressed the hope that the event might go on "for at least 200 years."

The chief speaker was Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy, who described the convention of 1896.

"The convention had gone on for days without a thrill," Mr. Daniels related. "Distinguished men had tried to make themselves heard when suddenly a young man came to the platform looking like an Apollo. He delivered that great "cross of gold" speech, and the hall became like a holy place on a day of gross materialism."

Huston Thompson of Denver, former federal trade commissioner, brought the assembly to its feet with cheers when he predicted that Congresswoman Ruth Bryan Owen will be the next senator from Florida.

The members of Mr. Bryan's family who attended the breakfast included his daughter, Mrs. Owen; a son, William Jennings Bryan Jr. of Los Angeles; a daughter and grandson, Mrs. Grace Hargreave and Bryan Hargreave of Hollywood, Cal.; and a sister, Mrs. T. S. Allen of Lincoln, Neb.

CHICAGO ACTION BRINGS A REPEAL BILL INTO HOUSE

Democrats Challenged to Force Vote.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—Within an hour after word of the Democratic platform committee's stand for complete repeal reached Washington, legislation was before congress to wipe the eighteenth amendment out of the constitution.

REP. L. M. BLACK. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

As quickly, the Democratic leadership of the house was challenged from the Republican side to back up its party's stand by keeping congress in session to vote on a repeal resolution and abolition of the Volstead act without further delay.

Introduced by Black.

Representative Loring M. Black Jr. [Dem., N. Y.] introduced the repeal resolution. It called for state conventions to pass upon a resolution, merely saying:

"The eighteenth amendment to the constitution is hereby repealed."

Amid vigorous applause from both sides of the house, Representative John C. Schafer [Rep., Wis.] promptly demanded that the Democratic leaders bring up the repeal resolution and legislation wiping out the Volstead act under suspension of the rules.

"If you're sincere," boomed the lusty lunged Schafer, "you wet Democrats will stop talking now and give us real action."

Asks Joint Party Action.

Representative F. H. La Guardia [radical Rep., N. Y.] sent telegrams to John J. Raskob and Everett Sanders, respective chairmen of the Democratic and Republican national committees, urging both parties to unite in demanding that congress modify the Volstead act as a revenue measure before adjourning.

"Both parties are at last in accord that prohibition has been a failure," his messages said. Conceding that neither Democrats nor Republicans alone could pass immediate modification measures, he declared the two acting in concert could succeed speedily.

W-G-N SCORES RADIO SCOOP ON THE WET PLANK

Only Big Station on Air as Platform Is Read.

W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S radio station, achieved virtually a world scoop in broadcasting the Democratic convention proceedings between 7:30 and 9 o'clock last night, the period when the important majority and minority reports on the platform were being read to the delegates.

Because the two main broadcasting systems of the country, the National Broadcasting and the Columbia, claimed they would lose $50,000 an hour in advertising program between 7 and 9 o'clock they decided not to broadcast the convention proceedings during those hours.

W-G-N, however, although it had to bar important programs from its broadcast, thus also losing a substantial revenue, was on the air from the Stadium during the whole night session.

Only Major Station on Air.

One or two low powered stations in the Chicago area were also on the air during the period between 7:30 and 9 o'clock, but W-G-N was the only major station through which the radio listeners of the United States could obtain information of the convention proceedings in that period.

W-G-N listeners in that period heard the great demonstration staged by the delegates when Chairman Gilbert M. Hitchcock of the platform committee read the wet plank, beginning with the words: "We advocate the repeal of the eighteenth amendment." A description of the parading and shouting delegates was broadcast over W-G-N by Quin Ryan.

Protest Second Reading.

Shortly before 9 o'clock when the reading of the platform and minority reports had been concluded, Chairman Walsh stepped before the microphones and announced to the delegates that the chain broadcasting systems desired a rereading of the platform because they had not been broadcasting at the time it was first read.

A mighty chorus of protest came from the delegates. Then the broadcasting systems announced that they would broadcast the platform by a station announcer.

While the broadcasting systems were doing this they missed the convention proceedings for another half hour.

More than 200 telegrams were received by W-G-N in half an hour after the broadcast of the platform reading congratulating THE TRIBUNE upon its scoop of the air. Among them was a message of congratulation from Mrs. Evelyn Hollingshead of Marion, O., president of the Marion County Women's Democratic association.

DRIPPING WETS WIN, 35 TO 17, IN COMMITTEE

Moderates Voted Down in Preliminary Fight.

The work of the platform committee of the Democratic convention, extending through long hours, night and day, was completed at 5 p. m. yesterday, and the platform, as adopted, was ready for the convention when it met at 7 p. m. So was the minority report on prohibition, and so were Alfalfa Bill Murray's planks and a brief amendment by William G. McAdoo.

As presented to the convention the platform consisted of about 1,350 words. It was concise in its definition of party principles and is regarded as the shortest platform ever produced by the Democratic party. A. Mitchell Palmer, who had a great part in its drafting, said that so far as he had been able to find out it was the briefest party declaration ever made.

"We are sending it to the country upon the one hundredth anniversary of the Democratic party with every confidence that despite the disputes on the 18th amendment the treatment of the economic questions will be received with satisfaction by the public," he said.

Mere Damps Overwhelmed.

The overwhelming 35 to 17 vote by which the committee adopted the dripping wet plank was a surprise even to the anti-prohibition leaders.

The moderate damps, led by Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee, were literally petrified at the surge of the anti-prohibition wave.

Only sixteen states and the District of Columbia voted in the resolutions committee against the wringing wet plank. Nine of them were in the south, and of these five were Hoovercrat in 1928. Seven were in the west—California, whose wines have flourished under the name of "grape concentrates" under prohibition; Idaho, home of Borah, Republican pillar of the eighteenth amendment; Kansas, constitutionally dry but actually wet as the rest of the world; South Dakota, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming.

Dry States Turn Wet.

The two to one dripping wet vote in the committee came from all sections of the country.

It included great bone dry areas in the middle west, where in years past the Anti-Saloon league has dominated politics on the prohibition issue.

The wet plank movement was given its real start last week by midwest states, Michigan, the "life for a pint" state; Indiana, bone dry, where whisky is illegal even as medicine prescribed by a physician; Illinois, which two years ago rolled up a Democratic landslide which elected Senator James Hamilton Lewis on a sopping wet plank by 744,000 plurality; Wisconsin, which kicked its state enforcement act out of the window a few years ago.

Revolt Started Last Week.

These four states and Oregon began to stir up a revolt last Saturday in favor of the principles in a plank submitted by Michael L. Igoe of Illinois. It embodied the Illinois state plank. Sunday saw the dripping wet uprising against the merely damps growing. As the easterners came in Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts began conferences and by Tuesday night members of the resolutions committee from 24 states had signed up for the Walsh-Igoe plank.

It became a tidal wave when the resolutions committee finally got down to the prohibition question yesterday afternoon and the wets won overwhelmingly.

Texas Begins to Crack.

Texas, once dry as the desert, but recently cracked wet in its primaries, voted against the merely damp submission plank—and it passed its vote in the committee when the Walsh-Igoe sopping wet plank was adopted. That accounts for the difference of one vote in the two roll calls.

"The action of the committee," said Committeeman Igoe, "demonstrates that the party is keeping close to the people by adopting a policy which conforms to the popular will."

"This means victory in November," said Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, who was chosen spokesman for the wets. "The Democratic party shows it is unequivocally responsive to the public will which has shown itself to be against prohibition."

In the committee there was no debate on the liquor plank. None was needed. The committee had spent days arguing among themselves and with their delegations over the degree of wetness to be given the plank. Senator Walsh [Mass.] asked that the liquor question be deferred to the last and then voted upon without discussion under the rules of the United States senate.

Split Candidates' Camps.

The battle between the wets and moists was not on Roosevelt and anti-Roosevelt lines. Senator Hull of Tennessee, a Roosevelt spokesman; Senator Glass of Virginia, former secretary of the treasury, a supporter of Byrd; William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, a supporter of "Cactus Jack" Garner and A. Mitchell Palmer, former attorney general, a Roosevelt man, led the damp members who supported the moist submission plank which the subcommittee of nine platform framers sent in, only to have it bowled down.

The out and out repealists were led by Senator Walsh, a Smith follower; Senator Wheeler of Montana, a Roosevelt man; William A. Comstock of Michigan, a Roosevelt man; Mr. Igoe of Illinois, and E. Brooke Lee of Maryland, a Ritchie supporter.

Gov. Alfalfa Bill Murray of Oklahoma, a Hoovercrat state in 1928, voted for the dampish plank.

Indiana Democrats Wet.

Indiana, old bone dry Indiana, was given credit for the momentum it gave the repealist movement. A few weeks ago the Indiana Republicans came from under the thumb of the Anti-Saloon league by adopting a plank for submission of repeal.

The Democrats of Indiana last week adopted a state plank for submission of repeal which was the image of the Bingham plank which the Republicans in Chicago had tossed out. This added momentum to the wet drive among the Democratic national delegates as they arrived, and yesterday saw the Indiana member of the resolutions committee traveling for the "all the way" Walsh-Igoe plank.

The great argument of the wets was that America is wet in sentiment.

With the Republicans on a straddle, a real wet plank if adopted by the Democrats, they argued, would make it a definite, clear cut issue between the two parties. As to the still dry [politically] south, normally Democratic, they argued, these states are wet in sentiment, although the political bosses do not learn it until thumped in primaries and elections.

Senator Hull of Tennessee, a Roosevelt man, who later pleaded the cause of the straddle plank before the night session of the convention, said in the afternoon that the repeal plank might wreck the party.

"This is a culmination of four years of use of the Democratic national organization," he said, "with affiliated organizations, equipped with vast moneys to quietly hand pick many delegations and pack the Democratic national convention with sole reference to the anti-prohibition movement.

"No serious thought about the Democratic party and vital panic and other public questions is permitted. The purpose is take over bodily the Democratic party and use it as a pack horse or agency solely to advance the cause of repeal of the 18th amendment."

TEXT OF DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM SUBMITTED TO CONVENTION

Following is the text of the draft of the Democratic platform submitted to the national convention by the resolutions committee last night. It is expected to be adopted today.

INTRODUCTION

In this time of unprecedented economic and social distress the Democratic party declares its conviction that the chief causes of this condition were the disastrous policies pursued by our government since the world war, of economic isolation; fostering the merger of competitive businesses into monopolies, and encouraging the indefensible expansion and contraction of credit for private profit at the expense of the public.

Those who were responsible for these policies have abandoned the ideals on which the war was won and thrown away the fruits of victory, thus rejecting the greatest opportunity in history to bring peace, prosperity and happiness to our people and to the world.

Foreign Trade Ruined.

They have ruined our foreign trade, destroyed the values of our commodities and products, crippled our banking system, robbed millions of our people of their life savings and thrown millions more out of work, produced widespread poverty and brought the government to a state of financial distress unprecedented in time of peace.

The only hope for improving present conditions, restoring employment, affording permanent relief to the people, and bringing the nation back to its former proud position of domestic happiness and of financial, industrial, agricultural and commercial leadership in the world lies in a drastic change in economic and governmental policies.

Believing that a party platform is a covenant with the people to be faithfully kept by the party when intrusted with power, and that the people are entitled to know in plain words the terms of the contract to which they are asked to subscribe, we hereby declare this to be the platform of the Democratic party:

THE PLATFORM

The Democratic party solemnly promises by appropriate action to put into effect the principles, policies and reforms herein advocated, and to eradicate the policies, methods and practices herein condemned.

WE ADVOCATE:

ONE—An immediate and drastic reduction of governmental expenditures by abolishing useless commissions and offices, consolidating departments and bureaus, and eliminating extravagance, to accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of federal government; and we call upon the Democratic party in the states to make a zealous effort to achieve a proportionate result.

TWO—Maintenance of the national credit by a federal budget annually balanced on the basis of accurate executive estimates within revenues, raised by a system of taxation levied on the principle of ability to pay.

THREE—A sound currency to be preserved at all hazards; and an international monetary conference called on the invitation of our government to consider the rehabilitation of silver and related questions.

FOUR—A competitive tariff for revenue, with a fact finding tariff commission free from executive interference; reciprocal tariff agreements with other nations, and an international economic conference designed to restore international trade and facilitate exchange.

FIVE—Extension of federal credit to the states to provide unemployment relief wherever the diminishing resources of the states make it impossible for them to provide for the needy; expansion of the federal program of necessary and useful construction effected with a public interest, such as flood control and waterways, including the St. Lawrence-great lakes deep waterways; the spread of employment by a substantial reduction in the hours of labor, the encouragement of the shorter week by applying that principle in government service; advance planning of public works.

SIX—Unemployment and old age insurance, under state laws.

SEVEN—For the restoration of agriculture, the nation's basic industry; better financing of farm mortgages through reorganized farm bank agencies at low rates of interest, on an amortization plan, giving preference to credits for the redemption of farms and homes sold under foreclosure; extension and development of the farm cooperative movement, and effective control of crop surpluses so that our farmers may have the full benefit of the domestic market; enactment of every constitutional measure that will aid the farmer to receive for basic farm commodities prices in excess of cost of production.

EIGHT—A navy and an army adequate for national defense, based on a survey of all facts affecting the existing establishments, that the people in time of peace may not be burdened by an expenditure fast approaching a billion dollars annually.

NINE—Strict and impartial enforcement of the anti-trust laws to prevent monopoly and unfair trade practices, and revision thereof for the better protection of labor and the small producer and distributor; conservation, development and use of the nation's water power in the public interest; the removal of government from all fields of private enterprise, except where necessary to develop public works and natural resources in the common interest.

TEN—Protection of the investing public by requiring to be filed with the government and carried in advertisements of all offerings of foreign and domestic stocks and bonds true information as to bonuses, commissions, principal invested and interests of sellers.

Regulation to the full extent of federal power of [a] Holding companies which sell securities in interstate commerce.

[b] Rates of utility companies operating across state lines.

[c] Exchanges trading in securities and commodities.

ELEVEN—Quicker methods of realising on assets for the relief of depositors of suspended banks and a more rigid supervision of national banks for the protection of depositors and the prevention of the use of their moneys in speculation to the detriment of local credits.

The severance of affiliated securities companies and the divorce of the investment banking business from commercial banks; and further restriction of federal reserve banks in permitting the use of federal reserve facilities for speculative purposes.

TWELVE—The full measure of justice and generosity for all war veterans who have suffered disability or disease caused by or resulting from actual service in time of war, and for their dependents.

THIRTEEN—A firm foreign policy including: Peace with all the world and the settlement of international disputes by arbitration; no interference in the internal affairs of other nations; the sanctity of treaties, and the maintenance of good faith and of good will in financial obligations; adherence to the world court with the pending reservations; the pact of Paris abolishing war as an instrument of national policy, to be made effective by provisions for consultation and conference in cases of threatened violation of treaties; international agreement for reduction of armaments; and cooperation with nations of the western hemisphere to maintain the spirit of the Monroe Doctrine. We oppose cancellation of the debts owing to the United States by foreign nations.

FOURTEEN—Independence for the Philippines; ultimate statehood for Porto Rico; the employment of American citizens in the operation of the Panama canal, and home rule for Hawaii.

FIFTEEN—Simplification of legal procedure and reorganization of the judicial system to make the attainment of justice speedy, certain, and at less cost.

SIXTEEN—Continuous publicity of political contributions and expenditures, strengthening of the corrupt practices act, and severe penalties for misappropriation of campaign funds.

SEVENTEEN—We advocate the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. To effect such repeal we demand that the congress immediately propose a constitutional amendment to truly representative conventions in the states called to act solely on that proposal.

We urge the enactment of such measures by the several states as will actually promote temperance, effectively prevent the return of the saloon and bring the liquor traffic into the open under complete supervision and control by the states.

We demand that the federal government effectively exercise its power to enable the states to protect themselves against importation of intoxicating liquors in violation of their laws.

Pending repeal, we favor immediate modification of the Volstead act to legalise the manufacture and sale of beer and other beverages of such alcoholic content as is permissible under the constitution and to provide therefrom a proper and needed revenue.

WE CONDEMN:

ONE—The improper and excessive use of money in political activities.

TWO—Paid lobbies of special interests to influence members of congress and other public servants by personal contact.

THREE—Action and utterances of high public officials designed to influence stock exchange prices.

FOUR—The open and covert resistance of administrative officials to every effort made by congressional committees to curtail the extravagant expenditures of the government and to revoke improvident subsidies granted to favored interests.

FIVE—The extravagance of the farm board, its disastrous action which made the government a speculator in farm products, and the unsound policy of restricting agricultural production to the demands of domestic markets.

SIX—The usurpation of power by the state department in assuming to pass upon foreign securities offered by international bankers, as a result of which billions of dollars in questionable bonds have been sold to the public upon the implied approval of the federal government.

SEVEN—The Hawley-Smoot tariff law, the prohibitive rates of which have resulted in retaliatory action by more than 40 countries, created international economic hostilities, destroyed international trade, driven our factories into foreign countries, robbed the American farmer of his foreign markets and increased his cost of production.

CONCLUSION

To accomplish these purposes and to recover economic liberty we pledge the nominees of this convention and the best efforts of a great party whose founder announced the doctrine which guides us now, in the hour of our country's need, "Equal rights to all, special privileges to none."

DELEGATE REA, TEXAS VETERAN, ASSAILS DRY LAW

Delegate W. L. Rea of Refugio county, Texas, who's voted the Democratic ticket straight for forty-eight years and who has held public office continually since he was 21 years old, was brought up in the borderland country when men packed a gun on their hip—but ladies were ladies.

W. L. REA.

"Things were pretty wild down in my part of the country when I was a young man," he said. "But let me tell you, you never saw a woman enter a saloon and you never saw a young girl take a drink. Conditions today are worse in my neighborhood than they were in saloon days. Not that I want saloons back. But they're preferable to prohibition.

Want End of Dry Law.

"Why, the way pretty young girls drink these days makes a fellow sick. I was a prohibitionist, and my neighbors were, but the folks in my district now want to do away with prohibition as fast as they can. Personally I'm dry and always was, but I see now that prohibition was just a noble gesture."

Even when he was a young man, the 70 year old delegate said, and toted a "45" with the rest of them, he was a testotaler.

Mr. Rea is county attorney of Refugio county. He has forgotten how long he's been county attorney, but at least six or seven years, he said, pulling on a suspender in an effort at recollecton.

"As county attorney I have to prosecute persons for violations of the Dean law, a state law which carries a 1 to 5 year sentence for manufacture, sale, or possession of alcoholic beverages," he said, smiling, his blue eyes twinkling. "No matter how vigorous the prosecution, the juries won't find 'em guilty."

Cast Vote for Cleveland.

The lean Texan figure of "Judge" Rea, as he has been called ever since he became a county judge in 1900, which post he held 12 years, has become a familiar one at state conventions. He has attended 10 state conventions, he said. His first vote in a presidential contest was cast for Grover Cleveland in 1884.

Born in Refugio county, a gulf county which raises cotton, "Judge" Rea became county treasurer at the age of 21. Between then and 1900 he served as deputy sheriff, deputy tax assessor, and deputy tax collector. In Wilson's administration he became postmaster, serving for seven years. He lives two miles from Refugio, where he "raises cattle and a little gas and oil," he said. The town is in the heart of an oil district now. He has a wife and seven children.

"This year I'm for Roosevelt, next to Mr. Garner. If Mr. Garner withdraws I will vote for Roosevelt, because I think he is the friend of the ordinary man, and a true Democrat," he said.

WOMAN SIGNER OF REPEAL PLANK THRILLS CROWD

Mrs. Wittemore Tells Her Stand to Convention.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

(Picture on back page.)

A comely young woman in pretty pink, with a tousled black bob, stepped to the front of the convention platform last night, and we mused, enviously and indulgently,

"Gosh, that's a good looking girl."

Then Mrs. Jean Springstead Whittemore, schoolmarm delegate from Porto Rico, only woman member of the powerful resolutions committee, began to speak. Slowly, solemnly, she pictured the scene in that committee room when the majority report favoring the repeal of the 18th amendment had been passed around, and she had picked up a pen and signed her name to the document.

Woman Voting for Repeal.

At the moment, she recalled, the man sitting next her had whispered to her:

"Just think. A woman is voting for repeal."

In her voice, as she sent it clearly out into the big auditorium, we could feel the very bewilderment of the man. We forgot that she was pretty; remembered only that she was in dead, deep earnest. The switch, it seems to me, was really a fine compliment.

Sensitive, surely, to the fact that the man at her elbow in that committee room had hundreds of brothers in the Stadium, thousands in the land, wondering why a woman would sign the report, she told them.

Says Times Have Changed.

"That vote was contrary to my early training."

A pause of recollection; then, briskly, argumentatively:

"But times have changed."

A crisp sentence or two about the beginnings of prohibition, then, with vigor, the school teacher shook her hair about, leaned forward and declared:

"We have now learned that we cannot sit idly back with our arms folded and leave this whole terrible problem to the federal government. Something must be done. We must face the question squarely.

"Common honesty demands that our great nation take honest, and honorable action. This majority report is the way to do it. I thank you."

She turned away from the platform and the crowd clapped. No polite patter in honor of her black eyes; no frenzy of exultation that greeted some of the men. But just brief, direct applause for her brief, direct words. I should think that would have been a satisfaction to her.

Mrs. Sloane Speaks.

Presently another woman, Mrs. Catharine J. Sloane of Virginia, member of the Women's Organizaiton for National Prohibition Reform, urged the delegates of the convention to work actively for direct repeal.

This anti-prohibition organization, headed by Mrs. Charles Sabin of New York, has been doing a lot of active work among the delegates at this convention. Its representatives are working on state delegates to influence the choice of a presidential candidate who shall be for out and out repeal.

Publicly the women wets declare they are against any organization fight for a nominee. But if they're silent on the man they were vocal last night on the majority plank.

"I am very pleased with it," said Mrs. Sabin. I understand she gets all bothered when newspapers comment on the fact that she has a lot of different and exceptionally effective costumes. So I'll not tell you what she wore, but what she said.

"The majority report incorporates everything that our organization has ever asked for—straight repeal of the 18th amendment, submission through conventions, state laws to promote temperance and abolish saloons, strengthening of the interstate commerce laws to protect the borders of those states which will remain dry."

Sees Cheer for People.

Then, with a shake of her curls [and I'll not even tell you that they are blonde] she added:

"The news from this convention tonight will do more to hearten the people of this country than anything in many a moon. Note, too, that there are a great many more women delegates to this convention than to the Republicans; and yet the repeal plank won."

What about the organization working, as a unit, for the Democratic candidate who will, perforce, be campaigning on a dripping wet platform? It is too early, she explained, for the organization to know what it's going to do, officially, about that. The big decision is to be made a week from today when the executive board holds its meeting.

But Mrs. Sabin did point out that every member of the organization [8,000 new ones joined between the G. O. P. and this convention], have "joined for but one reason, to get repeal; they have all signed cards pledging themselves to work specifically for that."

Those signatures, she intimated, make men readjust their old theories, just as much as Mrs. Whittemore's signature on the majority report made that masculine neighbor on the committee, readjust his theories.

Mrs. Fairbank Speaks.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, prominent Chicago Democratic member of the W. O. N. P. R., proclaimed the majority report a "welcome document of clear thinking, clean dealing," as contrasted with the Republican plank.

Mrs. Anna O'Hagen Shinn of New York, who took the organization's plea to the resolutions committee earlier in the week, felt that love's labor had not been lost. Accordingly, she rejoiced.

Emily Smith Werner, Al Smith's daughter, cheered her father's speech for the plank.

"I'd love to campaign for him this year," she said, or was it an argument she was making? "He's exactly right when he says he was four years ahead of the time. It'd be different this time."

LAUNDRY CASHIER ROBBED.

Two bandits yesterday held up Miss Claire Hoy, cashier in the Happy Day laundry, 2605 Armitage avenue, and took $50 from her.

KEEP YOUR OWN TALLY

This radio tally sheet enables you to follow the voting more closely than if you were in the convention. When you have used the spaces for the first two or three ballots cut out the list of states and the candidates' names and place them at the left and top of a clean sheet of paper and you will have a fresh tally sheet.

You may also use the tally sheet for tabulation of vote on motions. Call the first column "aye" and the second "no."

ARIZONA WOMAN HOLDS PLACE IN LIMELIGHT TODAY

Mrs. Greenway to Second and Be Seconded.

To second the nomination for the top of the ticket, and to be seconded for nomination as his running mate all at one major party convention would send most women right up in the air, figuratively. Fortunately the one slated for both these honors out at the Stadium is a licensed pilot, literally, whose equilibrium isn't at all upset by such a dizzy ascent. She's Mrs. John C. Greenway of Arizona, of whom a distinguished Englishman once reported to his compatriots, "In Arizona they have the Grand Canyon —and Mrs. Greenway."

It is the same Mrs. Greenway of whom Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, a long time friend on the opposite side of the political fence, said at this same convention, "Isabella is one of my few enthusiasms." It is the same Isabella who was a bridesmaid when Gov. Franklin Roosevelt, whose candidacy she will indorse, married Miss Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, whose school chum she had been. It is the same Isabella Greenway of whom it is whispered that she is slated to be the next occupant of the gubernatorial mansion in Arizona.

Nomination Just a Gesture.

This report takes for granted, just as Mrs. Greenway does, that the most popular woman in the Grand Canyon state [who never has run for an office and whose venerable uncle yesterday declared he hoped she never will] is being nominated for Vice President "just as a gesture." Until four years ago, when she was made a national committeewoman practically without warning, she never had been active in politics. She dismisses the possibility of any one taking her nomination seriously with the phrase, "my purely honorary candidacy."

"I think," she says in reply to the query as to how she regards the move, "that it is a gracious tribute from the state of Arizona. A tribute to my husband. Arizona idolizes him."

Husband Noted at Yale.

The late Gen. John C. Greenway, her husband, was one of the most famous of Yale's alumni. A spectacular athlete at college, especially on the football field, he later joined Roosevelt's Rough Riders during Spanish American war days, and when the world war broke out, saw service in France that won him the distinguished service medal.

James Selmes Greenway, youngest of her three children, is seeing his second Democratic convention, at the age of seven. Regarding himself as his mother's escort and at least temporary head of the family, he addresses his tall, brown haired, brown eyed, brown garbed mother in adult fashion, as Isabella.

"Isabella," he demands in the flurry of getting off to the Stadium, "where is the waistcoat to this suit?"

Known as Cattle Raiser.

As a homestead and cattle raiser, Mrs. Greenway is known throughout New Mexico and Arizona. She maintains a home also in Santa Barbara, Cal., where her children were educated. Born in Kentucky and reared partly in Minnesota at her grandfather's home, she is of the north and south and east and west of the country, her colleagues claim, "the most colorful woman in the United States."

"Women," she says in her quiet way, "when they take responsibility as they are definitely taking it, especially in the Democratic party, provide the brightest hope for the future and cannot but reap a harvest for the general good. Such a nomination as mine for the vice presidency is a gesture with prophecy for the future—for women."

Edison's Son a Democrat Because of Dry Law Stand

Denver, Colo., June 29.—(AP)—Charles Edison, son of the late Thomas A. Edison, said today a change in the present prohibitory laws is imperative and that he will vote for any Democrat who is nominated for the presidency.

"I'm looking forward to a change in the liquor laws because I believe such a move will aid greatly in bringing about recovery in economic conditions," he said.

Edison is making an economic inspection tour of the United States.

MICHIGAN HAPPY OVER VICTORY ON REPEAL ISSUE

Michigan delegates to the Democratic national convention were jubilant last night over a victory which they ascribe largely to the efforts of William A. Comstock, Michigan's member of the resolutions committee.

The committee, by a vote of 35 to 17, adopted a dripping wet plank sponsored by Comstock and several other members of the committee and rejected a "damp" plank offered by the Roosevelt steam roller engineers. Comstock is regarded as the man who will lead the state ticket in Michigan for governor. Many of the delegates from Michigan had stated openly that if a truly wet plank on prohibition was not adopted by the committee and by the convention they would bolt from their pledge to support Roosevelt for President.

PLANE READY TO BRING ROOSEVELT TO CONVENTION

Albany, N. Y., June 29.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt has an airplane waiting at the Albany airport to take him to Chicago in the event he decides to attend the Democratic national convention, it was learned today. The trimotored plane is fueled for a non-stop flight to Chicago.

It is to be used, it is understood, in case the convention nominates Gov. Roosevelt for the presidency and he decides to make his speech of acceptance from the convention rostrum. The governor replied with a joke when he was questioned about his plans, saying that he might go to Chicago "by submarine."

He has not been up in a plane for ten years, although he flew frequently as a passenger when he was assistant secretary of the navy in the Wilson administration. The plane waiting at the airport here belongs to American airways, and carries 13 passengers. Earl Ward, operations manager for the air line, is standing by to fly it as chief pilot.

SUAVE PEGLER IS FORCED TO CALL A LADY A LIAR

Orators from Nursery Give Chairman Trouble.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

In a session dominated by the forceful logic of outstanding thinkers, the Democratic national convention yesterday grappled with the dangerous problems of depression, foreign policy, economy, and prohibition, and practically solved them all. The debate was one of the most enlightened discussions ever held by a national political body and was distinguished by the influence of the younger element of the party.

This fresh viewpoint and the confidence of youth were epitomized in the stirring address of a hitherto little known feminine leader, Miss Susie Smith, or "Thuthie Thmith," as she blushingly described herself to the newspaper reporters who almost mobbed her in an interview in the nursery at the conclusion of her address.

We Hear from Susie.

Miss Smith, who is only 4 years old, and a resident of Walla Walla [ala-kazam], Wash., was brief but frank and, in her political philosophy seemed to have taken United States Senator Huey Long for her model. Called to the rostrum by Senator Westbrook Pegler, the chairman, to present her ideas on the depression, Miss Smith slipped off her mother's lap and, still sucking on the core of an ice cream cone which had left a smear on both ears, she said:

"'Twuth the night before Chrithmuth
An' all through the houthe—"

"Louder," yelled the members of the Arkansas delegation, who recognized the speaker's pronouncement as something of their own aggressive political faith.

Unabashed by the interruption, the speaker switched to the allied topics of cancellation and foreign policy.

"Hickory, dickory, dock," she said in a serious voice,

"An' jumped into a bramble buth
An' scrathed out both hith eyeth."

Hon. Pegler Gets the Blame.

With a bow, Miss Smith turned and was fleeing to her proud mother when she tripped over a quart which had rolled out from under Chairman Pegler's seat, and fell smack on her nose.

"Wow, that old rum-hound tripped me on purpose," she cried.

"Well, you are just a dirty little liar, I never either," the Hon. Pegler replied with parliamentary suavity. "Why don't you pick up your big feet and look where you are going?"

Another Leader of Youth.

Senator Pegler next called on Joseph Dokes Jr., 5 years old, who comes from East Palooka, Fla., and represents the more enlightened opposition to Miss Smith's beliefs. Young Mr. Dokes seemed to symbolize the bold independence of youth as he went to the rostrum.

"Out of my way, mugg," he remarked to Senator Pegler and hopping up on the speakers' shelf, launched into his address.

"To Boston, to Boston, to buy a loaf of bread," he shouted. "Home again, home again, the old gray goose is dead. I know another one. I can count to a hundred. I can turn a somersault. I can spell cat, c-a-t, that's the way to spell cat. I want a bag of peanuts. Buy me a balloon."

"The speaker will please confine himself to the subject under debate," Chairman Pegler reminded him.

"Well, I was never so insulted in my life," exclaimed the father of the young speaker, who keeps the Elite café and soft drinks in East Palooka. "Come on, Joey, we do not have to stand for that and I will buy you a balloon."

Senator Pegler Puts on the Dog.

Senator Pegler then called for silence and, remarking that he had a surprise for the convention, introduced Rin Tin Tin, the celebrated police dog of the moving pictures, to address them on a subject very near to his heart.

Rin Tin Tin's remarks were obtained through the form of legal examination.

"Do you want a soup bone?" Chairman Pegler inquired.

"Woof, woof," Rin Tin Tin replied succinctly.

"What, if any, are your beliefs on the dog biscuit question?"

The speaker here bit Senator Pegler on the flask pocket and left the rostrum amid a great ovation from the delegates, whose grasp of affairs obviously has been much improved by the program thus far.

That Great Word Battler.

"And now," Senator Pegler said, "the chair will recognize the Hon. Chuck Wiggins, the retired pugilist, whose profound knowledge of music, art, finance, literature, the drama, the opera, medicine, foreign affairs, the liquor problem, Corean philology—or name any subject—qualify him to advise this convention on matters of great moment."

Mr. Wiggins fell over the gallery rail and landed on the rostrum already talking.

"It is a matter of the utmost consequentiality," he was saying, "that in a time of such excessive turbulosity with so many members of the genus homo in a condition approximating impecuniosity if not veritable indigencey ——"

"Thank you very much," Chairman Pegler said turning off the microphone, "and now we are going to hear the janitor of the building on the subject of the tariff."

This address also created a profound impression and the delegates began to call for other great leaders of thought to enlighten them further. They yelled for the fashion editor of the Hickory Grove [Pa.] Accordion, the society editor of the Grass Junction [Vt.] Bugle, a noted trap drummer, a tight rope walker, a lion tamer, and, finally, demanding the final authority on the grave matters confronting the country, set up a yell for several sport columnists.

Pegler Draws the Line.

To all of these requests Chairman Pegler assented except those for the sport essayists.

"I do not think," he said, "that this convention is quite capable of understanding the profound thought which would be expounded by these men and anyway this session is going to adjourn because the chairman is going across the street on business. Last one into Freddy's place has to buy for the whole crowd."

THE PARTY PLATFORMS

HOW THEY COMPARE

The following brief analysis of the planks of the Republican and Democratic platforms offers a comparison of the attitude of the nation's two major political parties on national problems:

REPUBLICAN.	DEMOCRATIC.
ECONOMY—Urges prompt and drastic reduction of public expenditure; resistance to appropriations, national or local, not essential to government.	ECONOMY—Urges immediate and drastic cuts in expenditures by abolishing useless commissions, consolidation of departments and bureaus to bring at least 25 per cent reduction.
CURRENCY—Urges opposition to any measure which will impair governmental credit or the national currency; dollar must be kept impregnable; opposes currency inflation; favors United States' participation in an international conference on monetary questions, including silver.	CURRENCY—Urges sound currency and calling of international conference for the rehabilitation of silver.
TARIFF—Urges tariff commission report to President increase in duties necessary to equalize domestic with foreign costs of production; advocates flexible rates and extension of general Republican principle of protection to natural resource industries.	TARIFF—Urges competitive tariff for revenue only . . . reciprocity by agreement with other nations . . . international conference to restore trade and credits.
RELIEF—Urges approval of the administration policy which regards relief problem as one of state and local responsibility; advocates congress creating emergency fund to be loaned temporarily to states and opposes federal government giving direct aid to individuals.	RELIEF—Urges extension of federal credit to states . . . extension of federal public works, such as flood control and waterways . . . spread of employment by reduction of hours . . . unemployment and old age insurance under state laws.
AGRICULTURE—Urges assistance to coöperative marketing associations, revision of tariff to maintain protection for farm products; praises work of farm board; reorganization of taxing units in areas beset by tax delinquency and diversion of land submarginal for crop production to other uses.	AGRICULTURE—Urges better financing of farm mortgages through reorganized farm agencies at low rates of interest . . . preference to credits for redemption of mortgaged farms . . . extension and aid to coöperatives . . . control of surpluses.
VETERANS — Urges hospital care and compensation to all incapacitated by injuries attributable to service in defense of their country; provision for dependents of veterans and the elimination of inequalities and the effecting of all possible economies in the administration of veteran relief.	VETERANS—Urges full justice for all who suffered disability or disease caused by or resulting from actual service in war and for their dependents.
FOREIGN AFFAIRS—Urges acceptance by America of membership in the world court; promotion of the welfare of independent nations in the western hemisphere; enactment by congress of a measure authorizing our participation in international conference in case of any threat of nonfulfillment of Article II. of the treaty of Paris; maintenance of policy of protecting national interests and policies; elimination of war as a resort of national policy.	FOREIGN AFFAIRS—Urges a firm policy . . . peace and settlement by arbitration . . . no interference in internal affairs of other nations . . . adherence to the world court with reservations . . . international agreement for reduction of armaments . . . coöperation of the western world to maintain Monroe Doctrine . . . opposes cancellation of debts.
INSULAR POSSESSIONS—Urges continuation of existing self-government in Hawaii and the appointed administrators should be bona fide residents of the territory; favors inclusion of Porto Rico in all legislative and administrative measures enacted for the economic benefit of fellow citizens of the mainland; all officials should be qualified by five years' residence on the island; favors placing citizens of Alaska on an equality with those in the several states.	ISLAND POSSESSIONS—Urges independence for Philippines . . . ultimate statehood for Porto Rico.
PROHIBITION—Urges that the party continue to stand for the constitution and against nullification by nonobservance by state or individuals of law; explains how the constitution may be amended; condemns referendums without constitutional sanction; says prohibition is not a partisan political question; holds that no member of the party should be forced to choose between party affiliation and his honest conviction upon prohibition; favors giving the people an opportunity to pass upon a proposed amendment which shall allow states to deal with prohibition, subject to the power of the federal government to protect citizens from the return of the saloon; urges such an amendment to be submitted to state conventions by congress.	PROHIBITION—Urges repeal of eighteenth amendment . . . immediate action by congress to submit repeal to state conventions called to act on that sole question . . . the states to enact such laws as will promote temperance and prevent return of the saloon . . . federal government to protect dry states from shipments . . . immediate action by congress to modify the Volstead act to permit beer . . . to provide revenue.
NATIONAL DEFENSE—Urges that in time of war every material resource should bear a proportionate share of burdens occasioned by public need; believes the government should perfect plans in time of peace whereby this objective may be attained in war; believes the army has reached the irreducible minimum; urges maintenance of navy on parity with that of any other nation.	NATIONAL DEFENSE—Urges navy and army adequate for national defense. Survey to eliminate some of expenditures now nearing a billion dollars a year.
BANKS—Urges revision of banking laws to protect depositors; closer supervision of affiliates of banks; broader powers for authorities supervising banks.	BANKS—Urges filing with government and publication of full facts in regard to all foreign bonds offered for sale . . . regulation by the government of holding companies which sell securities, rates of utilities companies in interstate commerce, and exchanges trading in securities and commodities . . . quicker methods on realizing for protection of depositors . . . closer supervision of national banks . . . divorce of investment banking business from commercial banking . . . restriction of use of bank funds in speculation.
HOME FINANCING—Urges national legislation creating home loan discount system.	MONOPOLY—Strict enforcement of anti-trust laws . . . better protection for labor, small producer, and distributor . . . use of nation's water power in public interest . . . removal of government from all fields of private enterprise.
LABOR—Urges shorter work week and days in government and private employment; restriction of immigration; approves collective bargaining.	BUDGET—Urges maintenance of federal credit by a budget balanced annually . . . based on a system of taxation levied on the principle of ability to pay.
FREEDOM OF SPEECH—Urges freedom of speech, press, and assemblage.	JUDICIARY—Simplification of legal procedure . . . reorganization of judicial system to make justice speedy and more certain.
PUBLIC UTILITIES—Urges legislation to authorize federal power commission to charge for electric current when transmitted across state lines.	CORRUPT PRACTICES—Publicity of political contributions and expenditures . . . severe penalties for violation.
TRANSPORTATION—Urges appropriate and constructive regulation of railroads and equality for all common carriers by rail, highway, air, and water.
SEAWAY AID—Urges development of the great lakes-St. Lawrence seaway.
HIGHWAY AID—Urges federal coöperation with states in the building of roads.

BALLOTING WILL START TODAY ON ROOSEVELT FATE

Governor Faces Battle for Nomination.

gion to the radicalism of the New York governor.

After hours and hours of nominating and seconding speeches and worked up exhibitions of bedlam by way of testifying to the popularity of the aspirants, the opposing generals, backed by their respective armies of delegates, will come to grips today in the most exciting political battle in decades.

On the one side will be the cohorts of Roosevelt, whose votes will number upwards of 650 on the first ballot, more than any previous candidate ever polled at the outset without winning in the end, being 70 or more in excess of a majority of the convention and only 120 short of the 770 votes required to nominate under the two-thirds rule.

Farley Still Predicts Victory.

James A. Farley, manager in chief of the Roosevelt candidacy, said last night that his prediction of victory on the first ballot still stands with a minimum of 691 votes to begin with.

For the additional votes needed to put the governor across the line the Roosevelt managers are relying partly upon the success of trading for the vice presidential nomination and partly upon one of those band wagon movements that always starts with leaders eager to acquire credit for the stroke that clinches a nomination and thereby earn a valid claim to plentiful helping at the Washington pie counter in the event of the party's victory in November.

The basis of the Roosevelt manager's hopes of success on the first, or at least the second, ballot is also the basis of the fears of the anti-Roosevelt captains. Their principal concern as the balloting approaches is to hold their forces intact for three ballots, after which they believe the Roosevelt strength will begin to fall away.

They give themselves 522 votes, and thereby concede 632 to Roosevelt on the first ballot. Their theory is that if the New York governor is not nominated by the third ballot he never will be.

The various candidates will go into the balloting with approximately the following strength:

FOR ROOSEVELT—661.

Alabama	24	New Mexico	6
Arizona	6	New York	27
Arkansas	18	North Carolina	26
Colorado	12	North Dakota	9
Delaware	6	Oregon	10
Florida	14	Pennsylvania	45
Georgia	28	South Carolina	18
Idaho	8	South Dakota	10
Illinois	8	Tennessee	24
Indiana	30	Utah	8
Iowa	26	Vermont	8
Kansas	20	Washington	16
Kentucky	26	West Virginia	16
Louisiana	20	Wisconsin	26
Maine	12	Wyoming	6
Michigan	38	Alaska	6
Minnesota	24	Dist. of Columbia	6
Mississippi	20	Hawaii	6
Montana	8	Philippines	6
Nebraska	16	Porto Rico	6
Nevada	6	Canal Zone	6
New Hampshire	8	Virgin Islands	2

FOR AL SMITH—198.

New York	67	Pennsylvania	31
Connecticut	16	Rhode Island	10
Massachusetts	36	Provinces	6
New Jersey	32

FOR JOHN N. GARNER—90.

Texas	46
California	44

FOR RITCHIE.

Maryland	16

FOR MELVIN A. TRAYLOR.

Illinois	50

FOR HARRY BYRD.

Virginia	24

FOR GOV. GEORGE WHITE.

Ohio	52

FOR JAMES A. REED.

Missouri	36

FOR ALFALFA BILL MURRAY.

Oklahoma	22

This tabulation accounts for 1,149 out of the 1,154 delegates. There may be scattering votes for Baker on the first ballot. He is, however, distinctly a dark horse to be brought forward as a compromise in the event of a deadlock.

The signs of disaffection in the Roosevelt contingent are numerous and significant. They have cropped out of such delegations as Mississippi, Iowa, Indiana, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and North Carolina.

Missouri for Roosevelt.

On the other hand some gains will accrue to Roosevelt after the first ballot. A large majority of the Missouri delegation of 36 is eager to break away from Reed and plump for Roosevelt. A few of them are not unlikely to do so even on the first ballot, despite the instructions Reed is endeavoring to hold them to.

Of course, if the Texas and California delegations were to go over to Roosevelt from Garner they would clinch the nomination for the New York governor.

However, Amon G. Carter, chairman of the steering committee of the Texas delegation, was emphatic last night in stating that the delegation had made no move toward any kind of a deal with any other candidate. He characterized as "pure Roosevelt propaganda, without any basis in fact," the reports that Garner was considering an offer to accept the second place on the ticket in return for throwing the Texas delegation to Roosevelt.

Mr. Carter also said he was authorized to speak for the California delegation in stating that California was not considering a switch to Roosevelt.

The Illinois delegation is expected to play an important part in this party nominee making. Illinois, under the guidance of that skillful politician, Mayor Cermak of Chicago, is going to cast about 50 votes for Traylor on the first ballot and until the mayor deems the psychological moment at hand for the execution of a coup.

If there appears promise of stopping Roosevelt, Mr. Cermak may be expected to lead a movement to put Ritchie over.

22 CLEANERS ASK PROTECTION FROM DRIVERS' UNION

Twenty-two owners of cleaning and dyeing establishments yesterday filed a petition for an injunction in the Superior court to restrain the Laundry and Dry Cleaning Chauffeurs and Drivers' union from threatening customers and from picketing their businesses. The bill asserted that acid capsules had been placed in garments which were destroyed when the capsules were broken during the pressing process. It charged that the driver's acts were interfering with business. The petition will be heard today by Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan.

32 Years Letter Carrier; 300,000 Miles; Ill Once

Summit, N. J., June 29.—(AP)—Maurice Spinning, 67, letter carrier, is retiring after traveling 300,000 miles in thirty-two years. He lost only a week on sick leave and that was caused by dog bites.

NOTES OF THE CONVENTION

This will explain how Al Melgard, the Stadium organist, is able to play appropriate state tunes the instant a prominent Democrat reaches the convention floor or appears on the platform. The musician usually receives advance information of the arrival of the notables through telephonic connection with the rostrum. He is notified whenever possible a moment in advance.

If repetition of a score will establish it as the convention's own, then this conclave's theme song is "Bye, Bye, Mr. Dry; You're All Wet," which the organist composed and plays at every opportunity. He prepared a huge sheet of music before the convention containing every state tune, or enough of each one to "prompt" him, and this is always handy on his music rack. A pair of field glasses also enables him to watch the movements of prominent persons on the mammoth floor and before one has started a parade Mr. Melgard already has the right ballad on tap. Some twenty-five years of organ playing preceded his appearance before the convention.

Preston Harrison of California, a former Chicagoan and brother of former Mayor Carter Harrison, occupied a box with Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton.

Feminine Al Smith fans had him autographing white cloth pocketbooks and handbags outside the Congress yesterday. He attempted to dash from the doorway to his car, but the women swarmed upon him and he capitulated with a cheerful "Sure."

C. H. Robinson, editor of the Western Review, 155 North Clark street, wrote THE TRIBUNE yesterday inclosing a copy of a song he wrote for the Iowa delegation to the Democratic convention of 1892, which met in Chicago. The ballad, "Song of the Iowa Democrats," boosted the presidential candidacy of Gov. Boies, the Iowa choice.

"Lend me fifty cents," yelled a tall Texan as he hailed a friend from a taxicab at the Stadium and Jesse Jones, the Houston millionaire, was relieved of temporary embarrassment.

William G. McAdoo of California and Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana at loggerheads over presidential candidates, met on the stairway to the platform last night and stopped to shake hands and smile. The meeting was brief, however.

Trying to regain order after the wet parade, Chairman Walsh appealed to newspaper people standing on their chairs to set an example and sit down. They complied and the delegates grew quiet immediately.

RITCHIE MEETS SUPPORTERS IN STEADY PARADE

Maryland Governor Focus of Convention Interest.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Delegates from all over the convention hall moved in a promenade yesterday toward the banners of the Maryland delegation. The tenor of the messages they left with the Maryland leaders was:

"We're instructed for Roosevelt, but we want to be with Ritchie. As soon as we can get loose from our instructions, and Roosevelt is stopped, count on us to go all the way for Ritchie."

Meandering through the delegations, an observer heard a lot of comment from these Democratic nominators to the effect that Gov. Roosevelt of New York has a great supply of votes, but that Gov. Ritchie of Maryland has by his personal magnetism captured the affection and the personal support of hundreds of the delegates.

Avoid Disparaging Roosevelt.

While the Ritchie managers were greeting the visiting delegates warmly and expressing appreciation for the encouragement offered, they cautiously avoided making any disparaging statements about the Roosevelt campaign. If Ritchie is to be nominated for the presidency he ought to have a united Democracy behind him, they argued.

They appeared confidence, though, that if Gov. Roosevelt does not receive enough support for nomination all these delegates who have flocked with voluntary proffers of friendship to the Ritchie delegation will start a band wagon movement for the Maryland governor that can never be stopped. While Roosevelt is slipping Ritchie will be gaining, they figure, and with added support from state delegations who will be giving up favorite son votes, the Ritchie leaders see their candidate zooming in within a very few ballots.

Ritchie Greets Visitors.

Gov. Ritchie spent the morning greeting hundreds of visitors to his Congress hotel headquarters. People kept piling in the suite all day long, many just wanting to shake the hand, as they put it, "of our next President."

When the convention session opened, Gov. Ritchie was comfortably settled in an anteroom off the mezzanine balcony at the Stadium with a radio to bring him the proceedings. The governor wanted to be in close touch with affairs at the Stadium without wishing to appear to be seeking the limelight which has been his whenever he appeared on the convention floor.

Then when the session adjourned, without having really started, the governor returned to the Congress, where he received more visitors and held conferences with party leaders. At last night's session the governor was back in the Stadium anteroom again.

The Ritchie leaders were further encouraged when they received the news that the resolutions committee, by a vote of 35 to 17, had adopted a dripping wet plank on the prohibition issue. By rejecting the plank advocated by the Roosevelt forces, which was a so-called "moist" plank, the majority of the resolutions committee took a campaign position which would be far more advantageous for Ritchie than for Roosevelt. Gov. Ritchie, his supporters say, has been a pioneer in the war on Volsteadism, starting when that act passed with a prophecy that evil would result from it.

Gov. Ritchie's wet stand in past conventions has alienated some of the dry south delegations, but many of the arid southlands voted wet on the platform plank, it was pointed out.

The southern delegates yesterday were in receipt of a letter from Howard Bruce, national committeeman of Maryland, bidding for their support and showing that Gov. Ritchie, by reason of his family affiliations, is really one of them.

The letter pointed out that one of the Maryland governor's ancestors, Joseph Cabell, was a close associate of Thomas Jefferson and helped the great Democratic statesman to found the University of Virginia. Gov. Ritchie's great-grandfather, William H. Cabell, was governor of Virginia and chief judge of the Virginia Court of Appeals. A number of Gov. Ritchie's family fought in the southern armies during the civil war.

"In Gov. Ritchie," the letter stated, "the south has a representative who understands its ideals and aspirations, its needs and desires, and who will bring to the south leadership of the same high character that marked the early days of the republic. The southern states should line up for Gov. Ritchie."

INDIANA GROUP IS SITTING TIGHT ON NOMINATION

The Hoosier delegation to the Democratic national convention was still sitting tight yesterday on probable candidates for the presidency and vice presidency, although a number of the delegates were beginning to chafe for a showdown. There seems little doubt that 20 of the 30 votes of the delegation will go to Roosevelt, but if a lack of strength is shown by the New York governor the Indianians will be ready to lead a band wagon march for Newton D. Baker or some other dark horse.

PRINCIPALS ARE SILENT ON $10,000 'BRIBERY' CHARGE

Silence was the general answer last night to reports of an alleged attempt to purchase for $10,000 a signed statement to the effect that Melvin A. Traylor had requested that his name be withdrawn from presidential consideration.

The reports were general early yesterday, but later in the day those who were reputed to know of the incident declined to discuss it or evaded it.

In substance, the story was that at midnight Tuesday a Mr. Dunlap of Boston approached Frank Scofield of Fort Worth, Tex., the original mover in the Traylor preconvention campaign. This Mr. Dunlap carried a typewritten statement quoting Traylor as withdrawing, and asked Scofield to sign his, Scofield's, name to it.

Scofield refused indignantly, the story goes. The man told him, according to reports, that the statement "would mean a million votes for Roosevelt and $10,000 for you."

Dr. C. T. Wilson Convicted for Reckless Driving

Portland, Ore., June 29.—(AP)—Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the Methodist board of prohibition, temperance, and public morals, was convicted in police court here today of a charge of reckless driving. Judge Fred W. Stadter continued the case for sentence.

DIES OF FOOTBALL HURTS.

James Frederick Meagher, 15 years old, 3131 Eastwood avenue, died yesterday in the Ravenswood hospital of injuries he suffered in a football game several months ago. Meagher was struck on the head and a tumor of the brain developed.

TICKET HOLDERS DUPED AS 42,000 STORM STADIUM

15,000 Are Disappointed at Night Session.

The largest crowd that was ever attracted to a political convention in America packed the Chicago Stadium inside and outside last night. Nearly 42,000 persons were either inside the hall or outside.

Every one of the 22,000 seats was filled; every aisle was jammed. Even the window sills and similar vantage plates were utilized. Those who used the "standing room only" facilities added 5,000 to the Stadium population for the session, making a total of 27,000 human beings within, and making also a new record for Stadium attendance. It would have been bigger had the Stadium been larger.

Crowd Storms Outside.

Outside a crowd of 15,000 stormed the doors. At 8:30, by order of fire officials, the gates were closed. At that hour, with the convention just under way, there wasn't even standing room. The drawing attraction was, of course, the expected fight over the Democratic repeal plank.

At 7 o'clock when the convention was scheduled to begin, there was no indication of the coming record breaking crowd. There were wide blotches of vacant seats. By 7:30, these areas diminished, and by 8 had disappeared; but still the spectators poured in through the entrances. Many of them entered on the strength of courtesy cards bearing Mayor Cermak's signature, and these, it developed later, were partly responsible for the overflow for the reason that hundreds of the tickets had been counterfeited and hawked on the streets. Thus, scores of ticket holders, who paid $40 for seats, lost their seats.

Doors Are All Closed.

When all available space had been filled, and the throngs were still crowding the gates, Assistant Fire Marshal George Graves, in charge of fire prevention, ordered that no more be admitted. This order was transmitted by Chief Doorkeeper J. H. Sinott to the policemen and doormen. Twenty-five policemen on duty inside the Stadium were detailed outside to help check the crowds and to make more room within.

Inside all was gay, yet tense with the suspense of expected political drama; also, it was rather humid, but the cooling system of the Stadium added counteracting comfort.

Some sixty box seats were vacant, testifying that their authorized occupants had met delay outside. Swarms of delegates and others left their seats for the cooler precincts of the corridors, but did not venture outside, knowing they could not return.

Courtesy Cards Stopped.

Outside the situation was different. At all gates were milling mobs, hundreds holding tickets aloft, but getting nowhere. Courtesy cards were absolutely barred after the counterfeiting came to light, and efforts were made to oust those already inside on those tickets.

With one exception the fire marshal's order was strictly observed at the gates. That exception, allegedly influenced by the Ohio delegation, occurred when an obliging doorkeeper let forty persons slip in. Police shoved the doorkeeper himself outside. But the others stayed on the outside. Two United States senators were included.

When it became obvious that the political appointee doorkeepers could not manage the situation, Chief Sergeant at Arms Edwin A. Helsey ordered the professional doorkeepers on duty, and 150 of them, directed by Chief Usher Frain, were sent to the gates. Within a short time some semblance of regular routine developed.

The ushers, all experienced at the Stadium or Soldiers' field and the ball parks, insisted that proper credentials be shown at the outer, rather than the inner lobby doors. This meant delegates, too. All stairways were guarded. The political practice of sneaking in a friend was almost negligible.

One wholesale sneaking in occurred, however, when a small boy climbed to a fire escape on the Warren boulevard side and lowered it on the promise from scores of the crowd of reward. When the steel stairway touched ground, a flo of men and women started upward and into the Stadium. All forgot their pledges to remunerate the boy and he burst into tears as they scrambled past him. The invasion was checked but not before fifty persons had entered.

Situation Finally Eases.

What with the heat inside and the apparent hopelessness of those on the outside of getting in, the situation eased finally, and the "no further admittance" order was rescinded at 9:45 o'clock, more than an hour after it went into effect. The lifting of the ban was possible because many of those inside left on account of the heat. At one time it was so intense a man and a woman fainted and were succored by a flying wedge of police.

The 27,000 who crowded the Stadium constituted a record breaker for convention attendance because heretofore no place of greater capacity than the Stadium has been the scene of a convention, either Republican or Democratic. The largest crowd in the west side hall previous to last night was in 1930, when over 23,000 spectators watched the Golden Gloves fights.

1¢ Sale!

One of the most extraordinary Food Bargains that has ever been offered Local Housewives!

A few days ago we offered an amazing food bargain. Thousands of women have already taken advantage of it . . . but now, to enable everyone to benefit, we are continuing it for a few days more.

Go to your grocer tomorrow morning. Ask for a pint jar of Hellmann's Mayonnaise. You pay 36¢ . . . and then for 1¢ more he will give you a full half-pint bottle of Best Foods True French Dressing. A bottle that would ordinarily cost you 15¢.

Best Foods French Dressing is equal to the best home made French dressing you have ever tasted. It contains only the finest of vinegars, salad oils and imported spices. It is not "treated," like certain other French dressings, to retard the natural separation.

It is a true French dressing in every respect . . . exactly like the exquisite tasting French dressings made by world famous Parisian chefs.

Hellmann's Mayonnaise you already know. The finest tasting mayonnaise that money can buy. And one of the two mayonnaises that you know is free of harsh, cheapening, inferior ingredients.

So go to your grocer tomorrow. Tell him you want these two famous products . . . just as they are advertised here. He will charge you only 37¢ instead of the usual half a dollar.

But let us warn you! You must act quickly! This offer is extremely expensive for us. And we can afford to make it for a few days only. At your grocer then. Tomorrow morning . . . without fail.

BENNETT GIVES PICTURE OF FLOOR FIGHT ON REPEAL

Wild Applause by Crowd Greets Platform.

with ferocity—finally obtains it, and Hitchcock proceeds amid gusts of cheers for nearly every clause he releases. He makes a comical oversight, turning two pages for one and thus omitting for the moment the page containing the clause condemning the high rates of the Hawley-Smoot tariff. Prolonged cheers for the page, however, when it is released. Never in a national convention of the last dozen years has an audience been so eager to catch every word of a platform. The people cry "Louder!" "Louder, please!" and again the note of this night is measures more than men.

And this platform contains only 3,350 words. The people can follow it. can retain its significant declarations. They are grateful.

Boos Greet Minority Report.

A storm of boos when Cordell Hull of Tennessee rises to read a minority report of the platform committeemen. They do not discompose him and he remarks dryly that his wish is to "address himself especially to delegates." The hecklers, who are not delegates, subside. No good heckling a man who does not care.

Nor any heckling of Alfalfa Bill Murray when he comes forward with his one man minority report. The people like the old ranchman.

Threat of tedium when Chairman Walsh announces that listeners of the radio audience who failed to tune in on W-G-N have been missing all the convention's proceedings between the hours of seven and nine. Shall the platform reports be read all over again? Walsh asks. Delegates and audience moan "Yes."

But stay! The chairman finds that other arrangements which will satisfy the radio audience have been made and the Stadium audience will be spared the ordeal of the rereading.

Powerful, portly David I. Walsh, United States senator from Massachusetts, is speaking magnificently in support of the majority plank on repeal.

Short sentences, utterances clean cut. Manner vehement. Delivery rapid, but not hurried. When he speaks in the senate he is attentively followed and here in this huge hall he is employing his senate method, a method that makes for compactness and is marvelously clear.

His right hand gesture is the gesture of a trip hammer.

His blows count.

Even the pests who think it a compliment to an orator to applaud him with rattles are silenced by David Walsh's impassioned but controlled vehemence.

Chairman Angered by Crowd.

Hull comes forward to defend his minority thesis that prohibition is not a political question, and again the storm of boos. They inflame Chairman Walsh, who, his stern face crimson with wrath, shouts, "Courtesy, gentlemen, courtesy and a respectful hearing even to our opponents on this question!"

Hull, thoroughly sincere, is halting and tedious, but a measure of courtesy is finally accorded him, not because his meager personality commanded it but because the audience has acquired a real fear of the hard biting chairman—a Tartar at 73 when you try to defy his conception of the decencies, be they parliamentary or personal decencies.

Al an Eager Listener.

Whoever speaks, be he dull or be he vivid, he has one intent listener—Al Smith. He tugs at his cigar, occasionally relighting it, occasionally whispering a word to a colleague in the New York delegation. Nothing essential escapes him, whether it be when he scans documents when brought to him or when he grasps the significance of a speech minutes ahead of other listeners. You can follow these processes of his—follow them by watching his alert eyes and his slow, knowing smiles.

Now Smith rises to speak and now comes the demonstration of demonstrations!

"Sidewalks" is played. Men and women are dancing up and down with excitement. This is not cheering. It is the roar of the sea, rising, falling, rising again. It envelops the man with adoration.

Standards are dipped toward him like spears. He stands behind Chairman Walsh, smiling, fingering composedly with his right hand the papers in his left. He takes out his watch, wishful to do his own timing of the demonstration. "Jolly Good Fellow" is played at the end of seven minutes of the ovation and the people sing the song.

In two minutes more Al has secured quiet and is speaking of "this gracious applause, for which I am very grateful."

Nasal, emphatic, comradely, using such locutions as "it's just too bad" and pronouncing "been" as "ben," he is the same old Al—the plain man's idol talking like a still plainer man. He grins with relish over his own good points.

He perpetrates "raddio" again and the audience welcomes his familiar mispronunciation with screams of delight. Al lets them scream for five seconds, clamping his jaws in the manner of a man saying to himself, "Yes, I said it again. I like it and I know you like it."

Once when he was governor his daughter, Emily, tried to make him put only one "d" in his pronunciation of radio.

"Say," he replied, "who is the governor of New York, anyway?"

Daughter Emily gave it up.

Laughter Greets His Sally.

He pauses to take a drink of water, saying in reference to the time limit on his speech, "Drinks of water come out of my time." Again rapturous laughter—torrents of it.

Smith translates the points of his argument in support of the wet plank into direct question and answer between the United States senate and the American people, and between President Hoover—whom he calls "the boss"—and the late Republican convention.

It is all intimate, unassuming, powerful.

Did he speak in vain. No. For in two minutes the announcement is made from the platform that the Texas liberals and the Texas standpatters now are one. They are unanimous for the wet plank.

Maury Hughes of Dallas, Tex., rises to say that not his wetness defeated Smith in 1928. "No," shouts the Texan, "Al Smith, the Happy Warrior of Democracy, was crucified on the cross of religious intolerance." [Tremendous cheering].

Even opposition speakers mention the warrior's name with respect, yea, with affection, and every time they mention it they win their loudest cheers.

Women Speakers Keep Poise.

The women speakers are a genuine credit to the convention. They are unflustered. They speak clearly. They are not venomous in spirit nor extravagant in statement. Two names deserve special mention up to this hour—sunburned, graceful Mrs. Jean S. Whittemore, a teacher in the University of Porto Rico, and Mrs. Catharine J. Sloane of historic Warrenton in old Virginia.

United States Senator Robert Bulkley of Ohio, who won his senatorship on a wet platform, submits his winning views to the convention. He speaks kindly of the drys, makes a solid, undecorated argument, is bitten off in the middle of a sentence by the time limit, lifts his hand in brisk salute to the convention and descends from the platform.

A quarter to eleven now and the convention not weary. Few seats anywhere in the hall are empty.

Crowd Welcomes Shouse.

The people have a hearty welcome for defeated Jouett Shouse of Kansas, who, had the Roosevelt ans not won yesterday, would have been permanent chairman of this convention.

He is introduced as "of Kansas and the United States," but that compliment brings no smile to his dour face. A stern looking, stern speaking man who cannot smile even when he is paying glowing tribute to John Raskob's services to the Democratic party in the last three years. Raskob, who is sitting nearby, squirms self-consciously during the tribute. A man so shy that it hurts.

Here is a good epigram. 'Tis uttered by William C. Fitts of Alabama, a white haired, portly man, who is speaking against the repeal plank.

"The question before this country," he says, "is how to live—not how to get a drink." An audience overwhelmingly wet cheers that.

Fitts offers a wise crack: "As a matter of fact, there are no light wines and no heavy wines. Wine is light or heavy according to the capacity of man who carries it."

Warns of "Doubtful" States.

He warns the convention that eight states will be "doubtful" if the majority plank is adopted. He solemnly ticks them off—Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina, Alabama, Florida, Kentucky, and Texas—yes, and Oklahoma."

Cries of "Sit down," and loud booing.

"All right!" the valiant old man cries. "I can last as long as you can!" So the audience surrenders. He has for the moment beaten 25,000.

Now they are trying to clap him down. He stands silent. Walsh says, "Ladies and gentlemen, you are only extending the speaker's time. He will persist to the end." Laughter and again mass surrender and the man from Birmingham ploughs on. You begin to understand why the confederacy won momentous battles of the civil war. It just ploughed on.

Warm Ovation for Ritchie.

Now Ritchie at 11:27. Banners wave. The whole New York delegation rises. Thunder of "My Maryland" and "Dixie" from the organ. Nearly all the delegations are on their feet. Al Smith and John W. Davis are cheering. It is a warm hearted, three minute ovation. Ritchie, courtly and composed, smiles and bows. But the instant he begins to speak he is more than the suave Maryland cavalier of the party. The power in him is demonstrated by the short, hard hitting sentences, the vigorous gestures, the vehement tones. He does not jolly. He dominates.

Debate on repeal having ended at 11:37, Congressman William D. Connery of Massachusettse clamors for immediate cash payment of the veterans' bonus. He is respectfully heard, but not enthusiastically. The question of immediate payment stirs neither delegates nor galleries.

The same reception is accorded Congressman John Rankin of Mississippi, chairman of the war veterans' committee of the house. He is speaking earnestly for immediate payment, but many of the delegates are chatting, others moving about.

"Fellow Americans!"

It is the hollow voice of Alfalfa Bill. Left hand in trousers' pocket. No gestures with the other. He is speaking for the remonetization of silver and other financial panaceas which to him mean what they meant to the Bryanites of old. Gaunt of frame, homespun in aspect, he speaks right on—no notes to sustain his flow, no rhetorical embellishments to tickle the fancy of an audience. He is gazed upon with interest but his views rouse no cheers. It is midnight and the galleries are thinning.

More speaking for immediate payment of the bonus. Delegate Robert Murchie of Concord, N. H., acknowledges that he was not originally for it. Used to say to comrades at post meetings, "Boys, what's the use of having the government pay you in greenbacks that won't be worth 50 cents on the dollar when you get 'em." But he has talked with economists and they have told him, he said, it wouldn't debase the currency, so he urges immediate payment on the grounds that the need is great and he goes his cautious Yankee way amid mannerly applause.

And Now the Roll Call.

Quarter past midnight and a roll call on the question as to whether the minority report recommending a moist plank shall be substituted for the majority report recommending the dripping wet plank.

The words, "Illinois enthusiastically and emphatically votes 'No,' uttered by Delegate Mrs. Elizabeth Conkey of Chicago when the name of our state is reached. Her tones are fraught with deep satisfaction and the cheers for her announcement are loud.

Another woman, Mrs. W. W. Hamilton of Dodson, Mont., announces in tones of equal satisfaction her state's negative vote, and Mrs. Alice McAndrews of Reno, Nev., proclaiming her state as "the most liberal in the Union," casts its six votes against substitution of the minority report.

At half past midnight, the vote is better than 4 to 1 for the majority report. Both delegates and spectators are beginning to leave the hall.

The excitement of the five hour session is over. "And so," in the words of weary Mr. Pepys, "home to bed."

IN AFTERNOON VAUDEVILLE

At the brief afternoon session the Democratic convention transacted no business. Instead, it roared at the quips of an impromptu vaudeville show while members of the platform committee, far away from the Stadium, struggled to complete the platform.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, as permanent chairman of the assemblage, introduced the Rev. Duncan H. Browne of St. James' Protestant Episcopal church, who pronounced the invocation.

That ended the serious business of the session. Senator Walsh then announced that he was turning the gavel over to Eddie Dowling, stage comedian, and the session became a vaudeville affair. Dowling called Will Rogers forward.

Rogers, chewing gum, but without his rope, grinned into the microphone. When he said, "I always thought the Democratic convention was a joke, and now I know it," the delegates howled.

Later Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll, the blackface radio comedians, took the stage. Gene Tunney was introduced.

Senator Walsh brought the show to a close after an hour.

NYE TAKES EARLY LEAD IN PRIMARY IN NORTH DAKOTA

Fargo, N. D., June 29.—(AP)—United States Senator Gerald P. Nye took an early lead in North Dakota's primary election as meager returns became available tonight from scattered precincts in the race for the Republican nomination for senator.

Returns from 226 out of the state's 2,235 precincts gave Nye 15,024 votes for renomination, while his opponent, Gov. George F. Shafer, polled 10,373.

Some of Nye's strength came from areas considered Shafer strongholds.

Nye, an insurgent Republican, campaigned on an anti-Hoover platform while Shafer supported the administration.

WOMEN FROLIC AT CLUB DINNER BEFORE BATTLE

'Dean Elizabeth' Throws Formality to Winds.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Those who ate and ran away, convention bound, topped a highly diverting program last night at the frolicsome function that was the Chicago Woman's club dinner to distinguished Democratic women. That they'll live to speak another day—perhaps this morning at the breakfast at the Palmer house for the delegates, alternates, and national committeewomen—consoled the 500 guests who could not hear the headliners above the clatter of cutlery and china. And there was no lack of oratorical talent.

Mrs. George Bass [Dean Elizabeth to the Democratic women] effected a sleight of hand feat in which she deftly substituted other celebrities for the party leaders whose duties demanded their presence in the Stadium at 7 o'clock. As official hostess she tossed formality to the winds and called upon the guests to recognize that "we are running true to form out on the west side—having a convention of impulse. If all the dinner parties crash in town, what matters it so long as we have our fun."

Every One Enjoys It.

Keyed to the electric atmosphere emanating from the Stadium, everybody had fun—Republicans sprinkled liberally among the tables, as well as Democrats. Those who watched but couldn't hear the brief remarks of former Gov. Nellie Tayloe Ross and Mrs. Emily Newell Blair [who, with Mrs. Bass, form the famous feminine triumvirate of Democracy] applauded just as enthusiastically when their sentiments were echoed by Mrs. O. Fragstein of Milwaukee, national committeewoman from Wisconsin; Prof. William E. Dodd of the University of Chicago; Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, wife of the Illinois senator, and Philip Grau of Milwaukee, "a recent Republican."

The latter speaker tickled the gathering mightily when he assured it that "although I wear my hair pompadour and come from Wisconsin, I'm not going to take off my coat or my collar before I finish my remarks," and also that "I walked to the mourner's bench in the Democratic convention and admitted my conversion." But they didn't smile when he hammered home the accusation that "we have paid more attention to the pedigree of a bull pup we buy for our children than to the qualifications of men we send to the legislature."

Wants No Prosperity Pledge.

Similarly Prof. Dodd declared that "the Democratic party has survived success. That's what is killing the Republican party—too much success." He recommended to the party leaders that no pledge of prosperity be held out as an inducement for Democratic votes in November.

Mrs. Ruth McCormick Simms and her husband, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, Mrs. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, and others were unable to attend the dinner because of the evening session. Those who were on hand included Mrs. William E. Dever, widow of the former mayor of Chicago; Mrs. John P. McGoorty, Mrs. Daniel B. Gallery, Judge and Mrs. Edmund K. Jarecki, Mrs. Leslie Weary, Mrs. Glenn E. Plumb, and Miss Mary McEnerney, county commissioners; Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Lobdell, Mrs. George Packard, Mrs. Frank Fuller, Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, Mrs. Harry Atwood, Mrs. Ora H. Snyder, Mrs. Amos Walker, Mrs. Clair E. More, and numerous others.

Normal, Ill., Saves $12,000; Has Balance of $26,869

Bloomington, Ill., June 29.—[Special.]—While many municipalities, large and small, are in financial straights, Normal, Ill., had a balance of $26,869.25 at the end of the fiscal year this month, of which amount $12,416.20 was saved during the year.

FIRST WIFE ASKS $100,000 IN SUIT AGAINST SECOND

White Plains, N. Y., June 29.—[Special.]—Immediate trial of her $100,000 alienation suit against the woman who succeeded her as wife of Willard Bruce Pine, Westchester real estate man, was demanded by Mrs. Cornelia Kathleen Pine of Larchmont, in Supreme court, White Plains, today.

Mrs. Pine said she divorced the realtor in Reno two years ago after he had been stolen from her by Mrs. Beatrice Ivie Kropff, then wife of a wealthy Manhattan perfumer. A few months later Mrs. Kropff went to Reno, taking Pine with her, and obtained a decree for herself. The upshot, according to the first Mrs. Pine, is that her ex-husband and his wife are now living in Beverly Hills, Cal., on the latter's money.

The plaintiff charged that the former Mrs. Kropff kept on the trail of the lonesome Pine for months before she won his love.

MICHIGAN FINDS OUTDOORS STILL IS GREAT ASSET

Tourist Business Shows No Depression.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Walloon Lake, Mich., June 29.—[Special.]—Here in the cool lakes and woods, an easy day's drive from Chicago, the Michigan Tourist and Resort association this afternoon on the first day of its annual "historical and legendary tour" reported that the outdoors is becoming a stronger vacation attraction than in the era of silk shirts and new pearl necklaces.

"The summers of 1930 and 1931," said Frank V. Blakely, field representative of the resort association, "each brought more automobile tourists to Michigan than in the years of high stock market quotations. The average individual expenditure by these visitors has dropped materially, but the increase in numbers has been so great that the income of the resort owners has been cut much less than in business generally.

Hotel Prices Down.

"Prices on hotels, cottages, and meals are down about 20 per cent. The condition of the tourist business is of economic importance to the entire state. With an annual revenue of $250,000,000 from 10,000,000 visitors the resort trade ranks in Michigan with automobile manufacturing and agriculture."

"The popularity of outdoor recreations during this depression is a wholesome influence on society in these trying times," said Henry Turner, chairman of the tourist committee of the Grand Rapids Association of Commerce. "It augurs well for the stability of America that the people are turning from neurotic entertainments of the jazz age to an appreciation of the countryside."

Walloon lake is a spring fed body of blue with twelve miles of shore, hills green with pine, spruce, white birch, elms, and maples. It is one of hundreds of lakes in this northern tip of Michigan where the breezes are fresh from Lake Michigan and Lake Huron. The preferred automobile route here is via US 12 to Kalamazoo, thence north on US 131 to Walloon Lake Junction, 407 miles from the loop. This is 10 miles from Petoskey, 22 miles from Charlevoix, and 48 miles from Mackinaw City.

KILLED FOR LEADING PLASTERERS' REVOLT AGAINST RACKETEERS

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—Annunzio Milano, who is said by police to have led a group of boss plasterers in a revolt against racketeers levying tribute on them, was shot and killed early today by two masked men who invaded the basement of a house in Brooklyn, where he was visiting.

The killers, after firing one shot each, left unhurriedly and were driven away by a third man waiting in an automobile. Other guests in the basement, thinking they were being held up, raised their hands. The gunmen ignored them, however.

N. Y. JUDGE PUTS JUSTICE BEFORE LETTER OF LAW

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—Supreme Court Justice Normal L. Dike in Brooklyn today ruled in substance that justice is more important than the letter of the law, so he refused to punish a mother who he said was clearly in contempt of court in that she defied an order prohibiting her from moving her children from Brooklyn.

The mother, Mrs. Caterina L. Santeramo of Chatham, N. Y., it was brought out, left her husband, Gaspare Santeramo of Brooklyn, in 1922 and eloped with Pasquale Quirino. Santeramo said he searched for her for ten years, but did not find her until she visited her family in Brooklyn last March.

Meanwhile Santeramo had obtained an annulment of the marriage, but when his former wife brought the children, Thomas, 16, and Angelina, 13, to Brooklyn, he obtained an order forbidding her to take them away.

Mrs. Santeramo testified that she had left her husband because he beat her. She said that since then her whole life had been devoted to the upbringing of her children. Prominent residents of Chatham testified that she was a model wife and mother, and that the children were being raised in a model home.

A Balanced Budget

Not only the financial security of our country but that of every business depends upon a balanced budget. Merchants in their eagerness to force sales, in times like these, are apt to overlook the great importance of upholding their established standards and also of obtaining sufficient financial return to maintain these standards. Lowering quality to balance the budget, however, is not approved by the best houses.

Merchants are not magicians and they cannot through magic readjust prices, regardless of quality, to meet the demand for extreme reductions. Our patrons take pride in our dependable business policies, our exceptional service, and our wonderful Shirts, Neckwear, Hosiery, and other distinctive requisites. In our New York, Chicago, London and Paris Shops prices are as low as possible for the best in quality and at the same time to enable us to maintain a balanced budget.

CURTIS BLAMED FOR DELAYING LINDBERGH HUNT

Revenue Sleuth Testifies Against Him.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Flemington, N. J., June 29.—[Special.]—The Curtis hoax trial wound its way through long and devious trails today in a battle of words in which the lawyers contributed almost as much verbiage to the records as did nine witnesses. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh sat in the courtroom throughout the steaming day.

FRANK J. WILSON.

William E. Haskell, assistant to the president of the New York Tribune, Inc., publisher of the New York Herald - Tribune, testified during the day that Curtis told him that during the sea search for the kidnaped baby Lindbergh at one time tried to jump out and swim to the kidnapers' boat.

"Curtis said the high seas prevented getting close to the other boat," Mr. Haskell testified. "He said they had to restrain Col. Lindbergh from jumping overboard to swim to the other ship."

Delayed Hunt for Right Man.

The high point of the session came early in the afternoon during the testimony of Frank J. Wilson, special investigator in the internal revenue department, who played an important rôle in gathering evidence against Al (Scarface) Capone recently in Chicago.

Mr. Wilson testified that John Hughes Curtis, the Norfolk shipbuilder who is on trial for obstructing justice by giving false information in the hunt for the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, caused the authorities to lose touch with a man who might have solved the mystery of the abduction and subsequent murder.

Name Not Brought Out.

The name of the man was not divulged although the defense lawyers attempted to obtain it from Mr. Wilson. There was a long legal wrangle, during which Col. Lindbergh tapped his foot nervously, showing the first emotion he has expressed since the trial began Monday. Finally Judge Adam O. Robbins ruled that the name should not be revealed.

The federal agent was on the stand for two hours and gave his testimony from notes in great detail.

"Mr. Curtis aided the people who were guilty of the kidnaping," said Mr. Wilson, "because he prevented the prosecution of the investigation at that particular time. We were investigating a certain person who was not the kidnaper but who had information concerning the criminals when Curtis caused a disruption. It is quite possible that his apprehension may be considerably delayed."

On Case Since March 15.

Mr. Wilson's statement was made to Lloyd Fisher, the defense lawyer, while he was under cross-examination. Before leaving the stand the federal investigator, who has been in the Lindbergh case since March 15, said definitely that he believed Curtis to have been in contact with the actual kidnapers.

Wilson, who weighs each word before he delivers it into the records, had been led through a mountain of testimony by Harry L. Stout, assistant prosecutor, before he was turned over to the younger and more enthusiastic Mr. Fisher of the defense.

Mr. Fisher expressed incredulity that Curtis could have hampered the investigation. It was then that the man who got the goods on Al Capone made his statement concerning the mystery man who vanished after the Curtis hoax developed. Not a great deal was learned concerning this angle of the case. Mr. Wilson has been on witness stands before and cannot be flustered.

"So you believe this person you suspected got away because of Mr. Curtis?" asked Lawyer Fisher.

"We did not suspect the person himself, but he is closely connected with other persons who are under suspicion," replied Mr. Wilson.

Name Is Excluded.

"And if you should disclose this name it would further hamper the investigation?" interjected the prosecutor, Anthony J. Hauck.

"Yes, it would," replied the witness.

"I will not require the witness to name the man," said the court, establishing for the first time the sex of the person under discussion.

Judge Robbins, after insuring the confidence of the witness in naming the individual, ruled that all testimony concerning the unnamed person should be stricken from the records.

Mr. Wilson began his testimony by repeating the Curtis description of "John," the Scandinavian kidnaper, and "Dynamite," the big, surly Scandinavian Jew, who ruled the band with an iron hand. "Dynamite" also was known as Sam Goldberg, the federal agent said; "John" was sometimes called "Nils." He said Curtis had described "Hilda" as a good looker, about 33, and a fancy dresser.

Four Different Stories.

Wilson told the jury while under both direct and cross-examination of the manner in which four statements had been obtained from Curtis in the Lindbergh home during the week following the finding of the baby's body. The defense attempted to show that Curtis had been subjected to a long grind and that he was near a breakdown when he made the statements. Mr. Fisher even pointed out in a voice verging on a sob that Curtis had been driven to Trenton and back over a rough, bumpy road when he was "weary from long questioning."

Mr. Curtis did make a lot of statements. From the testimony of Mr. Wilson, it appears that Curtis was very busy. The Norfolk man had a new story for every conference. The conferences were held all night on May 12, then they were skipped over for the day and resumed again on the night of the thirteenth. Mr. Wilson, however, said he had to stay awake just as long as Curtis.

The government man said that so far as he knew Curtis was not a prisoner during the eight days he was at Lindbergh's home.

"I believe he could have gone to Norfolk if he had insisted on going," said Mr. Wilson. "Yes, he was there voluntarily. However, after May 15 when I got the report that he had tried to commit suicide, he was under guard. I suggested that a guard be placed over him for his own protection."

Turn to Jersey Police.

The trend of the hoax trial turned toward the New Jersey state police as the state drew near the close of its case. Two of the afternoon witnesses were policemen. They were subjected to a strong cross-examination by Mr. Fisher, who attempted to prove that they were lax in their investigation of the Lindbergh crime and that they were only interested in proving "Curtis to be a damned liar."

Sergt. Moffett, the Newark police detective assigned to make an excursion along the New Jersey shore with Curtis in order to check his story of contacts with "Hilda," "John," "Dynamite," and other members of the alleged kidnaping gang, was one of them. He related the trips made with Curtis to Cape May and Wildwood, N. J., the visit to the alleged houses where Curtis met the kidnapers and "overheard" the radio messages of Hilda and Inez Larsen, etc.

The state produced both Mrs. Edna Larsen and her husband, Otto Edwin John Larsen. They were an innocent appearing couple and seemed surprised to find themselves in the Curtis hoax case. Mrs. Larsen is a motherly looking woman in her late thirties. Both testified they knew nothing about Curtis nor the Lindbergh kidnaping. The husband said he and his wife had gone to a town political meeting the night Curtis said he called on "Hilda" at their home. Larsen expressed the opinion that if Curtis had tried to enter the house he would have had a difficult time.

"My dog was in the house," said Larsen, "and Curtis would have had to chloroform him to get in there."

Howard D. Cates, owner of the first Cape May house, pointed out by Curtis, testified that he had not lived there for some time and that the place never had been used by any one answering the description of the men and women named by Curtis.

J. Morris Price, owner of the second Cape May house, was equally certain Curtis was leading the police on a cold trail. Price, however, lives in Plymouth, Pa., and only goes to Cape May later in the summer. He testified he had not been in the house in several months.

The implication from the testimony concerning the Cape May and Wildwood excursion was that Curtis had been studying the telephone book for addresses or else that he had a thorough knowledge of the town from some previous experience there. Attorney Fisher, for the defense, attempted to discredit Sergt. Moffett's testimony and show him up as a poor investigator. Mr. Fisher also had an idea about telephone books.

"Sergeant," he said, "I think you went down there convinced that Curtis was a damn liar and that about all you did was to look for the kidnapers in the telephone book."

Sergt. Moffett insisted rather wryly that such was not the case.

The last witness of the day was Capt. John J. Lamb of the New Jersey state police. He was reading a long account obtained from Curtis concerning the Norfolk man's entry into the kidnaping case when the adjournment came.

MOTHER, GIRL KILLED AS AUTO DIVES IN RIVER

Mrs. Sophie Laudont, 40 years old, 3441 South Morgan street, and her daughter, Lillian, 11, were killed last night when the automobile in which they were riding plunged into the Mohawk river following a headon collision one mile east of Little Falls, N. Y., according to word received from Utica, N. Y. John Laudont, husband of the dead woman, was thrown from the car by the impact and was not seriously injured. John Laudont Jr., his son, and Peter Serba of Utica were rescued from the wrecked machine by firemen from Little Falls. Laudont is a grocer.

Miss Florence Vaughan, 22 years old, of Kankakee, Ill., was probably fatally injured early this morning when the automobile in which she was riding with Clyde Karr, also of Kankakee, struck a street car at 18th street and Michigan avenue. The automobile, which was driven by Karr, who is said to be the son of a Kankakee minister, hit the front end of the street car, caromed against a traffic light post and then bounded off against a woman pedestrian, Mrs. Margaret Lee, 119 East 18th street. She suffered a broken nose. Miss Vaughan received a fractured skull and other injuries, from which hospital attendants said she probably would die. Karr's right arm was fractured. All were taken to St. Luke's hospital.

Mrs. Margaret Sulkey, 45 years old, and her sister, Jeanette, 35 years old, school teachers of Niagara Falls, N. Y., were injured yesterday morning when the automobile in which they were driving to the Democratic convention at the Stadium collided with another machine at the inner drive in Grant park and 11th street. They were taken to St. Luke's hospital with Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Tarfy of Detroit, in whose car they were riding. Miss Lela Hackney, Wellington, Kas., driver of the other car, told police her sedan struck the Tarfy auto when she swerved to avoid a collision with a motor bus. Two automobile fatalities in Cook county yesterday increased toll since Jan. 1 to 542. The victims:

Carlos La Ponte, 55 years old, 900 South Irving avenue. Died at the Mother Cabrini hospital from hurts sustained June 21 when he was struck by the car of John Rusnak, 2151 West Huron street, at Western avenue and Polk street.

Unidentified man, 50 years old. Killed late last night by the car of a hit and run driver in Touhy avenue, one-half mile east of Niles. Twenty minutes later John A. Swart, 42, a salesman of 2503 Prairie avenue, Evanston, was found in an Evanston garage by a police squad. He admitted he had run down the man and explained he failed to stop because he believed the man was a robber who was trying to stop him in the road. He was held.

SUSPECT SLAIN BY POLICE; TOO SLOW ON DRAW

Gary [Popeye] Carson, 30 years old, suspected member of a hoodlum gang, was too slow on the draw last night. He was shot down and killed by two policemen as he attempted to pull a gun on them in La Salle street just north of Division street.

MILDRED FLANNIGAN.

Immediately after the shooting police chased and captured an ex-convict and his woman companion as they drove away from the scene. They also raided a second story flat at 1127 North La Salle street which Carson had just left, arrested another man, a convict now on parole, and seized a quantity of nitroglycerin, fuses, burglars' tools, and a shotgun.

The policemen who killed Carson were Harry Miller and John Walsh, working as a mayor's detail out of the commissioner's office. For two weeks, with Detective Harry Lang, they had been watching the La Salle street flat. Last night Robert Savio, 33, the ex-convict, and Miss Mildred Flannigan, 25, both of 911 North State street, drew up. Shortly afterward Carson emerged from the building.

As Detective Miller halted him, Carson tried to draw his gun. Miller and Walsh were quicker. They pumped four bullets into him, causing his death a few minutes later.

Meanwhile, Savio and Miss Flannigan started to drive away, but they were nabbed by Policemen H. J. Tierney, Martin McCarthy, and Matthew Cunningham of the Hudson avenue station. Miller, Lang, and Walsh then raided the second story flat, where they seized Ernie Neisch, 35, paroled convict, and the criminal contraband.

EDITH M'CORMICK CLOSING HOME ON LAKE SHORE DRIVE

Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick is closing her home at 1000 Lake Shore drive temporarily and may spend the summer at a hotel in Chicago or leave the city on a trip, it was said by her secretary last night.

Articles of value, such as her silver, are being put in storage, as is customary in the McCormick household during the summer, the secretary said.

"I don't know when she is going to leave. She may not leave at all. Her plans are quite undecided," the secretary added. "There's no reason other than that things are getting a bit too much for her. She's tired, and she wants a rest."

In reply to a question as to whether hard times prompted Mrs. McCormick to take up an abode elsewhere with less upkeep entailed, the secretary said:

"O, no, that has nothing to do with it. Of course she will not lease the house or anything like that. All the furnishings will remain exactly as they are, the rugs and everything. Only such things as the silver will be put in storage."

Mrs. McCormick has not left her home for years except for a short stay in a hospital two years ago, and for periods at her villa in Lake Forest during summers.

U. OF C. FACULTY MEMBERS GO TO EUROPE TO STUDY

Twenty-five members of the University of Chicago faculty have left the campus during the last two weeks bound for Europe for research and vacations. Four of the group will study the German political campaign. Prof. Charles E. Merriam, chairman of the department of political science, has gone to Berlin for this purpose. Prof. Samuel Harper of the department of history will divide his time between Berlin and Moscow. Prof. Harold Lasswell of the department of political science will study the technique of political propaganda in Berlin and Moscow, and Prof. Samuel H. Nerlove of the school of business will observe financial conditions in Germany.

Trade Group Asks for Illinois Central Subways

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce yesterday petitioned the Illinois commerce commission to order the Illinois Central railway to construct 32 street subways under the tracks between 70th and 83d streets on the South Chicago branch. The project would cost $12,000,000, it was said.

After hearing arguments by State Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, for the chamber of commerce, and Vernon W. Foster, counsel for the Illinois Central, the commission continued the hearing to July 27.

"Who's Kiddin' Who?"

We believe this is ethical advertising—

Because we are doing you a real favor by showing you HOW TO SAVE MONEY.

Critics of Auburn's new Merchandising Program have said many untrue things about it—but that has not stopped its success. The public is rapidly learning that Auburn is giving much greater value for much less cost.

Whether you buy an Auburn car or not, we are going to explain something to you that will make you money.

Here it is—

When you trade in your old car with ANY dealer on a new car, the only thing that counts is—HOW GOOD a car you get for the CASH you pay.

For example:

A man came to our store—

He knew we were selling these NEW 100 Horse Power Straight Eights, current models, for prices that compare with the smallest and cheapest Fours and Sixes.

He asked us: "What will you ALLOW me for my old car?"

We replied—

"For your car and $656 this new Auburn is yours."

He persisted in asking, "How MUCH for my old car?"

(You see, he is like many others. He has been led to BELIEVE that the allowance on his used car is the important thing. If you have the same wrong impression we want to show you WHY it is wrong).

We asked this man if he objected to telling us what other car he was considering and how much the competitor offered him for his used car.

He replied: "So-and-so is offering me $300."

Then he said: "Your car delivers for $856 and you tell me I can have it for my car and $656 cash.

"Why, you are only allowing me $200 on my used car, while So-and-so is allowing me $300."

Now, as a BUSINESS proposition (and that is the only way to buy a car), study the figures below and see for yourself HOW MUCH BETTER Auburn's proposition is:

COMPETITOR "SIX" Standard Sedan 116½ in. wheelbase	AUBURN Straight EIGHT 5-Pass. Sedan 127 in. wheelbase—100 H.P.
$1078 delivered price	$856 delivered price
300 dealer's allowance on used car	200 Auburn's allowance on used car
$778 Cash, buyer pays	$656 Cash, buyer pays

It may LOOK like the competitor was giving the buyer a better deal, because he is allowing $300 as against Auburn's $200.

The facts are, however, the buyer actually pays $122 LESS CASH for the Auburn—and the buyer not only pays LESS cash but also gets a much BETTER automobile. He gets an EIGHT instead of a "Six." He gets more Horse Power, longer wheelbase, a roomier, finer, better performing car! The foregoing example shows you how Auburn's new program saves you money on cars BELOW Auburn's quality and price class.

Following is an example of how much money Auburn saves you on cars comparable to Auburn's VALUE and PERFORMANCE:

COMPETITOR Straight Eight Standard 5-Pass. Sedan. 126 in. wheelbase	AUBURN Straight Eight Standard 5-Pass. Sedan. 100 H.P., 127 in. wheelbase
$1802 delivered price	$856 delivered price
360 dealer's allowance on used car	200 Auburn's allowance on used car
$1442 Cash, buyer pays	$656 Cash, buyer pays

The buyer of an Auburn pays $786 LESS CASH and again gets a BETTER product.

Auburn has "taken out all the water." Which means—Auburn's new Merchandising Program could not have been possible on the old basis. The factory—distributor—dealer—and salesman—each and every one is contributing to this program by sacrificing some portion of his own profits, in order to get Auburn cars from the factory to you at these present low prices.

Don't be confused by CAMOUFLAGE and BUNK. Only ONE thing counts. Why pay MORE cash and get LESS car, than Auburn offers?

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

SOCIALISM OR AMERICANISM.

That the so-called federal economy bill has finally emerged from parliamentary entanglements and passed by a three to one vote in the senate is something to be grateful for, if not precisely a glorious victory for economy. It will reduce expenditures in the executive department by somewhere between 150 and 165 millions and this saving is not to be scorned, though it falls far short of the drastic retrenchment in total federal expenditure the situation urgently calls for. Perhaps it may be taken as a sign that the tide of public spending is turning, that the wave of protest sweeping the country has begun at last to lap Capitol hill.

The next session of congress must show a different attitude toward federal expenditure. We think it will. There will of course be renewed demands for public money, new talk abut "soaking the rich," with all the familiar nostrums of economic quackery. But the defense of the country from this destruction was little prepared during this session. It will be ready, we believe, for the next. The demand for retrenchment and tax relief already is heard from coast to coast. The voice of the spenders has dominated at this session. The voice of the country is going to dominate the next.

More important than any other development is the increasing recognition that retrenchment is not a mere question of dollars. It is a question of saving the American system of self-government. Some of the proponents of more expenditure are simply politicians exploiting suffering and discontent for votes. Many of the legislators who have voted with them were following the path of least resistance, listening to the loudest howl. But men like La Guardia, La Follette, and the so-called progressives want to destroy private enterprise and individualism and replace it with a socialist autocracy. They want a government at Washington that will rule every activity of the people, take over the whole resources of the nation, do all the thinking for all the people, and put them under a tyranny of the bureaucrat and the politician.

This is the certain culmination of the huge expenditures they favor under pretense of relief. The issue is Americanism vs. bolshevism. That issue must be fought out now. The time is well chosen for the revolutionist, but we have faith in the awakened understanding and loyalty of the American people. They will not surrender their heritage of liberty. They will fight their way back to prosperity on the firm footing of American principles.

THE POSTOFFICE AS EXHIBIT A.

The increase in postal rates which becomes effective on July 6 seems to have induced a number of large users of the mails to try to find ways to avoid the higher cost of doing business. The postoffice, in alarm, has issued a warning that it has a monopoly and that its monopoly is protected by criminal statutes. A business man may deliver his own bills or send his delivery men around town with them, but he cannot combine with another business man to maintain a bill delivery system and no one can set himself up in the letter delivery business in competition with the government. The penalties are severe.

Here is an interesting survival from the days of the king's monopolies. Here is also a foretaste of what must happen if the social and economic planners who are filling the magazines with their ideas these days have their way. The government will in effect grant and protect monopolies in supplying all essential materials and services to the American people as it now monopolizes the mails. No one may enter the field without permission, and permission will, of course, be withheld nine times out of ten. For fear of upsetting the economic apple cart no one who has an idea that he can provide services or supplies at a less cost than the established monopolies demand will be allowed to risk his time and money in the endeavor even though the interest of the consumers is also the interest of the new competitor.

It is curious that this doctrine should have gained such widespread approval among the forward looking and the liberal, so called. They rail against the iniquities of government and yet seek to expand the sphere of government. They know that postoffice charges are needlessly high because the department wastes its income in maintaining political postmasters and in preserving political rural routes laid out in the days of horse and buggy delivery, but they want to extend that kind of management to all industry and commerce. As forward lookers, the planners ought to know that the pinnacle of technological advance is never going to be achieved, but they propose a system of economic restraints which assumes that the last advance has been made and that it is more important to reorganize society to make the most of our present knowledge and skill than to leave society free to exploit the incalculable wealth of future discoveries and inventions. They are progressives without faith in progress. If they had been in the saddle twenty years ago they would have discouraged the movies as a threat to the theater, discouraged the automobile as a threat to the oat growers, discouraged long distance telephony as a threat to the telegraph, and discouraged the radio as a threat to the theaters and newspapers. The motto of these liberals is "No Admittance" and the symbol of these progressives is the dead hand. They are, in reality, the party of black reaction. Their ideal of economic organization is the king's monopolies. Behold the postoffice department as Exhibit A, a monopoly protected in its gross inefficiencies by the criminal law and the penitentiaries.

IS THIS ADIOS?

Although the Anti-Saloon league has not taken the trouble to make a series of farewell appearances it seems to have reached for its hat, the tall black hat with the border and drape of crêpe which has so well topped the blue nose, bristling eyebrows and the bad temper wrinkles of prohibition. The league has withdrawn, effacing itself from the scene and giving place to the American Business Men's Prohibition foundation.

The smell may be the same under any name, although otherwise unlike a rose, but there is an evident desire to convince the people that the place, like Jake's in the old days, has changed hands. If the blue noses came upon better days no doubt the league would reappear with all its familiar figures and practices, but it has at least confessed its present day futility.

The league had become so tainted in public opinion that its reputation was recognized even in prohibition circles as a liability. For a year or more there has been a desire to toss the Jonah overboard. The opprobrium attached to the organization might not have been in itself sufficient cause, but the league had reached the point where it could not collect. The books at Westerville, O., indicated that the boys had worked out the vein of gold and did not know where to find any more pay dirt.

The first and hardest blow was when the Rockefellers, having contributed $350,000, stopped because the conviction of Anderson, the New York superintendent of the league, for third degree forgery, caused a doubt to arise in their minds. When the league could not make collections its usefulness to the cause became at least doubtful.

The elect might have stood up against popular disapproval and their own record, but not with an empty till. No one need be fooled into believing that the league will not be back on the scene if it gets a chance, but for the time it has yielded to an organization which is supposed to start fresh, pure and sweet.

If that does not work we say adios to an era. It is stamped on the history of the United States, an episode in its record which will attract the historian for its curiosities of behavior.

FOOTBALL BROADCASTS.

Eastern college athletic business managements have come to the conclusion that publicity hurts gate receipts and propose for the coming football season to restrict it. They are not concerned about the purity of the college game this time, which is a novelty in that section. It is a question of frank commercialism, which is more of a novelty. The misgivings are not that football may be too much commercialized, but too little. Something of an off season is anticipated for reasons which require no explanation. Football—another explanation not required—supports all the other sports. Its gate receipts provide the funds for nonproductive sports.

The east proposes, and the west is flirting with the idea, to stop broadcasting of football games in the interest of a higher paid attendance. The theory that the radio will cut down the attendance is consistent with many other academic political and economic doctrines. If the idea were to decrease outside interest in the games and confine them to the student bodies the theory would be excellent. The less publicity the sport gets the more it will be restricted to the students. Even the alumni will lose interest and that source of annoyance to college amateurism will be removed.

The radio has been the reliance of the person who could not get to the game. It has stimulated his interest to see what is described to him. He has not taken it as a preferred substitute. It has been a consolation, not a substitute. The people at the radio Saturday afternoon for a football game are people keenly interested in the sport. They are the people who, when it is possible, fill the seats at the game. The wise collegers propose to deprive them of an incentive to their interest, of a pleasure which makes the fall the exciting season of the year for them, and to stop the publicity which a sound business would pay to get. The alumni of the colleges are constantly urged to loyal contributions. They are widely scattered over the country. They are interested in the radio broadcast. The athletic managements propose to let them out.

The college theory seems to be that the way to attract an interested public is to displease it. How high is higher education?

Editorial of the Day

HALF HIS MIND.

[New York Sun.]

When Orville Wright visited Kitty Hawk on Thursday to inspect the memorial being raised there to honor that historic first flight of Dec. 17, 1903, half his mind must have been on the rude flying machine in which he and Wilbur triumphed over Newton's apple. If so, his thoughts traveled across the Atlantic to the British Science museum at South Kensington, where an American relic of the first historical importance is exhibited by the British.

That this is so is to the credit of the officials of the British Science museum, who quickly recognized the importance of the airplane turned over to their care; it is much less to the credit of the officials of the Smithsonian institution, who declined to correct handsomely an erroneous attribution on the Langley flying machine and to make proper amends to Orville Wright for the slights put upon the Kitty Hawk flight.

STILL CHASING HOOKWORMS.

WHILE hookworm disease has become less prevalent than formerly there is still far more of it than is good for us.

Dr. C. W. Stiles, who discovered the American hookworm a generation ago and who started our effort to control it, offers a plan for carrying on, now that there is a disposition to stop by the roadside. The plan proposes to use the schools and especially those in the country and the smaller towns. The school teacher is to group her pupils into five classes.

In group A are all those that appear to be backward and the repeaters, those who fail to pass on from lower to upper grade at least once yearly.

In group B are all the puny children, and especially those that are pale and have large abdomens.

In group C are all girls who are maturing slowly. In the upper grades the girls of a given age should be at least a year ahead of the boys of the same age. They should be brighter and snappier, should learn better and more quickly, should be socially more advanced, more considerate of others, less centered on their individual aims, and larger and better grown. There is something wrong with the girl who is not ahead of the boys of her age.

In group D are placed all the children who say they have had an attack of ground itch or dew poison within one year.

Group E contains all pupils not in the other four groups.

The parents of all children that the teachers place in groups A, B, C, and D are persuaded to collect samples and send them to the laboratory of the state health department. The laboratory supplies the container and gives instruction in methods of collecting and shipping the specimen.

Practically every child with hookworm will be in one of those four groups. Since hookworm is most prevalent among school children this method will find more than 90 per cent of the sufferers from hookworm in the community. The children found by this laboratory test to have hookworm would be treated by the family physician.

The treatment of hookworm has become simplified. It is easily procured, easily taken. It is reasonably safe and fairly efficient.

NOTHING TO WORRY OVER.

C. D. E. writes: I am nearly 61 years old. I was always stout and healthy. About seven years ago my hands began to get nervous, noticeable only in writing, and with no pain. I sleep and feel good. Please give me cause and cure.

REPLY.

Your history indicates that you have paralysis agitans. Your writing does not indicate that it has progressed far. Nobody knows the cause of this trouble when it does not follow some brain disease. Nobody knows a cure for it. Fortunately, in most instances, it is very slowly progressive and is almost without tendency to destroy life. Most persons who have it live beyond three score and ten. In fact, they seem to hold on to life quite as well as do others of their age groups.

PLAN PLEASANT DREAMS.

C. G. A. writes: What is the cause of excessive dreaming during sleep?

REPLY.

Nervous excitement, worry, anxiety.

Dreaming is just as natural as thinking. When a man complains of his dreaming it is because of the vividness and the generally unpleasant subjects of which he dreams. If he can overcome his anxieties and fears and can limit his thinking to subjects that give pleasure, his dreams will bring happiness and relaxation.

PROBABLY NOT CANCER.

E. B. writes that for several months he has had a dark line, the size of a pin, and one-fourth as long, on his upper lip. It is not growing and it is not sore. He wants to know if it is cancer.

REPLY.

Nothing in your description suggests cancer.

WATER MAINS.

Chicago, June 19.—[Friend of the People.]—For the last several years we have been trying to get city water installed in this street. There is a water main on 83d street, which is one-half block south of us, and another on Western avenue, which is one block east of us. Petition was filed about three years ago, was brought up, and was not protested. On Nov. 30, 1931, we received notice of assessments. We are ready and willing to pay this assessment, and with the water mains so close it seems ridiculous that in a city like Chicago, within ten miles of the loop, there should be so much difficulty in getting a few water pipes laid. G. W. F.

This office is in receipt of communication requesting that measures be taken to have water main laid in Artesian avenue, 82d to 83d street, wherein the writer states he is willing to pay the special assessment therefor. Plans and estimates of cost for water mains, laid by contract, are made in the water pipe extension division, which division also furnishes the engineering and inspection for the construction of such mains. The spreading and collecting of the assessments are handled by the board of local improvements. An estimate for laying this pipe was forwarded to the board of local improvements by this office on April 13, 1931, and it is understood that special assessment proceedings were confirmed on Dec. 23, 1931. The matter is being referred to the board of local improvements for its attention.

ORAL AGREEMENTS.

Wheaton, Ill., June 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A represents a group consisting of four people. B represents a group consisting of two persons. A and B make a verbal agreement. The deal is closed and B lives up to the stipulations. 1. Would every member of A's group be obliged to keep faith with B even though there were but two actual spokesmen for A's group, the others keeping silent? Would every participant of both groups be bound to their promises? 2. Is there a statute of limitations that governs verbal agreements, and if so, what period of time must elapse before such an agreement is outlawed? H. L. P.

1. Yes, on your statement that A and B were parties to the agreement. You do not give us the basis on which you make this statement.

2. The limitation period is five years.

RITCHIE'S THE MAN!

(Sung, quite naturally, to the tune of "Maryland, My Maryland.")

Ne'er since our nation was begun,
Ritchie's the Man!
Ritchie's the Man!
Did troubles pile up to the sun,
Ritchie's the Man!
Ritchie's the Man!
But we'll remember Washington,
Our Lincoln and our Jefferson,
And now again comes such a one,
Ritchie's the Man!
Ritchie's the Man!

Our country needs a leader new,
Ritchie's the Man!
Ritchie's the Man!
Who at this time can lead us through,
Ritchie's the Man!
Ritchie's the Man!
We'll make a choice we will not rue,
We'll name a leader strong and true,
One who is wise and valiant, too,
Ritchie's the Man!
Ritchie's the Man!

There comes a hope in our despair,
Ritchie's the Man!
Ritchie's the Man!
Through all the storm he'll stand four square,
Ritchie's the Man!
Ritchie's the Man!
We're facing now dismay and care,
So this our earnest, pleading prayer,
God send us one who'll do and dare,
Ritchie's the Man!
Ritchie's the Man!

TALES OF ATTEMPTS to bribe delegates with big money are now running wild all around the Democratic convention. Anyhow, the Republicans can point with pride to the fact that no such wickedness cropped out at the Republican gathering. We heard an attempt at bribery during the Republican show, but it didn't get far. A man standing in the aisle leaned over and whispered to a man in front of us, "I'll give you two bits for your seat." "Oh," said the man, getting up and waving the briber to his seat, "I don't want to cheat you. Give me a cigaret and we'll call it square."

THE REPEAL FACTIONS of the convention have been divided into wet, wringing wet, and damp. Might it not be well to have still another sort called the dew-drops, a dew-drop being one who wants the 18th changed sufficiently so that he can have a little brandy in his mince pie Thanksgiving day and a little wine now and then on his doctor's order?

THE SENATE VOTED yesterday that the United States should pay $40,000 to send a delegate to take part in the international economic conference. And we hope the first thing our delegate asks the economic conference is how the U. S. is going to get its forty thousand bucks back.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

How is sound from a distant source conveyed to the ear?

[This question will be repeated and answered in this space tomorrow.]

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION.

If a person riding in any public conveyance, such as a street car, bus or electric suburban train, walks toward the rear door as the conveyance is coming to a stop, why is the sensation that of walking uphill?

ANSWER.

This effect is due to a property called inertia, possessed by all material bodies. The inertia of an object is the name given to that property by virtue of which it resists any change of speed. The vehicle is slowing down but the person's inertia tends to keep him going with unabated speed—consequently as he walks to the rear of the slowing up vehicle his legs have to exert an additional force to slow him up as the vehicle slows up. In walking uphill one's legs are called on to exert additional force likewise and the sensations as far as the leg muscles are concerned are identical.

If one walks forward as the train slows down the legs have to exert a backward force to slow down the body as the train slows down. This sensation is just like that of walking downhill.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 30, 1916.

EL PASO, Tex.—Amid the screaming of horns of the American motorcycle squadron, the cheers of the motorcycle troopers and the infantry, and the yells of several thousand civilians, there returned to American soil this afternoon the tattered remnant of Troop C and Troop K of the Tenth United States cavalry. Twenty-three Negro troopers, two of them wounded, heard themselves applauded as Negroes never before have been applauded by Texas crowds. Their white companion, Lem Spillsbury, the Mormon scout, beamed as happily as the others through his netted whiskers while he crossed over the river in the baggy clothes supplied him by his captors. Only a few minutes before the troopers filed across the international border, escorted from Juarez by a Mexican guard, there had arrived in El Paso over another route the only surviving officer of the ill fated band which left Gen. Pershing's command and encountered the superior forces of Gen. Gomez at Carrizal ten days ago. This was Capt. Lewis S. Morey, who staggered away from the battlefield nearly exhausted from his wounds, wrote doggedly his report to the commanding officer, gave it to his unwounded men, ordered them to leave him, and lay down to die.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—With Washington watchfully waiting, Mexico is openly increasing its aggressiveness against the United States along Gen. Pershing's lines of communication in Chihuahua state.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—The First Illinois cavalry, Col. Milton J. Foreman commanding, struck its tents tonight. It will entrain tomorrow afternoon and get under way for the Rio Grande border. It is bound for Brownsville.

BERLIN.—The fighting on the western front attained proportions of considerable violence at various points, the war office announced, but attacks of the British and French were repulsed everywhere. Waves of gas have given no results. Artillery fighting attained great intensity at certain points.

LONDON.—The Russians again are hammering their way toward Kolomea.

ROME.—The Italian advance continues on the Trentino front. The official report says that in the Arsa valley the Italians stormed Fort Mattassone and carried the ridge of Monte Trappela. The occupation of Pedescala in the Astico valley by Italian forces is also announced.

WISDOM OF JOHN STUART MILL.

Chicago, June 26.—Eighty-seven years ago John Stuart Mill, in his "Principles of Political Economy," said:

"We now reach the consideration of the grounds and limits of the principle of 'laissez faire'—or noninterference by government.

"Whatever theory we adopt respecting the foundation of the social union there is a circle around every human being which no government ought to be permitted to overstep; there is a part of the life of every person of years of discretion within which the individuality of that person ought to reign uncontrolled either by any other individual or by the public collectively. Scarcely any degree of utility short of absolute necessity will justify prohibitory regulation, unless it can also be made to recommend itself to the general conscience.

"A general objection to government agency is that every increase of the functions developing on the government is an increase of its power, both in the form of authority and, still more, in the indirect form of influence. Though a better organization of governments would greatly diminish the force of the objection to the mere multiplication of their duties it would still remain true that in all the advanced communities the great majority of things are worse done by the intervention of government than the individuals most interested in the matter would do them if left to themselves.

"Letting alone, in short, should be the practice; every departure from it, unless required by some great good, is a certain evil."

I believe that the above quotation, as applied to present governmental procedure [including the most noble experiment], needs no further comment.

A WORD ON THE ART INSTITUTE.

Chicago, June 14.—Isn't it strange that those who are spending so much time and money to make our renowned city more beautiful and delightful to the residents and its visitors should entirely overlook the Art institute? A building which houses priceless treasures, art, and beauty, with an exterior which makes the native cringe every time he looks at it. A settling place of dust and smoke and roosting place of pigeons for years, and never cleaned.

Now that people desire work so badly, and everything is being beautified for the World's Fair, why not get out the cleaning equipment and give our lovely Art institute "the once over"? Why disfigure the beautiful lake front with an unsightly building which would be beautiful when cleaned? J. A. B.

ANOTHER POSTMASTER.

Iowa City, Ia., June 20.—Today's CHICAGO TRIBUNE announces the house votes a 100 million dollar pay roll saving. Here in Iowa City a new postmaster was named yesterday. The postoffice has been run in an efficient manner by the assistant postmaster since the last postmaster died some time ago. Is this economy, appointing another politician to sit in a chair? If all the postmasters all over the United States were ousted that would spell economy; not appointing more. MRS. E. C. SMITH.

TO ENCOURAGE HOME BREWING.

Centerfield, O., June 27.—Are the wets trying to bring back the legal traffic in alcohol with the old saloon and brewer domination of politics or are they sincerely trying to give the people drinks without sacrificing any gains already made?

If their aim is the latter my proposed amendment to the constitution should meet with approval. Here it is:

"The right of any American citizen to make and drink in the privacy of his home or bona fide legal residence malt, vinous, spirituous, or distilled liquors of any alcoholic content whatever shall not be denied or prohibited by law.

"This article shall in no way conflict with article 18 prohibiting the sale or transportation of alcoholic beverages or their manufacture in any other place than a legal residence."

If adopted this amendment will forever take liquor out of politics, block return of the saloon, eliminate the bootlegger and speakeasy, put an end to graft, racketeering and hijacking in connection with booze, stop all arguments in congress over booze tax and state rights concerning liquor, give statesmen a chance to consider the more vital problems of the times and give the people the very first real personal liberty they ever enjoyed. MRS. ROBERT BURGESS.

THE ORIGINAL HUTCHINS MAN.

IN GOOD COMPANY.

Chicago, June 25.—Your editorial "Now the Democratic Turn" is so careful and so sensible and clear as to be unanswerable—my sincere congratulations and many thanks.

Your thesis regarding the 18th amendment and continued bureaucratic encroachments, rapidly becoming intolerable and fast breeding revolutions, is the same as that of those two stalwart statesmen, Alfred E. Smith and Nicholas Murray Butler. J. BAIN THOMPSON.

SCHOOL TEACHERS AS WAITRESSES.

Chicago, June 21.—While I have a sincere hope that the school teachers receive their pay in full and at once, I think it is a poor policy for an official of their organization to encourage them to try to secure the work of waitresses at this time. Girls who have followed this profession for years are now walking the streets hungry. A school teacher's salary yearly is three times what a waitress earns and sometimes ten, and she should be satisfied with that even if she has to wait for it. I hope the catering managers of the various hotels and restaurants will bear this in mind when in need of extra workers.

CONGRESS BEGINS UNTANGLING FOR AN EARLY FINISH

Relief and Supply Bills Still Undecided.

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—Two thousand army officers and a few billion grasshoppers were all that stood today as obstacles to the approval of the appropriation bills for the next fiscal year.

Controversies over public works and loans to private industry still stood in the way of agreement on the relief measure.

With the economy bill passed by the senate last night, the congressional situation began to resolve itself from a tangle into a straight path leading to adjournment.

Of the eleven appropriation bills only the war department and agriculture bills were giving trouble.

Conferees on the war department measure were locked over the question of cutting the regular army officers personnel from 12,000 to 10,000. The house made the cut; the senate emphatically rejected it.

Argues Over Grasshoppers.

Conferees on the agriculture bill were at a similar standstill over the $1,450,000 for grasshopper control which the senate voted into the measure and which the house refused to accept.

By mid-afternoon today, the President had signed the District of Columbia bill, making three appropriation measures which have become law. The first deficiency bill was passed in February and the interior department bill, last April.

Three more appropriation bills—those for the independent offices, legislative establishments, and navy department—awaited the President's signature.

The state, justice, commerce, and labor supply bill conference report was before the house, with house concurrence and possibly senate concurrence looked for before adjournmnt for the day.

The second deficiency bill was passed by the senate following a brief, but vigorous debate, over the inclusion in it of $40,000 to pay the cost of American participation in a European economic conference.

Struggle Over Relief Bill.

With the appropriation bills headed toward a safe finish before the close of the fiscal year at midnight tomorrow, attention centered therefore on the conference where differences between the Garner and Wagner relief bills are being ironed out.

Both sides, it appeared, were making concessions, with eventual agreement in view. The senate conferees were holding out for the 500 million dollar public works provision of the Wagner bill as against the one billion 120 millions in the Garner bill. The Wagner bill provides for projects already authorized; it takes over 192 millions of work carried in the appropriation bills; and it leaves 177 millions of projects to be selected by the President from authorized works.

The treasury kept in touch with the conferees and during the day suggested that instead of the long term bond issue provided in the Wagner bill the public works be financed by a current appropriation, the money to be raised by short term notes or as the treasury sees fit.

COWLES ELECTED HEAD OF MERGED CIVIC BUREAUS

A further step was taken yesterday in the merging of the Civic federation and the Chicago Bureau of Public Efficiency. The aim is a "more effective citizen agency to promote governmental efficiency and economy, to guard against wasteful public expenditures and excessive taxes, and to furnish the public with accurate information concerning governmental revenues and expenditures."

Following receipt from the secretary of state of a charter authorizing "the Civic federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency" to operate as a corporation not for pecuniary profit, the trustees of the new organization met in the Union League club, and elected the following officers:

President, Alfred Cowles; vice presidents, Bruce Johnstone, Graham Aldis, and Sewell L. Avery; treasurer, Melvin A. Traylor; executive secretary, Douglas Sutherland; director, Harris S. Kesler.

The following were named as the executive committee of the board of trustees: Graham Aldis, Alfred Cowles, Victor Elting, Walter L. Fisher, Bruce Johnstone, and George B. McKibbin.

Agent of Bogus Circus Is Held to Grand Jury

Jack McElroy, alias R. R. Grady, 29 years old, was held to the Du Page county grand jury yesterday in bonds of $10,000 on a charge of operating a confidence game, by Police Magistrate Frank Hilliard in Elmhurst. Grady, representing himself as the advance agent of a non-existent circus, collected fees "for advertising space" from merchants of Brookfield, Congress Park and Elmhurst.

FIFTH OF ALL U. S. BUILDING WORK IN WASHINGTON

Cost of 12 Projects Set at $63,600,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—A checkup today disclosed that about one-fifth of all the federal building construction work now going on in the United States is concentrated in the District of Columbia, where senators and representatives live while congress is in session. At the present time a total of 12 buildings, involving an estimated cost of $63,600,000, are in various stages of construction in Washington. Another, costing $11,250,000, is slated to be under contract before the end of the week.

The latest figures disclose that the treasury's building program for the country included 339 projects under contract the first of this month. The total cost of these projects, which included five of the 12 Washington buildings, was given as $283,301,100. The five district projects included in this group will cost $44,758,000 to complete.

Cost Exceeds 18 Millions.

The other seven district projects are being constructed by the architect of the capitol independently of the treasury public buildings program. The total cost of these projects is estimated at $18,865,000.

The total cost of the combined treasury and architects' building program, counting only projects and contracts at this time, is set at 302 million dollars. The cost of the 12 district projects is estimated at $63,600,000, about one-fifth of the entire total.

The district's construction program is supplying work for 1,674 persons.

Just how much money will be expended on the Washington construction program during the next fiscal year is still undetermined. The treasury plans to expend $15,000,000 on its six projects. The architect of the capitol is expected to expend not less than $5,000,000 on the seven building projects under his jurisdiction. The treasury has asked for a total of 123 million dollars for all its building activities during the 1933 fiscal year. About one-seventh of all the funds expended next year for federal building construction will be spent on projects located in this city.

List of Projects.

The twelve projects on which work is going ahead at this time are the department of agriculture, $12,200,000; archives building, $8,750,000; department of justice, $11,000,000, superstructure work just beginning; post office department, $10,200,000, work well along; public health service building, $908,250; house office building, nearly completed, $5,582,901; Supreme court building, $3,231,980; addition to library of congress, $1,123,000; new wing for the senate office building, $2,146,669; congressional garage, terrace, and fountain, $806,001; conservatory and director's residence, botanic gardens, $739,166, and the lighting system for the capitol grounds, $85,979.

The thirteenth building will be built for the interstate commerce commission and the labor department. Its estimated cost is $11,250,000.

TELLS OF LOVE AFFAIR WITH HUTTON ACCUSER

Testifies at Breach of Promise Trial.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. Gladys Cassill, sister of the complainant, and Paul Marshall, a health instructor who testified he had been divorced by his wife as a result of a love affair with the complainant, testified in Miss Myrtle St. Pierre's $200,000 suit for breach of promise against Dave Hutton today.

Mrs. Cassill, a good looking widow, after concluding her testimony as a witness for Hutton, who is the husband of the Rev. Aimee McPherson-Hutton, was cross-examined by Miss St. Pierre's attorneys.

During this cross-fire she admitted she had thrown a goldfish bowl at her sister, after which, Mrs. Cassill said, "Myrtle knocked me down and out."

The quarrel arose, Mrs. Cassill said, because Miss St. Pierre had accused her of undue friendliness with Miss St. Pierre's second husband, George Street. "I only hugged him or kissed him in a sisterly-in-law fashion," Mrs. Cassill said.

Marshall testified that Miss St. Pierre demanded money from him on two occasions after their illegal love affair. Miss St. Pierre promised to keep silent, Marshall said, if the money was paid.

NAPIER'S WIDOW WINS $100,000 OF $6,250,000 ESTATE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 29.—The dispute over the $6,250,000 will of the late Montague Napier came to a sudden end today in Probate court. Napier's widow had contested the instrument.

Mrs. Norah Fryer, a doctor's widow and for many years a close friend of Napier, who inherited the bulk of the fortune, agreed to pay Mrs. Napier $100,000 cash and $15,000 annually from the estate's income.

Lord Merrivale, hearing the case, approved of the settlement. He remarked that the terms were a credit to all concerned and a happy ending of a painful dispute.

Special Trade-In Allowances!

What you can get for your old tires this week helps to pay for new Goodyears.

SIX "PLIES"?

You can count six layers of cord here, but the first two under the tread in this tire (or in any so-called "six-ply" tire built this way) do not run from bead to bead. Some tire-makers count these as "plies," but they are really "breaker strips," so we call them that.

The greatest Goodyear values in 30 summers!

Use your old tires for cash this week!

Prices you may never get again!

IF there ever was a time when it paid to invest in the safety and peace of mind that goes with tough new rubber, it is right now.

You don't have to take low quality to get low price.

You can get the grandest combination of safety, comfort, long and trouble-free mileage you ever got in a tire—at prices anyone can pay.

Start that July 4th trip on stout new Goodyears—the best tires that ever came from the world's largest rubber factory.

Here's a special holiday offer! Your present tires are worth money in the purchase of these new Goodyears—you can trade in your old rubber and make new tires cost you even less today.

Don't take chances on road-worn, tread-bare tires—even if you don't plan to replace them, drive around to any dealer who sells Goodyear Tires and get a free inspection.

And before you buy any tire anywhere—be sure you ask yourself this thrifty question: Why pay good money for any second-choice tire when FIRST-CHOICE costs no more?

BRITISH PROPOSE GERMANY SETTLE FOR A FLAT SUM

Two Billions Mentioned to Buy Off Creditors.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, June 29.—The reparations conference still lives tonight and there is hope of saving it.

The British delegation gave it an oxygen inhalation today in the form of a proposal that Germany pay a flat sum to buy off its creditors. The creditors have accepted this proposal in principle and the Germans have not said no.

In fact, a steering committee appointed by the conference is struggling tonight to produce a figure which might be deemed reasonable by all parties. The figure will be presented to the chief delegates tomorrow.

Germans Give Ground.

Although the German delegation is obviously fearful of exciting the home folks and is cautious to the extent of denying it has accepted the principle of such a settlement, there is evidence that they are giving ground.

Under the plan Germany would be asked to produce a lump sum, the real purpose of which is possibly a masked payment to a reconstruction pool at Basel. It is suggested that this pool would constitute a reserve for payment to America in event Washington stands against cancellation of debts.

The figures mentioned tonight range from 750 million dollars to two billion dollars, as compared with the total present value of reparations claims on Germany of about eight billion dollars.

Prepare for World Parley.

A second committee was appointed today to prepare for the coming world economic conference. The committee declined to invite the United States to sit immediately in its deliberations. It decided upon the creation of two subcommittees, one a financial body to work on monetary policy, credit, price levels, and obstacles to circulation of capital, and the other an economic group to labor overproduction and distribution problems, tariffs, restrictions on imports and exports, and contingent systems of cartels.

The reparations conference, which yesterday was generally believed on the verge of breaking up in failure, was hoisted back to life today almost single handed by Prime Minister MacDonald after the Germans had issued a powerful communique demanding that the inequalities in the Versailles treaty be leveled, which was doubtless for home consumption.

Says U. S. Holds Key.

At a meeting of the six inviting powers MacDonald recalled that the conference had set itself two jobs—settlement of the reparations problem and after that settlement of the "economic and financial difficulties which are responsible for and may prolong the present world crisis."

He opined that it would be better to get reparations out of the way first, for "if the second part of our work is to be dealt with successfully we must have representatives of America sitting with us and taking part in our discussions and sharing in the responsibility of carrying out any conclusions to which we may come."

He said, too, that an "adjustment of all intergovernmental debts, reparations and other war debts is necessary without delay if new disasters are to be avoided."

Must Support German Mark.

He said, moreover, that every one agreed that German efforts to keep the reichsmark stable must be supported, that the Lausanne conference must do something substantial and final, "although it is recognized that it has to be adapted to a world settlement, including the United States," that the conference must end soon, that international transfers disturbing the balance of payments must take place if at all only through normal commercial channels, and last that Germany cannot pay at the present time.

Urging speed, he said he must be in London on July 5 and 6 and said he saw no reason why the job here should not be done by the beginning of next week.

Premier Herriot is leaving Friday to face the music at Paris and Chancellor von Papen of Germany is considering another trip to Berlin tomorrow night.

REJUVENATION OF NEAR WEST SIDE TO BE DISCUSSED

The rejuvenation of the near west side will be discussed tonight at a meeting of West Central association in the Sears Roebuck building, State and Van Buren streets. The meeting will be held in conjunction with a display of modern architecture and modern housing developments. Charles Ascher of the public administration clearing house, will speak on slum rehabilitation in New York and Europe. The West Central association represents tenants and owners of property west of the Chicago river to Damen avenue, between Roosevelt road and Kinzie street.

Oh Boy! Rheumatism Went Like Magic

Is Able to Walk and Goes Back to Work

A German Specialist's office, always crowded with Rheumatics seeking relief, made it necessary to put up his Nurito prescription for the benefit of the public. It is now on sale in Walgreen drug stores on a positive guarantee. Those who have tried everything without benefit will find Nurito the most startling discovery of recent times. For the pains of rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia, sciatica or lumbago the relief is quick and sure. Strange as it may seem, this quick-acting remedy contains no opiates or narcotics. It is absolutely safe. Harmless even for children. You can prove this with one package. There is no use in wasting effort with anything that doesn't stop your pain. And if it does that you know you are going to get well. Get a package today. If the very first two or three doses do not drive away the most intense pain, your money will be instantly refunded.

ASSAILS SISTERS' CLAIM TO ESTATE OF CAP MORRISON

Attorney Lewis Jacobson told Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor Jr. yesterday that his evidence would prove that the adoption of two sisters, Mrs. Alice Bernstein Schenker and Mrs. Margaret Bernstein Brown of Dearborn, Mich., by Capt. Edward W. Morrison in 1916 was a "matter of convenience and a fraud upon the county court." The assertion was made as the claims of the two women to the $2,000,000 estate of Capt. Morrison were presented.

Judge Taylor is hearing the appeal of the women from a probate court ruling which held their adoption void, and is also considering the evidence presented in behalf of William E. Foulkes, who asks a share of the fortune on the grounds that he is a son of Capt. Morrison. The court's ruling on both appeals will be given simultaneously.

Both the women testified briefly yesterday, describing the adoption proceedings and asserting that they lived at Morrison's home for about five months immediately afterward.

Then Attorney Jacobson made his charge, declaring that the adoption was carried through in an effort to prevent the Morrison estate from slipping from the grasp of James R. Ward, Capt. Morrison's lawyer, to whom the captain had given title to a large amount of loop property. This property under the will of Capt. Morrison's father was to revert to the city and the board of education if his son died without heirs. Ward died in 1919 and the estate regained the property after lengthy court hearings. The city and school board relinquished their claims a dozen years ago.

BAVARIA FIGHTS NEW DECREE TO RESTORE 'ARMIES'

Warns Von Papen Blood Will Flow in Germany.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 29.—"The crying times ahead of us may be written with blood in the history of Germany," declared the official organ of the Bavarian government, the Bayerische Staats-Zeitung, in voicing its misgivings over the emergency decree issued today by Chancellor Franz von Papen's junker cabinet.

The decree curtails police rights of Germany's states and facilitates the restoration of Adolf Hitler's brown shirt army by ensuring to Hitlerites and Nationalists the right to wear uniforms and hold political meetings. The only condition is that local police be notified forty-eight hours in advance of the meetings.

Fourteen States Protest.

Fourteen of Germany's seventeen states have protested against the decree. President Paul von Hindenburg, however, firmly backed the claims of Hitlerites who a few weeks ago fought against him in the presidential elections.

The Bavarian cabinet will meet tomorrow to prepare an appeal to the German supreme court and to adopt a measure by which it "will try to maintain preservation of law and order which has been made very difficult by the decree of the national government." That was the manner in which the Bavarian People's party worded its objections to the Von Papen decree.

The entire German republican press has evidenced a striking meekness due, it is believed, to fear of a press gag law. The Centrist organ, Koelnische Volks-Zeitung, criticized Von Papen recently for his failure to achieve anything at the Lausanne reparations conference. As a result Baron Wilhelm von Gayl, home minister, asked the Prussian government to suspend the paper for five days.

Order Vorwaerts Banned.

Von Gayl is also asking the suspension of the Social Democrat organ, Vorwaerts, for publishing a cartoon showing Hitlerite storm troopers parading in new and expensive uniforms while pensions to war cripples are being curtailed. The Prussian government has been given two days in which to fulfill the reich's wish. If it fails to comply the reich will appeal to the courts.

The Nationalist, Industrialist, and Hitlerite press lauded today Von Papen's insistence at Lausanne on revision of the Versailles treaty. It "played down" the report that Von Papen is willing to agree to make a final reparations payment by calling it "the German share for a fund to reconstruct Europe."

Raid Hitlerite Arms Source.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, June 29.—A ring of "gun runners" which, according to police, supplied munitions to Hitlerite troops in Germany was uncovered by Dutch police today in a raid on the Dutch frontier near Vaals.

Arms and munitions in vast quantities were found. Six ringleaders of the gang and many followers were taken into custody.

It is believed that arms and ammunition have been smuggled into Germany for many weeks, bound aboard armed motor cars to Hitlerite depots.

Aviation Notes

United Air Lines has reduced its fares between Chicago and Kansas City, Tulsa, Oklahoma City, Fort Worth and Dallas to rail plus Pullman, with meals included. These fares are effective today and apply on the tri-motor passenger, mail, and express air liners.

The Goodyear airship Puritan, a nonrigid ship inflated with helium, with a capacity of 6 passengers, will arrive at its new dock at Pal-Waukee airport tomorrow. The new hangar built for the Puritan at the airport is completed. The ship will remain in Chicago through the World's Fair.

Pilots of the 94th pursuit squadron, from Selfridge field, have been diving their new Berliner-Joyce two seater pursuit planes near Curtiss-Reynolds airport from high altitudes to demonstrate their ruggedness. Complaints were received at the airport that the noise was making foxes at a nearby fox farm nervous. The diving was then done near Glenview, but complaints were received from housewives in that village that the roar of the planes curdled milk in the ice boxes.

Owner of Grocery Store Is Found Shot to Death

Gust Tsamtsakizis, owner of a grocery at 523 East 61st street, was found shot to death yesterday in the weeds surrounding an abandoned dairy near Gurnee, four miles west of Waukegan. He had been killed by a shotgun charge, apparently at a spot some distance from the point where the body was found, Lake county officials said. Nicholas Tsamtsakizis, a cousin, told Chicago police that the man whose body was found left Chicago Sunday to drive to Janesville, Wis.

JAPAN CHARGES HOOVER DISARM PLAN IS 'SELFISH'

Orders Envoys at Geneva to Fight Scheme.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, June 30 [Thursday].—The Japanese navy department is definitely opposed to President Hoover's proposal for a one-third reduction in world armaments, it became known today. The navy's objections were referred to the Japanese delegation at Geneva last night.

In their communication to Geneva, the navy authorities declared that the Hoover proposals represented America's highly selfish intention to jeopardize Japan's defense. They pointed out that the proposals:

1. Disregard all previous efforts of the preparatory disarmament commission at Geneva.

2. Increase America's armaments while destroying Japan's defense.

Japanese Cite Figures.

Technically, it is explained that Japan would be required to scrap one aircraft carrier while America would be allowed to build another 10,000 ton ship in addition to those now being built.

Regarding 8 inch gun cruisers, Japan would have to scrap three new ships while America would be allowed to complete those now under construction.

Further attention is called to the fact that the proposals are calculated to suspend all ship building work between 1934 and 1939 in Japan, while America may maintain her building capacity unimpaired.

Detailed Japanese and American figures were published showing treaty tonnages and changes planned by the Hoover plan, and also ships to be scrapped under the proposals.

French Modify Opposition.

GENEVA, June 29.—(AP)—American delegates to the disarmament conference were greatly encouraged today by evidence that France, originally strongly opposed to President Hoover's proposals for a one-third cut in armaments, was becoming more and more favorably disposed toward them.

There was one brake on their encouragement. The position of Great Britain remained uncertain. The United States delegation prepared to carry the Hoover plan before the general commission of the conference if the British delay continued for any great period.

American delegates who talked with the French today were impressed by their desire to cooperate. They reported a growing aspiration on the part of France for genuine reductions in arms.

Herriot in Bad Spot.

But it was pointed out that Premier Herriot faced a difficult position at the Lausanne reparations conference and so could not afford to yield at Geneva while up against the stone wall of reparations.

Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, conferred during the day with Hugh Gibson and Norman H. Davis of the American delegation. He assured them of Britain's interest in the Hoover program. Sir John, however, said the London government must consult the dominions before making any commitment.

It was evident that the split in the British cabinet was continuing, as Prime Minister MacDonald and Home Secretary Sir Herbert Samuel have informed Mr. Gibson they wished to accept the Hoover program in principle.

Object to Naval Proposals.

The group represented by the foreign secretary remained very reserved, taking the position that the naval features of the President's proposal must be studied carefully and that the recommendations of the British admiralty must be weighed carefully.

Foreign Minister August Zaleski of Poland gave Gibson encouraging news. Much to approve in the Hoover plan, he said, had been found by Poland, Czechoslovakia, Jugo-Slavia, Rumania, Estonia, Latvia, and Finland.

This group of nations, the Polish minister said, approved even the quantitative scheme of dealing with military effectives, and they were inclined to accept the American proposals in principle as a basis for settling the disarmament problem.

Landlord Shot by Tenant When He Demands Rent

Michael Schersin, 50 years old, 3022 Lock street, was shot and seriously wounded yesterday when he demanded back rent of Julius Sopolski, 23 years old, a tenant in his building. A heated quarrel followed the request and Sopolski, an unemployed laborer, got a rifle from his apartment and fired four times at Schesin. One of the bullets struck the landlord in the chest. He was taken to the county hospital and Sopolski was locked up in the Deering street police station.

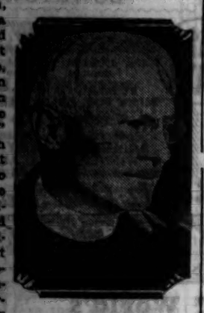
Abbe Dimnet Writes Views on Good Life

Understanding, Sympathy Mark Work.

"What We Live By," by Abbe Ernest Dimnet. [Simon & Schuster.]

ABBE ERNEST DIMNET, author of "The Art of Thinking," the book that several years ago attracted so much attention in this country, a book that, despite its lack of profundity or philosophic distinction, charmed a large and intelligent audience, has again written in "What We Live By," an approach to life that will no doubt be gratefully received by an audience that appreciates human understanding and sympathy more than constructive and original philosophic truths.



ABBE DIMNET.

The author belongs to the "sweetness and light" school of thinking. The book is divided into three sections, the titles of which are not unfamiliar, "Verum—The True," "Pulchrum—The Beautiful," and "Bonum—The Good." Under the first heading Abbe Dimnet presents man's inquiry into himself, his study of the universe, metaphysics, the soul and morals, all offered in dialogue form in which the addressee is conspicuously and not quite fairly inferior to the addresser.

The second section of "What We Live By" is by far the best. In this chapter Abbe Dimnet presents an esthetic theory that, if conventional and derivative, will be nevertheless consistent, acceptable, and convincing to most readers. The author accepts the older Platonic definition of beauty, "Beauty is the splendor of truth," and concludes "Keats was ravished by it" (the definition).

Holds All Can Enjoy Art.

From this the author proceeds to the conclusions that beauty is always uplifting and that it always creates in us a desire for self-improvement. His understanding of the artistic temperament is kindly and tolerant. Abbe Dimnet asserts that the enjoyment of art is possible for everybody and that it is "Strange that people should spend their whole lives without grasping the simple principle that in art what we like is what teaches us." Painting, sculpture, architecture, music, and literature are analyzed and interpreted from the point of view of an enlightened and sympathetic layman. Despite the pervasive geniality of Abbe Dimnet that sometimes is deceptive, he reveals qualities of penetration and understanding. Perhaps artists or lifelong students of esthetic philosophy will not seriously consider Dimnet's interpretation. However, the simple, unaffected approach to art will be to most readers one of the most attractive features of an attractive book.

In the final section Dimnet defines moral beauty, or, in other words, one aspect of the good in life. He believes it to consist of self-sacrifice, unselfishness, nobility, and heroism, and "... making the most of one's best, of finding one's self and one's climate, of making sure of happiness through self-fulfillment."

How to Become Morally Good.

In the next chapter the Abbe gives practical hints on how to become morally good. He even suggests that the reader take paper and pencil and record his and other people's impressions of his own personality and then go with this little slip of confession to an adviser to be guided further along the paths to moral freedom and beauty.

Love, naturalness, a regularity in life that does not become a passion and therefore a compulsion, cultivation of the sensitiveness of feeling, action, and expression are a few means to the higher plane of life, to moral beauty which is "an aspect of truth which is synonymous with God."

It is significant that Abbe Dimnet keeps the more obvious Catholic doctrines carefully subordinated to the larger, broader and subtler Catholic way of life. The chapter entitled "The Spiritual Plane" is under the general head of "Bonum—Beauty in Life." It is a short one, but it is a clear and simple exposition of God and religion interpreted from the Catholic point of view.

This book on the whole will be a satisfactory aid to most readers who are anxious to live wisely and well. It is written simply, forcefully, entertainingly. There are no new precepts, nor new interpretations of old precepts. It is full of sympathy, sentiment, hope, goodness, gentle wisdom, optimism, intellectual breadth and tolerance. It is a personification of its main thesis, the good, the true and the beautiful. One impression that persists is that it has been written expressly for American readers. M. D.

Dance Frocks Are Just What They Should Be

BY RHEA SEEGER.

SUMMER dance frocks are just what they should be . . . ornamental as well as disturbing, cool and glamorous, and made of romantic story-book materials such as candy pink cotton net, sprigged muslins, dotted swisses, flowered chiffons, and striped tissues.

They are the sort of frocks that swirl around your ankles, with yards of material in the skirt, with slender fitted bodices and old fashioned sashes and belts tied in a new fashioned way.

Even the colors have been borrowed from the garden flowers that boast of every shade from petunia pinks to forget-me-not blues, and misty lavenders.

Most of these summer dance dresses are the kind that have no great objection to repeated tubbings, emerging from the trial of soap suds with a charming freshness and crispness that endears them to the soul of the spic and span summer girl.

One of the coolest wash models imaginable is made of printed organdy with patterns of long slender leaves that seem to flutter in a breeze as you dance. The skirt is long and very full with a deep hem that is most unusual. The bodice has wide shoulder capes and the sash is of self material.

Another uses a crisp muslin, striped with pale pink and green and is fashioned as simply as possible. A third has embroidered dots of rose and pale yellow and soft green gayly sprinkled all over it. And you've no idea how cool and charming a black and white striped frock can be until you see a delectable dress made of this combination.

Flowered chiffons never grow old, new patterns keep up the annual interest. A regular story book dress of flowered chiffon has tiny climbing June roses wandering around and over small gold squares formed by criss-crossing metallic threads in the material. The background is white, the roses a soft luscious pink and the contrasting leaves a tender spring-like green. Match your slippers and short puffed sleeved jacket to this same shade of green and you'll have all your cavaliers whispering poetry in your ears as you dance beneath the moon.

Cotton net has been used this summer for some of the most feminine, utterly alluring, dance frocks you have ever seen. They have been made with miles of double ruchings sewed to the very edge of the very full skirts and a few more miles of the fluted ruching sewed around the edges of either the sleeves, armholes, or around the edge of a demure little circular cape that is worn with the dress. Black or white models of this description are tremendously effective and look cooler, perhaps, than any other model.

Eyelet embroidered organdy in all colors and white are to be found in quaint styles with huge puffed sleeves that stand stiffly and crisply high on the shoulders to frame your face, or you will find intricately designed, sophisticated dance dresses made to fit snugly and then to flare widely around the knees.

Square cut necklines with the back portion practically missing are delightfully different to wear, especially when you can wrap a wide velvet ribbon sash around your waist for contrast.

One new design that will make history and plenty of conquests, is made of a printed eyelet in a crushed raspberry color. The bodice fits very snugly, the sleeves are short and puffed but the climax is the beautiful sapphire blue velvet sash that ties and hangs to the floor.

Victor Weil Estate Makes $25 Gift to Camp Algonquin Fund

A check for $25 was sent the Camp Algonquin fund yesterday from the Victor Weil trust estate by the order of Mrs. Paula Weil, 567 Stratford place. This contribution gives the fund a total of $1,464.89.

Meanwhile preparations were being made at the camp to receive the group of undernourished children tomorrow who are to remain all summer. Then on July 4 will come the first official holiday celebration with a parade, fireworks, and a special surprise that is to be announced on Sunday. All the campers will take part from the mothers on down to the tiniest children.

THE TRIBUNE Free Ice fund experienced another discouraging day yesterday. Not a cent came in to boost the fund that provides ice for the needy homes, where vacations are out of the question, and where sickly babies suffer because there is no ice to keep their food fresh. Less than $34 has come to this fund this season. Last year $7,000 worth of ice was distributed to 5,899 families.

Gifts to either fund may be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

Programs for Children to Be Given at Museum

A summer series of free entertainments for children to be given during July and August at the Field museum of natural history was announced yesterday by the James Nelson and Anna Louise Raymond foundation for public schools and children's lectures. Motion pictures of natural history subjects, adventure and travel, and story hours and tours of exhibits conducted by members of the foundation staff will feature the program. The first entertainment will be given July 7.

Changes of Convention Plans Force Switch in Social Events

Night Session Causes Some Hostesses to Cancel Their Parties for Visitors.

BY JUDITH CASS.

ADJUSTING one's social engagements to the convention certainly is a difficult task. Yesterday there were no luncheon parties planned because the convention was to convene at noon; then when the hour was postponed to 2 o'clock the Blackstone hotel, where many of the fashionables meet for luncheon whenever they are not at the Stadium, filled up.

All those who rushed through luncheon to be at the Stadium by 2 found that the session was adjourned almost before they got there—they saw a good show, however, I'm told—and those who had planned to be fashionably late at the convention were glad they had lingered over their coffee and cigarets and relaxed a bit. Most of the parties were impromptu ones, however, for it was not until late in the morning that any one knew that there would be time for luncheon before the convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton L. Schwartz, the Condé Nasts, Mrs. Claire Booth Brokaw and Bernard Baruch were in one party. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Admiral and Mrs. Grayson and Gov. Ritchie were in another along with a few others whom I did not know. Mrs. Wilson looked cool and charming in a white gown, a long black silk coat and the same becoming large black hat which she wore on Sunday at the Hurleys' party in Wheaton. Mrs. Grayson wore a violet colored dress with a large white bow at the neck, small white bows on the three-quarter length sleeves and a large white hat.

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, who always is a picture, wore a powder blue suit with a scarf of the same, lined in tomato red, and a turban of the same soft blue around which her fluffy ash blonde hair stood out like a halo.

Miss Peggy Hambleton was one of the most chic of the local celebrities in the smart luncheon crowd. She wore a long navy blue coat over a lighter blue gown and her hat and scarf were of Scotch plaid taffeta.

Among others in the crowd were Miss Eleanor Holden, Mrs. Stanley Field, Mrs. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Simms, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clarkson of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Slater of New York and Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Cushing. Mrs. Sabin gave a tea for 50 of the women delegates and alternates at the Blackstone hotel yesterday afternoon.

Cancel Some Small Parties.

The James L. Houghtelings and Mrs. Julian A. Soames, who had left uncertain the hour for their dinner last night at the Tavern, set the time as 6:30 yesterday morning, but in the afternoon they changed it to 6 so their guests could get away for the night session.

Their party, numbering 48, was moved from the dining terrace to the private dining room on the 26th floor in the afternoon, too, for it looked as if there might be rain.

Preston Boyden's dinner at the Tavern was called off and so were various other small ones planned for last night, but the Eames MacVeaghs went ahead with their party for the Stuart Farrar-Smiths at the Saddle and Cycle, although all the guests were not able to be present. Miss Dorothy Schmidt and Bradford Wells were among others who entertained at dinner at the Saddle and Cycle last night.

There are no large parties planned for today or tonight for convention visitors for every one anticipates that today will be much too busy a one at the Stadium for any one to be bothered with social engagements.

Barbara Bateman Will Be Bride.

Barrington is to have another lovely garden wedding this afternoon, if the weather is as nice as it was last Saturday for the Hart-Smith nuptials, for Miss Barbara Bateman will become the bride of Paul Corbett, son of Henry R. Corbett of Winnetka, in the garden of the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd L. Bateman of Barrington Hills farm.

The Rev. D. H. Cornell of the Glencoe Union church will read the service at 5 o'clock in the presence of the relatives and intimate friends. Miss Betty Hart, who was her sister's (Polly Hart) maid of honor last Saturday, will serve Miss Bateman in the same capacity, and the Misses Kathleen Bowen and Charlotte Hughes will be the bridesmaids.

Henry Corbett Jr., will be his brother's best man and ushering will be another brother, Richard Corbett, and the bride's brother, Donald Bateman.

Mr. and Mrs. Corbett will leave tomorrow morning for Banff, Lake Louise and the Pacific coast, where they will spend the summer. Mr. Corbett is a member of the Chicago water polo team which will enter the Olympic games this summer.

Society at Arlington.

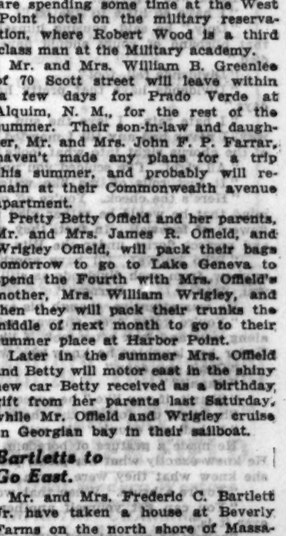
Marshall Field, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Talbot of Dayton, O., and Mrs. Averill Clark of New York were among the guests who took advantage of the convention recess to go to Arlington Park. Mrs. Talbot wore dark brown crêpe and Mrs. Clark was in white with a red jacket and white hat. They were with Mrs. John Hertz, who wore a brown ensemble.

Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift had a group of nieces with her as well as two of her own daughters. Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Thorne were there, Mrs. Thorne in a black hat and a black and green print suit. Mrs. Cary T. Grayson was in lavender and Mrs. Condé Nast in a green and gold print.

Mrs. Harold Beacom, who has a house at Lake Geneva this summer and is a director of the Chicago Woman's Exchange, will be among those assisting Mrs. Henry Bartholomay and her daughter, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, today at the sale the exchange will hold at the Bartholomay residence at Lake Geneva. Mrs. Osborne is a vice president of the exchange.

When Mrs. Harry M. McIntosh opens her Lake Forest gardens to the public on Saturday, July 9, to benefit the Lake Bluff orphanage, her assisting hostesses will be Mrs. Alden B. Swift, Mrs. Albert B. Dick Jr., Mrs. David Dangler, Mrs. John R. Thompson, Mrs. Mark Morton, Mrs. Alfred L. Lindsey of Evanston, Mrs. H. O. Barnes of Winnetka, and Mrs. James MacMurray of Barrington. The gardens will be open from 2:30 until 5 o'clock.

Engaged



MISS MARIAN EVELYN ELIAS.
[Carlos Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Elias of Detroit, formerly of Wilmette, announce the engagement of their daughter, Marian Evelyn, to David Lee Taylor, son of Mrs. D. L. Taylor of Wilmette.

Capt. Holmes Visitor Here.

Capt. Ralston Holmes was in town yesterday for a brief visit with his wife's father, William A. Bond of the Webster hotel. Capt. Holmes is en route to New York to join his wife and their daughter, Sally, for a month's holiday in New England before they go to the captain's new post at Annapolis. He has been on the Pacific coast with the fleet.

Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont arrived in Chicago yesterday morning to attend to private business affairs and plans to leave for Washington today. He was the guest of George Eaton Scott, 199 Lake Shore drive. Secretary Lamont is a Chicagoan and formerly resided in Lake Forest.

Gen. and Mrs. Robert E. Wood of Highland Park and Miss Mary Wood are spending some time at the West Point hotel on the military reservation, where Robert Wood is a third class man at the Military academy.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Greenlee of 70 Scott street will leave within a few days for Prado Verde at Alquim, N. M., for the rest of the summer. Their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John F. P. Farrar, haven't made any plans for a trip this summer, and probably will remain at their Commonwealth avenue apartment.

Pretty Betty Offield and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Offield, and Wrigley Offield, will pack their bags tomorrow to go to Lake Geneva to spend the Fourth with Mrs. Offield's mother, Mrs. William Wrigley, and then they will pack their trunks the middle of next month to go to their summer place at Harbor Point.

Later in the summer Mrs. Offield and Betty will motor east in the shiny new car Betty received as a birthday gift from her parents last Saturday, while Mr. Offield and Wrigley cruise on Georgian bay in their sailboat.

Bartletts to Go East.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic C. Bartlett Jr. have taken a house at Beverly Farms on the north shore of Massachusetts and will go there later in the season. Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett Sr. have opened their summer place, Tree Tops at Beverly for the summer, and will be joined shortly by Mrs. Bartlett's daughter, Miss Evelyn Lilly, who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ely Lilly in Indianapolis now.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra J. Warner of Lake Forest and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edison Dick Jr., sailed on Tuesday on the Leviathan for a holiday abroad. Mr. and Mrs. Dick plan to motor through France and England, and to spend some time in Germany.

Mrs. Albert B. Dick Jr., who has been in the east this week seeing her children, Helen and Albert Dick III., settled in camps for the summer, is expected to return to Lake Forest this evening.

Mrs. Francis J. Johnson of the Ambassador hotel has her trunks packed and is ready to leave any day to spend the summer in Santa Barbara. She hasn't decided just when she'll board a train for the west, but it probably will be soon. She is to have the four little children of her late brother, Richard Nevins of Pasadena, with her for two months this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Scott Jr. of Evanston are enjoying a fortnight's vacation at Lawsonia on Green Lake, Wisconsin.

I Like You So Much

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Gold Franklyn calls Dr. Elverton, who has a nursery in a poor district of London, to attend her indolent young half-brother. The doctor plans to give Barney Pierce, a well to do accident victim, a lift to his destination, and Pierce waits while the doctor makes his call. He catches a glimpse of the pretty young creature who summoned the doctor. Both men are impressed by the pluckiness of the orphan girl and take her troubles seriously to mind. The doctor is to sail the next week to New York and Havana on a cleave, taking the ship doctor's place. Mrs. Doria Hathaway, a widow friend of Pierce's, is to sail on the same boat. She wants a maid companion for the Atlantic crossing. Pierce calls on Doria.

INSTALLMENT IV.

AN ADMIRER'S ADIEU.

Doria looked at him seriously for a moment. Pierce knew that she was trying to reckon him up—as she had done all those four months—and then again she would fail. She was not clever, only astute; and not thoroughly astute. "You've been so awfully sweet," she repeated slowly. He looked back at her more steadily than she liked; in both their minds was accurate recollection of how good humoredly and quietly he, a stranger, had paid her rather scandalous bridge debts in Paris, again paid her rather scandalous bridge debts in London at a certain bridge club. And there had been a day when she was surprised by the amount of her hotel bill, carelessly and lavishly incurred. . . . These facts ranged themselves with unusual clarity in her memory now.

"I have enjoyed being what you very generously call sweet to you."

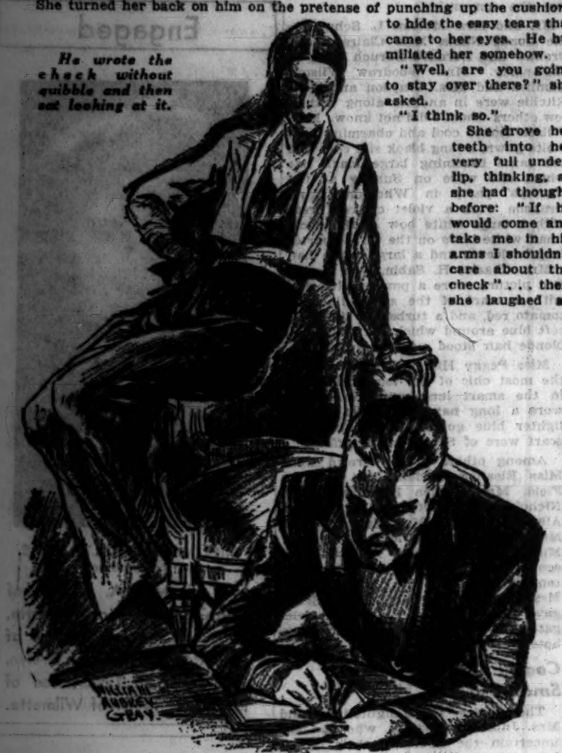
"Why?" she murmured.

"You are so amusing. And I don't care to see a nice woman down."

"Am I a nice woman?"

"In spite of yourself, you are."

She turned her back on him on the pretense of punching up the cushions to hide the easy tears that came to her eyes. He humiliated her somehow.



He wrote the check without quibble and then sat looking at it.

"Well, are you going to stay over there?" she asked.

"I think so."

She drove her teeth into her very full underlip, thinking, as she had thought before: "If he would come and take me in his arms I shouldn't care about the check" . . . then she laughed at herself, thinking: "The check would follow."

"What are you laughing at?" Pierce asked.

"Me."

He smiled. "That's why you amuse me. You can laugh at yourself."

"But I don't always feel myself a joke, Barney."

He took a check book from his breast pocket. "Well, how much? Or shall I just take care of the damage when the claim comes in?"

"Could I borrow three hundred pounds?"

He wrote the check without quibble; and then sat looking at it.

"You mean, of course, can you have three hundred pounds? You can, this once more. But now, Doria, that this entertaining acquaintance seems likely to end or to be suspended by the mere mileage between us, let me ask you, How long are you going on like this?"

"Till nobody will let me go on any longer."

"That condition existed when I came on the scene."

"So far." He turned and studied her openly and mercilessly.

"Don't look at me like that!" she cried. "What's the matter with me?"

"Too much hard liquor; too many late nights; too much everything except sense and honesty."

"Honesty!"

"O, well, not many of you women really trouble about that, I know."

Then, queerly enough, a flash of irrelevant thought visited him, joining those other searching thoughts at the back of his mind. The Golden Head . . . that girl was honest. Now he knew something definite about her. She would have honesty. And a rare pleasure ran through him as he sat in a sudden mood of silence in Doria Hathaway's sitting room. A star had shone.

Doria was replying:

"I have so little to live on."

"Only," he said, rousing himself, "because you blew the capital which that husband of yours should never had left you free to handle when he died."

"Dividends fell, too!"

"Dividends have that pretty habit. You should be prepared for rainy days."

"I hate rain. I love the sun. What's money for but to spend? Anyway, I never had any till I married and when you step out of the third row of the chorus right into what looks like a mint. . . . Gee! Barney!"

"All right. I've scolded you unprofitably before."

"It just rolls off me like water off a duck."

"Here's the check. You're off on the Mercuria, then?" He noted in his mind that he would be rather glad than otherwise to fill her cabin with the flowers of farewell. In fact, they were already ordered from the expensive and perfect florist under the Ritz portico. "And what next?"

"Who knows? I'll have another quarter's income in my pocket, too, anyhow, from such dividends as still come in." She took the check. "Thank you, dear . . . Barney!"

He was attentive, though his eyes were cold.

"You're going over, anyway, within the next fortnight. Why not come along now and look after me? I like a grand good-looking squire like you." Under her laughter he knew she was tremblingly serious.

"Can't, my dear."

"Shan't?"

"Shan't, if you like," he agreed candidly.

She stood up, folding the check up very small, and unfolding it.

"I shall get drunk," she said.

He made a gesture of boredom. She caught her breath and bit her lip. He knew exactly what her pleas, protestations, and threats were worth! And she knew what they were worth to him, too. Nothing!

"You're a brute. When that woman left me flat and all!"

"You can get yourself another mail or traveling companion or whatever it is."

Sharply he remembered telling Elverton that Gold Franklyn might apply here. Now he said to himself: "No; never! Not in this gallery!" And, he thought, "I'll ring the doctor up and tell him so."

Doria went on complaining, with a laughing mouth but her astute look in her eyes: "Not so easy. I've rung up an agency; but it's not so easy. 'Cause I only want some one for the voyage itself."

"Do without."

"I shan't. I like being fussed over."

He smiled and moved off.

"Good-by, Doria. It has been charming to know you."

She followed. "I shall see you again before I sail? You'll take me to dinner?"

"I'm afraid I shan't have that pleasure. The loss is mine. Again, good-by."

Again he walked, in the sweet cold night of early spring, back to the Berkeley. He went in to supper, sat alone, and watched the dancers for a little time. It occurred to him insistently that he would like to take a girl like Gold Franklyn to a place like this, dress her up, give her French cuisine and the finest wine—all so old to him, so new to her. He began to think all the long thoughts of a solitary man as he sat there watching; he thought of his young beliefs in days when he would have believed in the Dorias. Such young beliefs would still be a part of Gold—unless the stress of life in such dull and anxious streets had already taught her skepticism.

Rather late he went up to his suite and got Elverton's number. But the doctor was evidently being thorough in the matter of this rare night out, for he was not yet home. To some slow voiced old woman servant Barney gave a stringent message:

"Be sure to write it down. Mr. Pierce has changed his mind about the advisability . . . ad-vis-a-bility of Miss Franklyn . . . E-r-a-n-k-l-y-n . . . applying for the post. . . . That is all, thank you. Good night."

Doris Blake Answers

Blonde Can Be Outwitted.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have heard rumors that my friend is hanging around a blonde. Would it be wise to give him up? "QUEENIE."

If you don't want to give him up, try beating the blonde at her game of charming!

Case of Politeness.

"Dear Miss Blake: What would you say about a boy who has asked you to marry him, and yet pays a lot of attention to your girl friend? "PERPLEXED."

Perhaps it is a case of politeness to your friend.

Movie Extras Cling to Hope Despite Want

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., June 29.—The Radio RKO company has a few more than one hundred principals and extras working in the place named "Fraternity House." Director Gregory La Cava wanted to make the college atmosphere authentic as possible so he had his staff of assistant directors distribute a questionnaire to the extras and principals including Arlin F. Judge, Eric Linden, Dorothy Wilson and others. The questionnaires went to 50 boys and 50 girls, many of the extras being present or former college and high school students.

Answers were interesting. The replies showed that of the 100 interrogated, only 62 believed that feature movie parts would eventually be available to the $7.50 a day extras, while the other 38 had little hope. Of the boys, only 14 of 50 would trade their chances at present for a steady job in business. Of the girls, 39 said—yes, they would marry for money.

Out of the entire 100 only three—two boys and one girl—answered that they never drank nor smoked. And 100 replied to one question expressing the belief that the present young generation is more moral than its elders.

As to personal preferences, the girls' consensus was a preference for blond men, Princeton and Annapolis as favorite colleges for men, Vassar for women, and Gershwin in music.

The boys differed. In their consensus brunette girls got the majority; good dancers were preferred to intellectual dates; University of Michigan got more votes than any other college.

All those who answered the question—do you neck? Answered affirmatively, both boys and girls.

And here is the big kick in the whole business: Of ninety some good looking intelligent boy and girl extras, the average that each extra was able to obtain work in the movies, was one day in every five. Meaning about $9.80 in salary each week.

"Fry in deep fat," say the cook books—and out of the domestic kettle of hot fat come every day a host of delicacies temptingly crusty, golden brown, and wholly delicious—and, sad to relate, many more pathetically scorched or unhappily lugging with them a good share of the kettle fat which was supposed to be merely a medium for cooking—not an added ingredient.

In fact, I hear so much of deep fat troubles these days that I'm going to turn to this morning and, I hope, be able to answer some of these questions.

To start with, no matter whether we are planning to fry fish, meat, vegetables, doughnuts, or any of an army of crusty croquette and patty creations, our standard must be a delicate flavor, good color and crust, and a minimum of fat absorption.

While foods properly fried will be little affected by the original flavor of the fat we use, the delicately flavored fats are in the long run the best. Chicken fat, if you can get it in sufficient quantities, makes a delightful frying oil.

But one thing that will flavor our foods, and that can be avoided, is decomposition of the fat by overheating. When fat smokes it is decomposing and, besides giving foods fried in it a disagreeable flavor, these decomposed substances are irritating to the eaters and injure digestion.

The color of our French fried food will depend somewhat on the clarity of our fat [another reason to guard against overheating], on the character of the food, and on the temperature and time of cooking.

Our third standard—minimum of fat absorption—depends on several different things and is most important, not only because no one likes to eat oozy, grease soaked foods, but also because loading down the stomach with excess fats makes it difficult for the system to digest the foods intrusted to it.

The main causes for grease soaking in frying are low cooking temperature which lets much fat enter before a protecting film can be formed; rich doughs and batters which, by the fat and sugar in them, seem to draw in the cooking fat; and excess cooking time which, of course, will be avoided if the fat is hot enough to brown foods quickly. A rough surface, too much flour, or too little mixing will almost surely result in soaking in doughnuts.

And now for some times and temperatures. The following chart is the published result of experimentation in food laboratories at Iowa State college and presents the whole thing in a nutshell:

	Browns a bread cube	Th'mometer.
Dry, uncooked foods	60 sec.	350-365° F.
Cooked foods	40 sec.	365-382° F.
Wet, cold, uncooked food	20 sec.	382-390° F

So much being settled, what shall we fry? Vegetables first—and first of the vegetables try cauliflower. Prepare it as for ordinary cooking, breaking it into flowerettes and soak an hour in salty water to draw out any insects lurking about. Now sprinkle each bit with salt and pepper, dip in a beaten egg which has been diluted with one-fourth cup of milk, roll in fine dry bread or cracker crumbs, and cook in a frying basket in deep fat [355 degrees F.] until golden brown.

Summer squash [or eggplant], cut in one-half inch slices dusted with flour, dipped in beaten egg and then in cornmeal before frying, makes a delicious and unusual addition to the French fried family. Use 380 degrees F. for the fat.

And when you're not busy broiling or creaming them, have a fling at French fried mushrooms. Peel, but leave the stems on. Salt and pepper, dip in egg diluted with a little milk, and then in finely rolled cracker crumbs. Fry to puffy perfection in fat at 365 degrees F.

Sports Dress Has Suspender Straps Which Cross to Form Partial Belt

YOUNG WOMAN'S DRESS.

Here is the new tennis or sports dress, with the low waisted back and a clever way of closing with three large buttons. There are wide suspender straps crossed and brought around to the front in partial belt effect. The skirt is pressed into an inverted plait at the center front and back, which lends its wearer a slim line.

The pattern, 3,193, comes in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years. Size 16 requires 3 yards of 39 inch material.

Inexpert Hand with Dye Will Ruin Coiffure

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

From these quarters you've been advised time and again that if you were going in for hair dyeing, to know your operator's reputation; know that his [or her] experience qualifies him for good work and be economical on something else, for expert attention in this regard cannot be had cheaply.

Another warning I feel should be made about the hands into which you commit your locks. After choosing the best operator, do your level best to stick to that one operator. I am reminded of this needed caution because of the harrowing experience of an acquaintance, who, between trains in another town, went to a beauty parlor to have her dyed hair touched up. She went in with her nicely bleached locks and came out with hair of a strong reddish cast. Undiluted dye used over hair that has previously been treated with ammonia will produce a reddish cast oft-times.

A good many of you are stepping off on your vacations now. I would advise you to have the hair done before you depart and wait until your return before you court any further bleaching or dyeing. The original operator, the one who first tints the locks, has your hair history. She knows what its original color was and from this she can tie up hair coloring with your general coloring and features.

Too, if she is building up a trade, she naturally wants you to be a good talking ad for her. She will want to care for your hair regularly and she will suggest alternating hot oil treatments with the bleaching to keep the hair in good condition.

Report Half Million Increase in Church Membership in U. S.

New York, June 29.—(AP)—An increase of 433,656 in the membership of United States churches during 1931 is reported by Dr. G. L. Kieffer in the annual church statistics report of the Christian Herald. The gain in 1930 was 88,350.

The Baptists increased their membership 139,526 to bring their total, the largest among Protestant denominations, to 9,067,152. The Methodists, who showed the first annual loss in their history in 1930, increased their membership 46,225 for the year. Their total rose to 8,135,627.

The Catholic gain was 15,243. The total Catholic membership 13 years old and over was thereby brought to 14,528,176.

The Lutheran gain of 49,126 brought their total to 3,032,350. The Protestant Episcopal increase was 6,931 for a total of 1,261,158, and the Presbyterians gained 16,676 for a 2,557,541 total.

The only denominations having a million or more members to show a loss were the Congregationalist-Christian with a 736 decrease and the Disciples of Christ with a 4,477 loss. Their totals were 1,010,341 and 1,865,979, respectively.

The total membership for all religious bodies in the United States in 1931 was given as 49,752,443.

THE STAGE

E. E. Clive, the actor-manager of Boston who occasionally stages a play in New York, has sent a representative to Chicago to make a survey of the opportunities for a high grade dramatic repertory company in this city next season. He has been conferring with the managers of several theaters.

Mr. Clive's plan, apparently, is to stage several English plays and also to produce dramatic hits that are current in New York, but will not go on tour with their original casts. He wishes to avoid the "stock company" label, and to attract the interest of the playgoing group that has subscribed to the programs of the Theater Guild and the Dramatic league.

"Do Your Stuff," the Negro revue recently staged at the Adelphi theater, ended its brief run last Saturday night. "Love on Approval," the comedy now at the Playhouse, will close Saturday night. Thus the week of July 3 will find Chicago with only one offering on the legitimate stage—Lew Leslie's revue, "Clowns in Clover," at the Apollo.

William A. Brady and his wife, Grace George, returned from Europe a week ago with a bundle of play manuscripts in their baggage. He promises to be an active contributor to the American stage next season.

Among the Brady acquisitions are Ivor Novello's "I Lived with You," which is now having a London run. The author-star and his London company will bring the play to New York in December. "Party," also by Mr. Novello, is also on the list, slated for importation with Lillian Braithwaite of the London cast in the leading rôle.

Mr. Brady was an active buyer of American rights to recent or current French dramas. He has secured options on "Domino," "Mistigris," and "Marlborough," by Marcel Achard; "Christine," by Paul Geraldy; "Aimer" and "Chambre de Hotel," by Pierre Jerome; and "Mademoiselle," by Jacques Deval. The latter comedy will be Miss George's next vihicle, in an adaptation made by herself.

"The finest show I saw in Europe," said Mr. Brady, "was Noel Coward's 'Cavalcade.' I disagree with the American managers who assert that its appeal is only to British theatergoers. If 'Cavalcade' were to be produced in New York as it is being in London, I believe that it would be a sensational hit. Incidentally, I think that the play would do our audiences a lot of good by bracing up their morale, which the depression seems to have shot to pieces." C. C.

Night Session Brings Switch in Party Plans

Some Hostesses Cancel Small Affairs.

Monday and arrived at her cottage at the Chicago club in Charlevoix in time for tea that day. Mrs. Stuart's cottage, which typifies the ultimate in smart summer houses, is set amid extensive and beautiful gardens in which Mrs. Stuart takes a justifiable pride and interest.

Mrs. Eugene S. Talbot of East Division street joined her younger children, Conover and Elinor, at the Talbot cottage at Charlevoix early this week, and Dr. Talbot and the older daughter, Margaret, who is visiting in Lake Forest this week, will join the rest of the family for the week-end, leaving tomorrow night.

Oscar W. Johnson has returned to Chicago for a few days, but will rejoin his wife at their Charlevoix cottage in time for the July Fourth week-end festivities which are to include a regatta.

Notes from the Berkshires, where several well known Chicago families summer:

Mr. and Mrs. Donald F. McPherson and their two children of Winnetka, who have been visiting Mrs. McPherson's mother, Mrs. Frederick T. West, at Court Hill in Pittsfield, Mass., have gone to Nantucket to spend the balance of the summer there.

Wirt D. Walker Jr. of Chicago is visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Ransom Walker at Fair Acres in Stockbridge.

Dr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Miller of Chicago and Pasadena sailed from New York for London to spend the summer in Norway and Sweden after a visit with Mrs. Miller's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. W. Rockwood Gibbs at Rock Ridge Farm in Richmond.

The first mixed golf foursome, to be followed by a barbecue dinner and dance, at the Knollwood club, will be held this evening. They will be held on alternate Thursday nights throughout the summer.

Two Exhibit Parties Tonight.

There will be two parties tonight of interest to those of the social world who have artistic as well as social interests, a buffet supper the Renaissance Society of the University of Chicago will give to open an exhibition of fine prints lent by Miss Alice Roullier in 205 Wieboldt hall and an exhibition and dinner the Association of Arts and Industries, the Advertising council and the Society of Typographic Arts will give at the Lakeside Press galleries.

The Renaissance society's supper will be in the cloisters and gardens of Ida Noyes Hall, starting at 6:30 o'clock, and at 9 o'clock Miss Ethel Hahn of the department of art at the university will give a brief talk in the library on the exhibition. In case of rain supper will be served in the refectory.

In order to add to the festivity of the dinner which is being given at the Lakeside Press galleries, Thomas E. Donnelley, who will act as host at the party, is bringing a profusion of flowers from his lovely garden at Clinola, his Lake Forest residence, to decorate the galleries and dining room.

The exhibition will include 156 international travel posters from 22 countries. After dinner the guests will adjourn to Mr. Donnelley's library where the addresses of the evening will be, beside the host, Col. William N. Pelouse, who will preside; James Keeley, Alfonso Iannelli, Logan Anderson, Basil Church and Donald Blair, and the speakers, Malcolm La Prade, Ralph McAllister Ingersoll and Shepard Vogelgesang.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank has asked this department to announce that all women visitors to the convention are invited to breakfast today at 9 o'clock in the Empire room of the Palmer house, as the guests of the woman's division of the convention entertainment committee. Mrs. Fairbank will preside.

Louiseboulanger Creates Evening Wrap of Black Satin for the Mature Woman

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The French fashions for evening this summer make a point of wraps that are either extremely short or very long. For the very young and for the extremely slim the brief wrap is flattering, but the mature woman with a real hipline cannot wear it unless it is carefully adjusted, as it tends to cut the silhouette line and emphasizes girth in an unflattering way.

The long coat is her best bet, and Louiseboulanger has just brought out a long summer wrap that is perfect for the young girl and the mature woman alike. It is the sort of wrap that can serve for all kinds of evening affairs, and that looks quite all right for late afternoon, too.

I've had this wrap sketched. It is made of black satin, and is equally smart in the dull or lustrous satin that are both smart this summer. The sleeves of this cloak are Louiseboulanger's pet sleeves, which are ample, and tucked into the armholes. They have rather wide band cuffs and can be worn pushed up as shown, or full length.

The body of the coat is straight-wrap-around, and it is fastened by tying over on the left side of the waistline. Below this fastening the closing is cut away to the center front and ends in rounded lines at the bottom. Above the tie are draped revers that cross in the fashion known as surplice.

Deflated Ego Told to Build Up Personality

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am a girl of 19, suffering a horrible inferiority complex. Nobody seems to want me. At least, that's the way I feel about it. I think it's all because of the way I feel.

"CHARLOTTE."

You're right, Charlotte. Nobody wants you because that's the way you feel about it yourself. Why should anybody seek your company when you have such a low estimate of it? Why should anybody want to take on a job of cheering you up when you feel there isn't anything worth cheering?

The truth is that you don't feel that way. It's an act. To have people probe for the finer things you feel are down there inside of you. To have people bring out your gifts and charms. It's a poor act—and a selfish one. And don't you let any one try to convince you that it is excessive modesty or any such charming virtue.

You can't get an inferiority complex unless you are willing to subscribe to it in self-pity and continued thought of self. You can't nurse it along without continuing to indulge in the same vices. But you can shake yourself out of its grip if you'll just put a little steel in your backbone and say: "Why am I acting this way? What have I to be ashamed of? What's the matter with me, a well educated young woman, one who has many arts at her command to make herself attractive, one who without a great amount of money can become interesting as a conversationalist, a dancing partner, a bridge partner, and so on?"

What are you doing, Charlotte, besides moaning over yourself?

Figure more on what you have to give to win friendships than what you have not to give. Then you'll feel the urge to move in the winning direction.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover motored out to the polo field in Potomac park to view the matches played by the teams of the army and the marine corps in the Argentine cup tournament. Mrs. Hoover had with her a little party, including Mrs. Ben H. Fuller, wife of the commandant of the marine corps, and Mrs. Harry N. Cottes, wife of the commandant at Fort Myer.

Mrs. Stimson, wife of the secretary of state, left today by motor for their country place, High Hold, on Long Island, where the secretary will join her for the weekend and holiday.

The secretary of the navy, Charles Francis Adams, was the ranking guest at luncheon yesterday of Walter Hughes Newton, secretary to the President, who entertained at the University club as a farewell to Capt. Charles Russell Train, former naval aid to President Hoover, who is leaving Friday for Newport for duty.

Some Fathers Refuse to Be Family Cop

Feel Discipline Should Be Shared Equally.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"How much of the discipline of the family do you think a father should take care of?" I asked a man with several children the other day.

"Just as much as is directly related to him," he answered. "If my children need disciplining during the day when their mother is with them, she's the one who has to handle it. I won't have a thing to do with it.

"I think fathers make a great mistake when they allow misbehavior to be saved up for them until they come home at the end of the day," he continued in no uncertain terms.

What he didn't say in so many words but what he implied was that making father the disciplinarian weakens the mother's authority, besides making things extremely unpleasant for him. No man should want to be a family policeman—and if he does want to be one, it's a sign that there's something wrong with his attitude toward the children. It may mean that he's a tyrant at heart and glories in the exercise of his power to rule, and that he has no other place for his despotism. But we'll let the father who was talking express his ideas further.

"I don't mean to say," he went on, "that we don't confer about how we shall act, my wife and I. We often talk things over together, between ourselves. And we'll make plans or we'll frequently discuss a course of action before it is taken with the children.

"We have to get together and we want to. But that is entirely different from passing the buck. I simply will not discipline for the mother. And the children realize it. So we never have them appealing a decision. Each one of us, their mother and I, is a court of last resort."

Definiteness is good for children, and with treatment like this they know just where they stand.

Carl Endicott Is Elected International Kiwanis Head

Detroit, Mich., July 29.—(AP)—Carl E. Endicott of Huntington, Ind., today was elected president of Kiwanis International for 1932-'33 at the organization's seventeenth annual convention. He succeeds William O. Harris of Los Angeles. Joshua L. Johns of Appleton, Wis., and Andrew Whyte of Edmonton, Alberta, were named vice presidents. The delegates selected Los Angeles as the 1933 convention city.

Sally to Hold First Summer Party Today

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

This is a very big day for the boys and girls in and around Chicago—a big day for two reasons. One is that we open our season of summer parties this afternoon, with the first one at White City, and invitations have been sent to the hundred young people who wrote winning letters.

The second reason is that this morning I shall select my guests for our next party to be held at the R-K-O State-Lake theater on July 7, a week from today, when we will hear and see one of the most thrilling and talked of films of the year, "Bring 'Em Back Alive." I hope that all of you who want to be included in the lucky hundred wrote your letters in time to reach me this morning.

Invitations were sent to the White City winners early in the week, so you should have them now. They contain instructions for meeting and the time to be at the appointed place. Please be prompt, for there are so many things to do we will have to get started at once in order to get them all in. If, for any reason, you cannot come to the party, telephone me at THE TRIBUNE. However, I hope that happens to none of you, for I have visions of a grand time in White City.

Tea for Officials.

Mrs. A. Strawn Randall has invited about 50 of her friends to a tea for Mrs. Lon O. Hocker of St. Louis, national president of the Daughters of the American Constitution, at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Illinois Women's Athletic club.

"You couldn't pay me to use a strong soap"

I was ruining good clothes in my wash tub until—

Auntie said, "Change from that strong granulated soap to safe Chipso!"

I was so DEPRESSED at the way CLOTHES were WEARING OUT! Aunt Lou put her FINGER on the CAUSE, "It's your STRONG GRANULATED SOAP! You can tell it's UNSAFE by the WAY that it hurts your HANDS, dear."

* * *

I've CHANGED to CHIPSO. It's GUARANTEED to have NO FREE LYE! And, say, it's a TREAT to see how FAST CHIPSO SOAKS out dirt!

2 GOVERNMENTS WILL PAY BONDS; 3 MORE DEFAULT

City and Schools Meet Obligations Tomorrow.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The city and the school board will pay $9,718,351 in bonds and interest tomorrow—the due date. The schools have $1,500,000 in bonds and $500,000 in interest payable on that date. The city will pay off water plant certificates amounting to $428,173, corporate bonds totaling $4,366,000, and interest on bonds of $2,924,178. Neither the city nor the school board has defaulted on any bonds.

That is one side of the picture to be presented tomorrow. The other half is gloomy. Four other local governments—sanitary district, west park board, the county and the forest preserves—will default on probably $3,159,290 in bonds and interest. The west park board first defaulted on bond payments last Nov. 1.

Other Defaults Told.

The sanitary district was unable to pay its funded obligations on Jan. 1. The forest preserves started on the same day and have defaulted an even 12 times since; while the county started its run of defaulting last February, although its first default was on June 1, 1931. Enough cash, however, was garnered to pay part of that default of $1,600,000 and refunding bonds were issued for the remainder.

Although this particular default was cleared up, county bonds were put on the black list by the federal government by a ruling that they were not acceptable as investments for postal savings. Such bans usually continue for ten years.

On July 1 the sanitary district will have $1,836,000 in bonds due and $643,722 in interest. The west park obligations will be $425,000 in bonds and $152,688 in interest. The county has $50,000 in bonds and $26,310 in interest due on that same day; and the forest preserves will have $51,200 in interest due.

Pay Half of Interest.

Probably half of the forest preserve interest will be paid. President Whealan of the county board dug up enough money on June 1 to pay $450,000 in bonds and $166,325 in interest on county board bonds and has instructed the executive officers of the forest preserves to gather as much cash as possible for its interest requirements July 1.

These defaults, coupled with previous failures to pay, show the total bond and interest defaults of these four local governments as follows:

Government—	Defaulted— Bonds.	Interest.
Sanitary district	$4,665,000	$2,971,476
County	1,281,000	449,506
Forest preserves	1,240,000	337,000
West parks	725,000	482,379
Totals	$7,911,000	$4,240,021

These aggregate defaults of $12,151,021 will probably be increased with the bonds and interest which fall due in August unless more taxes are collected.

"The lack of tax payments is a seriously increasing injury to the credit of the local governments," commented Mayor Cermak, who has been attempting to borrow money on city tax anticipation warrants for city and school salaries. "More taxes must be paid if our credit is to be restored. There is no other way out."

North Chicago's Business Moratorium Called Success

North Chicago's first day of a business moratorium for the restoration of confidence was highly successful, it was reported last night by G. Robert Galloway, secretary of the chamber of commerce of Waukegan and North Chicago. Following the proclamation of Mayor Walter L. Atkinson for a five day cessation of business, 100 of the leading business men of the city started a systematic canvass aimed at allaying unrest among bank depositors. The response, according to Mr. Galloway, was gratifying. For the duration of the proclamation all business with the exception of food and drug dealers and public utilities will suspend operation.

CUT COST, BROADEN BASE OF TAXES, SAYS OFFICIAL IN INDIANA

Indianapolis, Ind., June 29.—[Special.]—Lieut. Gov. Edgar D. Bush of Salem, an active member of the farm bloc who will preside over the senate in the special session of the Indiana legislature beginning July 7, today announced, "I will sign no bill to reduce the cost of government until a like bill is presented to me for equitable distribution of the burden."

Bush expressed his views in reply to a letter from the Indianapolis real estate board commending him for his previous announcement that an effort would be made to prevent introduction of any measure other than those dealing with taxation and relief.

"There are two fundamental elements involved in the solution of the tax problem," Bush said today, "cutting the expense and broadening the base. I am not in sympathy with the selfish program of the tax dodger who argues that the only solution of the tax problem is to cut cost. I favor as a prime essential step a law limiting the tax on real estate to a maximum of 1 per cent. I am going to make a formal demand that the chairmen of both parties, the candidates for United States senator and governor, come in person and help us save the situation. It will furnish a fine opportunity for the voters to learn how they stand."

TEACHERS VOTE TO SAVE SELVES FROM USURERS

The formation of credit unions to protect teachers throughout the country from loan sharks and the establishment of a union placement bureau for teachers out of work were proposed at the convention of the American Federation of Teachers in the Knickerbocker hotel yesterday. Resolutions favoring the establishment of the six hour day and five day week in industry, unified government employment agencies, unemployment insurance, long range public works planning, and a national program of low cost home building were passed. Dr. Henry R. Linville of New York was reelected president, Mrs. Florence Hanson of Chicago secretary-treasurer, and Miss Selma M. Borchard legislative representative.

BOGAN RENAMED SCHOOL HEAD AS TEACHERS CHEER

Vote on Superintendent Is Unanimous.

William J. Bogan was reelected superintendent of Chicago's public school system by the unanimous vote of eight trustees at a meeting of the board of education yesterday. His name was the only one placed in nomination.

Three hundred teachers crowded into the Builder's building awaiting the outcome of the election. When the vote was announced, they rose to their feet and applauded. Twelve large floral pieces purchased by teachers were brought in and lined up against the wall.

Trustee H. Wallace Caldwell nominated Mr. Bogan and then read an eleven page report of the achievements and changes brought about by the superintendent during his last term of four years. Mr. Bogan expressed his gratitude to the board members for their confidence in him, and praised the teachers for their cooperation and spirit "in these difficult times."

Authorize New Warrants.

The board adopted a resolution of Trustee James A. Hemingway authorizing the city council to issue new 1931 tax anticipation warrants at 6 per cent to replace the old warrants bearing 4 per cent, which are held in the city's aggregate of funds. The city cannot receive more than 4 per cent interest and the action was taken in the hope that investors would purchase the new warrants.

According to the resolution, the city is holding 1931 warrants amounting to $16,404,000 for educational purposes, for building, $987,650, and playground, $121,000.

Thirteen Branches Closed.

The board also approved the recommendation of Mr. Bogan to close 13 elementary school branches, which, the superintendent said, would save $66,400 annually. A communication from the superintendent informed the board that it would receive in August a state warrant for $77,490 and a federal warrant for $126,984, which is Chicago's total reimbursement for money spent in trades and industrial classes.

The proposal of Trustee Ernst Buehler to reduce the 1932 tax levy for school purposes from $75,398,918 to $60,000,000 was sent to the committee of the whole, and will be taken up at the recessed meeting of the board next Wednesday.

CAR FOREMAN DROPS DEAD.

Bernard Bolger, 57 years old, 5917 West Erie street, collapsed and died of heart disease yesterday in the Armitage avenue car barn of the Chicago Surface lines, where he was division superintendent. He had been a street car employe for 36 years. His widow and one son survive.

WARDEN HILL LEAVES JOLIET TONIGHT FOR FEDERAL PRISON POST

Warden Henry C. Hill, who has accepted a position as warden of a federal prison, was given a set of office furniture yesterday by the 4,700 inmates of the Joliet and Stateville penitentiaries. He will leave tonight for Washington, D. C., to familiarize himself with federal prison methods, preparatory to taking up his duties on Sept. 1 as warden of the North East penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa.

Besides the parting gift of the prisoners, Warden Hill was given a petition signed by the entire prison population, urging him to remain at Joliet. He has been in charge of the Joliet and Stateville institutions since Aug. 12, 1929. Frank D. Whipp, state superintendent of prisons, will take charge pending appointment of a successor to Ward Hill.

MILLWORK ASS'N SETS UP OPEN SHOP IN TRADE

Acts When Carpenters Refuse Pay Cut.

Open shop was declared yesterday by the Chicago Millwork and Cabinet Manufacturers' association, following refusal of the carpenters' union to accept a 35 per cent wage reduction. Notices were sent out by Commissioner Harry Jensen to members of the association, representing 85 per cent of the industry in Chicago, that beginning today a scale of 65 cents an hour would become effective. The previous scale was $1 an hour.

President Thomas Flynn of the carpenters district counsel, served notice, according to Jensen, that the union men would be called out on strike.

Proposal at Meeting Falls.

At a meeting of employers and union representatives in the Nielsen company's offices, 2220 North Springfield avenue, a general agreement to extend for five years was proposed. Under this proposal wages were to be 15 per cent more than the average paid for similar work within a radius of 500 miles, the scale to be revised every year by a joint committee. Until such arrangements could be made the association proposed that the men accept the 65 cent scale.

It was to be understood that the men were to receive any difference between that figure and the scale ultimately agreed upon if it should exceed 65 cents.

To this the union representatives demurred and asked that negotiations continue, the scale to be untouched pending an agreement. The association refused.

Other Lines Not Included.

E. M. Craig, secretary of the National Association of Building Trades Employers, expressed the opinion that the millwork controversy would not affect other branches of the building industry. "Members of this association," he said, "have an agreement with the building trades unions that there shall be no discrimination against materials except those prison made."

The mill owners were represented in the conference by James Nielsen, Henry Kole, John Peterson, Henry Reynolds, and John Traeger. The union group, headed by Flynn, included Anton Johanson and Ted Kenny.

Business Men to Study Modern Housing Projects

Members of the West Central association will hold a luncheon today in the Sears, Roebuck & Co. store at State and Van Buren streets, after which they will inspect the exhibition of modern architecture and housing developments in the store. Charles Ascher of the public administration clearing house and Prof. Coleman Woodbury of the Northwestern university bureau of land economics will discuss limited dividend housing corporations and legal aspects of slum rehabilitation projects.

HADLEY HOLDS SOX TO 4 HITS; BROWNS WIN, 6-1

IF HERR BERGER IS SMART, HE'LL HUMOR WIATER

Golden Glove Star Declares War.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Hans Berger, the 26 year old German ship builder, who has a list of knockouts almost as long as this page, can have his choice of Vernon Miller or Adolph Wiater of the Golden Gloves team when the international bouts are held at Soldiers' field, July 26.

ADOLPH WIATER.

Miller or Wiater, light heavyweights, have declared war, and Herr Berger can take it or crawl into his shell.

Miller, as you know, is the 1932 champion of Chicago and intercity titleholder. Wiater, rugged, blond Pole from Green Bay, Wis., probably is the strongest man on the Golden Gloves team. He's got a grip of iron; bulging muscles and intelligence far above the average. Wiater now weighs 185 pounds, and prefers to battle heavyweights, but he can make 176 pounds and will if he can catch a German in Soldiers' field ring.

Gets His Chance.

Wiater was named as alternate on the 1932 Golden Gloves squad. Miller won the championship from Max Marek, who, of course, was awarded the runner-up position. Marek was the Catholic Youth champion in that tournament last December. He found, however, during the training period at the Illinois Athletic club that he could make the middleweight class. So Marek fought in that division against New York.

This change gave Wiater a chance in the 175 pound class. He lost his intercity bout by a close margin and principally because of inexperience. He's had only 25 bouts. No boxer on the squad has shown as rapid improvement as has Wiater. He is equipped for boxing by nature and all he needs is experience.

Adolph is 20 years of age. He still lives in Green Bay, his birth place, where his father, Walter Wiater, is employed in a paper mill. Adolph is one of six sons and there are five daughters. He is the only one of the boys who has turned to boxing as a sport, and shortly boxing will be his means of livelihood, for after the international bouts Adolph expects to turn professional.

He's a Pickle Canner.

Wiater was graduated from East High school, Green Bay, in 1930. In his school days he wrestled and also learned the tricks of tumbling, all of which developed his body to its splendid proportions. After graduation he started work in a pickle factory, and Lester J. Kelley, owner and manager of the Green Bay Food company, is Wiater's staunchest supporter. He believes he will go far as a boxer and intends to see that he has every opportunity.

While Wiater has had only 25 fights, of which he has lost four, this is in his favor. He hasn't fought himself out as have many amateurs, and since he didn't begin boxing until he was 18, he was fully matured. Adolph's first bout was at Camp McCoy, Sparta, Wis., when in training with the National Guard in July, 1930.

This year he entered the Wisconsin Golden Gloves tournament at Milwaukee, which was sponsored by the Milwaukee bureau of THE TRIBUNE and promoted by the Milwaukee Eagles club. He came through the 175 pound class successfully and then fought in the tournament of champions at the Stadium until eliminated by Max Marek. Marek, Welsh Easterling, and Bob Pastor, his opponent in New York, are the only boxers who have whipped Wiater.

Fourteen Bouts Billed.

The makeup of the squad, which goes to Lake Wawasee, Ind., July 10 for two weeks' training, gradually is taking form. There will be at least two boxers in each division, and such is their caliber that the selection of the Golden Glover to meet the German champion in each weight will not be known until completion of the camp drills.

In addition to the eight international fights at Soldiers' field July 26 there will be six preliminary bouts, the first of which will start at 8 o'clock. Members of the Golden Gloves squad will be named for these preliminary fights and they will be opposed by the best boxers available in Chicago and surrounding territory.

BASS JUMP INTO CANOES, SCOUTS FALL INTO RIVER

Tribune Party Visits Old Battle Ground.

BY BOB BECKER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Millington, Fox River, Ill., June 29.—There were activities enough for a three ring circus today in the Chicago Boy Scout party paddling down the Fox river in a fleet of eleven canoes. By noon this cruise, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, had recorded the following activities since leaving the camp site about a half mile above the Plano bridge this morning:

Howard Rich and John Denton tried to sneak through a short piece of fast water below the Millbrook dam with their canoe broadside instead of prow first, and were dumped into the shallow water, thus getting three rousing Bronx cheers from the rest of the scouts.

Bill Himel and Bob O'Connell won first prize for the neatest tent in the camp making contest.

Bob Wells and Bob Grosscup took all the honors in the black bass high hurdling race by having three bass jump into their canoe in less than a mile of paddling. One fish measured 15 inches in length.

Look Out, Insects!

Howard Hawkins has been galloping around with a glass jar, whenever time ashore permits, seeking insects for an insect life merit badge.

A combination Indian history and nature study hike was made to the old Meramech battle ground near Plano, to permit the boys to inspect one of the famous historical spots on the river.

Assistant Scoutmaster Ernest Schmidt recorded his 38th species of bird seen or heard since the cruise started from Aurora.

In addition to these activities the scouts found plenty of time to paddle down stream at a merry clip and punish a lunch consisting of hot corn bread and butter, cold sliced ham, baked beans, and sliced peaches.

The quarter mile hike to Meramech gave the scouts an excellent chance to do some nature study and learn a page or two from early Illinois history. While on the road to the hill they were shown a number of new shrubs, trees, and plants, including the sycamore, red elm, and red cedar. They learned how to identify poison ivy and nonpoisonous vines. Several new birds, including the Phoebe, also were added to their bird list.

And Nary an Arrowhead.

On the high Meramech hill the boys inspected the site of the battle in which the French and their allies practically wiped out a band of 300 Fox warriors and their families, early in September in 1730, following a three weeks' siege. After hearing the story of this savage fight the scouts tried to locate some arrowheads, but nary a one could be found.

Another big campfire jamboree is scheduled for this evening. Several of the boys threaten to dig deep into their pack sacks and haul out mouth organs, to contribute to this evening's song and story telling hour. Inasmuch as the canoe carriers expect to visit the Aurora scout council's camp near Serena for a big campfire show and stunt program, these Chicago lads are putting their heads together to figure out some stunts and loosen up their vocal chords.

Aurora, Here We Come!

A couple of canoe tilters are being groomed to do their stuff against any opposition, and tonight the baseball experts in the crowd are getting ready to issue a challenge to the Aurora scout group for an indoor baseball game.

GOLF TOURNEY VICTOR REJECTS PRIZE OF AUTO

Dallas, Tex., June 29.—[Special.]—Gus Moreland, young Texas golfer who recently won the Trans-Mississippi golf championship at Oklahoma City, turned down a $3,000 automobile today which was awarded him by Trans-Mississippi officials.

"I figured that the United States Golf association officials would prefer that I refuse such an expensive gift," he said.

MERRILY WE PADDLE ALONG—TO CAMP AND BEANS

Where's that camp—and beans? Chicago Boy Scouts paddling down the Fox river on the Tribune's annual canoe cruise are glad to get in camp—and at those beans—each night. Here they are arriving at Plano, Ill., where they spent the night under pup tents. Happy looking lot, eh? How'd you like to be in one of those canoes, Buddy? So would we! [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Loughran Whips Hamas; Gets Even for Two Defeats

Philadelphia, Pa., June 29.—[Special.]—Staging a remarkable comeback, Tommy Loughran, former world's light heavyweight champion, defeated Steve Hamas of Passaic, N. J., in ten rounds at Shibe park tonight.

A crowd of 10,000 saw Loughran gain the decision with jabs and right uppercuts. Several months ago Hamas won a ten round verdict over Loughran here and earlier Hamas had stopped Tommy in the second round.

Loughran's nose was cut and the left side of his head bled from the eighth round on, but he fought back courageously.

The bout was held up almost a half hour as Joe Smith, manager of Loughran, objected to Tommy Reilly officiating. A compromise was effected when Joe McGuigan stepped into the ring. The judges disagreed at the finish and McGuigan's vote decided in favor of Loughran.

Hamas weighed 187 and Loughran one pound less.

Cubs Open Home Stay with Reds Today; Barton Is Back

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Unless the Cubs are in error, they'll be turning over a new leaf this afternoon, when they try to bow themselves back into the good graces of the home folks, who haven't seen them since June 1. However, they've been in error so frequently during the last three weeks, that their good intentions may prove to be just another one of those things.

They couldn't be provided with a better spot in which to set themselves moving again in the right direction. The opposition will be furnished by the Cincinnati Reds, who, after a short spell of high hatting in a contending röle, have slipped down so far that the other entries have been using them as a stepping stone to better things. The Cubs haven't had such a chance since the Reds lost their kick; so now they may be able to make amends for the loss of half of their fourteen attempts against the Rhinelanders earlier in the season.

Cuyler Back in Center.

In their effort to make a fresh start by overcoming their glaring weakness, the Cubs will have the help this afternoon, and for an indefinite period, of Vin Barton, who is well known hereabouts. The big Canadian was the right field regular during the last half of the 1931 race and remained this season long enough to enjoy a few cups of coffee. When he developed into a total loss as a hitter Hornsby decided the young man might be of great assistance to the Reading International league team, so he was sent there under a 24 hour recall option. Notice of recall was served Tuesday.

Barton has been doing quite a bit of consistent long distance hitting with the "Keys," and there is hope that his stretch in the minors will show results. He will be stationed in right field today and given the fourth or fifth notch in the batting order. Johnny Moore, who has been operating in center, will go to the bench and Ki Cuyler will move from right to his old middle garden job.

Bush Due on Victory List.

After two days in which nothing more strenuous than batting practice took place, Hornsby could pick any one of about five pitchers for the opener today but probably will name Guy Bush, who is about due to shake off a run of bad luck. During the hapless eastern tour Bush managed to eke out a 5 to 3, thirteen inning win over the Braves and that was the extent of his good fortune for three weeks. The Dodgers rode him out of the park, the Giants nosed him out of a commendable performance by 4 to 2, the Phils treated him as if he were in the wrong league and the Cardinals were a bit rough with him in two rescue attempts.

The Reds probably will turn up with Red Lucas in the pitching röle this afternoon. There is method in that procedure. While the Reds were taking it on the chin from the Cards the last two days, Lucas was being fed up on the idea that he could trim the Cubs, merely by telling them he was going to pitch. Lucas had done that thing three times already this season so it is possible that he himself believes what Manager Dan Howley has been preaching. Howley has another Cub jinx in Ben Frey who couldn't stay in the league if the Cubs weren't there.

AQUEDUCT PUTS JOCKEYS UNDER NEW GAG RULE

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—All jockeys at the Aqueduct track have been confined to quarters during riding hours. The stewards today ordered that all riders must remain within the guarded precincts of the jockey house from the time they report, at about 1 o'clock in the afternoon, until the day's racing is over.

When they ride in races they must proceed as quickly as they can to the paddock and return to the jockey house immediately after weighing in. They are forbidden to speak to people on the way, it is understood.

The reason for this drastic order is due to a complaint made by a prominent member of the Jockey club that there were leaks of stable secrets.

So the stewards acted promptly and not only locked up the jockeys but closed the office of the clerk of the scales, which also is the weighing-in room, to everybody.

FARRELL BREAKS MASSACHUSETTS COURSE RECORD

Osterville, Mass., June 29.—[Special.]—With a record breaking 69, Johnny Farrell of Mamaroneck, N. Y., today took the lead at the end of the opening 18 holes of play in the Massachusetts state open golf championship tournament at the Oyster Harbor club.

One stroke back of the former national open champion, who also is a former winner of the state open title, was Francis Ouimet of the Woodland [Mass.] Golf club, who was making his first apearance in competitive golf since he won the national amateur last year.

Third place was held by Joe Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., with a 71, while Mike Turnesa, Tony Manero, and Willy Cox, all professionals from the metropolitan district, had 72s.

EVERGOLD'S THE NAME! BACKERS COLLECT $58.70

Field Horse Wins Stake at Arlington.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Evergold, owned by Dick and Pat Nash of Chicago, dropped from out of the clear sky down on to the Arlington Park race course yesterday afternoon and at odds of 28 to 1 captured the Garfield Stakes, which engaged a band of top notch 3 year olds.

When Jockey Bobby Jones brought him up from behind in the stretch to wear down one colt after another and finally catch and conquer Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Stepenfetchit in the final strides, he shocked everybody in the crowd but the Nash brothers. They quit the Democratic convention long enough to come out and see him run and to wager a couple of dollars on his chance of victory.

Yeah, He's a Field Horse.

Grouped in the field and hardly given a chance to keep step with the stylish three year olds in the struggle, Evergold provided the biggest upset of the Arlington Jockey club's young season. Except for the Nash brothers and the habitual players of field horses, Evergold went entirely neglected in the betting. Only a few folks even knew he was in the race, while the so called smart crowd went down hook, line and sinker on Stepenfetchit, Springsteel, Yonkel and two or three others.

So when the official numbers were hung out and the folks began to realize that such a horse as Evergold had been in the race the mutuel odds revealed that the "fielder" had paid $58.70 to win, $18.48 to place, and $7.64 to show. You should have heard those field horse players cheer, and most of them didn't even know they were betting on Evergold.

Our Fancy Sets Pace.

Twelve went to the post and Our Fancy made a dizzy pace for half a mile, running it in :45 3-5. He was also in front at the end of three-quarters, which was run in 1:10 2-5. Jockey Allen had moved Stepenfetchit from seventh place into second place by this time and the big chestnut son of The Porter was fighting for his head. When he got up on even terms with Our Fancy turning out of the lower bend into the stretch the Whitney colt began to shape up as a sure winner.

Evergold had been ninth, but Jones was rousing him and guiding him up on the outside. When Stepenfetchit got ready to pass Our Fancy, Evergold had reached third place and was only two lengths from the lead.

Stepenfetchit Drops Back.

Jones rode as hard as any kid ever did for the next half furlong, so he passed Our Fancy and went up head and head with Stepenfetchit. The battle lasted just for a second. Stepenfetchit hung his head and began to drop back. Evergold raced on in better stride than ever and wound up the winner by three-quarters of a length. Stepenfetchit had all he could do to hold the fast finishing Yonkel safe and beat him out of second money by a length.

Lots of excuses have been made for Stepenfetchit this season. But there didn't seem to be an alibi of any kind for him in the Garfield, although some Stepenfetchit backers were complaining that Allen rode him with too much confidence. But he doesn't seem to be very much of a horse.

On Sir Ties Record.

There were two other brilliant performances during the afternoon. In the fourth race, fashioned for $3,500 selling platers, On Sir, racing in the silks of Jim Norris of Chicago, traveled a mile in 1:35 3-5 to tie the track record held by Lady Broadcast.

It was one of the fastest run miles of the year, and if a horse like On Sir can step over the Arlington track that fast wh: will Equipoise, Jamestown, and other flyers do to the record when they turn on all their speed?

Despite his speedy trip over the eight furlongs, On Sir had all he could do to beat Wise Advocate, owned by Fred Barton of Chicago, by a neck. Both riders were whipping with all their might down the last furlong and Chiavetta rode the stronger finish on On Sir or the result might have been different.

Wise Advocate sailed to the front early and pulled out into a comfortable lead on the lower bend rounding into the home stretch. Marlene was

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., June 29.—The Chicago White Sox this afternoon lost the opener with the wide awake St. Louis Browns, 6 to 1, on a meager diet of four hits, but they made progress in their drive to set a major league error record, perpetrating three in the last two innings.

The belated errors—one came in the seventh and two in the eighth—brought the Sox total for their last five games to an even twenty. This pace will assure them of the all-time league misplay record, but there was some criticism of the way the boys waited till so late in today's game.

Appling made the first error, a bad throw after fielding a bunt. Fothergill got credit for the second one when he fell on the seat of his bloomers and got smacked in the chin by a single, and Selph, with just a commonplace boot, let the last Brownie get home in the eighth.

Heat—Not Sox—Gets Bump.

Half of the Sox hits came in the first inning to give the slugging Chicagoans their only run. The others came in the third and fourth innings, each after two were out.

Bump Hadley was the winning pitcher, though he retired from the game in the seventh under a Sox barrage of two bases on balls. Bump is sensitive to the St. Louis type of heat and this probably had more to do with his withdrawal than fear of a Chicago base hit.

Ted Lyons carried on much longer than it required to convince spectators that he did not have his stuff. In fact, the winning run was sent home in the second inning ahead of a homer by Len Storti. Researchers are delving into the records to learn if Storti ever knocked a home run before.

Further damage, though entirely unnecessary, was done by that troublesome fellow, Goose Goslin, who socked a triple with two out and two on in the fifth inning.

Sox Score First, Anyway.

The two nines came out of the first inning tied at one all. Funk got the one for the Sox. He singled to center, went to second on Hayes' out, and scored on Selph's single to right. Selph got to second on the throw-in, but he stayed right there while Fothergill popped one to Goslin in short left and died when Levey threw out Kress.

At the outset of their offensive the Browns appeared on the way to more than they got. Schulte walked and went to third on Burns' line single to right. Campbell fled to Kress and Schulte scored after the catch. Burns holding first. Goslin lined to Kress and Burns was doubled off first.

The Brownies took the lead in the second inning, but the Sox were happy to hold them to two runs on a homer and three singles. Melillo opened with one of the singles, then Storti smacked the ball over the right field pavilion, scoring Melillo ahead of him. Bengough singled to left, paused while Levey fanned and Hadley flied to Funk and then went to third on Schulte's single to center. Blue ran to the bag at first to spear Burns' grounder for the third out.

Sox Rally! Get 2 Walks.

Hayes doubled with two out in the third, but was out trying to make it a triple and in the fourth Kress doubled with two out and died when Blue flied to Schulte.

In the fifth inning the Browns again opened up on Lyons. Burns walked with two out and went to third on Campbell's single to center. Goslin then tripled, scoring Burns and Campbell. Melillo walked, but Storti fanned.

The Sox rallied with two bases on balls to drive Hadley from the game in the seventh. Fothergill walked and so did Kress. Hadley threw two wide ones to Blue, whereupon Gray relieved Bump and made Blue tap to Melillo. Appling then lined to Melillo and Kress was doubled off second.

THREE HANDICAP STARS CLASH AT ARLINGTON TODAY

Equipoise, Spanish Play Meet Jamestown.

There's a three horse race on the program at Arlington Park this afternoon which would have demanded a $50,000 prize not much more than a year ago. It brings into action Equipoise, Jamestown, and Spanish Play.

Yet they come together today in the $1,500 Delavan purse at a mile, and if the track is not molested by rain the world's record for a mile over the Hertz course may fall.

It is the meeting between Equipoise and Jamestown which is attracting all the attention, although Spanish Play is so favorably weighted with 106 pounds his army of backers in Chicago give him a royal chance of trimming the two great eastern stars. Equipoise picks up 128 pounds and Jamestown 118.

Jamestown and Equipoise fought for the 2 year old championship in 1930. They came together in only one engagement. That was in the Belmont Futurity. Jamestown won by a very narrow margin from Equipoise.

Most people rated Jamestown as the juvenile champion. Others said Equipoise was the better horse. Both went wrong early in their 3 year old campaigns. Now they are back fighting for the handicap championship as 4 year olds. The race will be their final conditioner for the Stars and Stripes handicap to be run on Monday.

Last night betting was 7 to 10 Equipoise, 2 to 1 Jamestown and 4 to 1 Spanish Play. Lonny Workman will ride Equipoise, Pony McAtee will be up on Jamestown, and Charley Landolt in the saddle on Spanish Play.

A field of 14 is in prospect for the $20,000 Arlington Oaks Saturday. Top Flight, Suntica, and Evening will be the top weights in the mile and a furlong event which old time racegoers believe will be the finest three year old filly race run during the last 20 years in America.

The probable field with weights and jockeys follows:

Horse.	Wt.	Jockey.
Late Date	116	H. Schuttle
Boiling Water	116	L. Fator
Kakapo	118	W. Fronk
Polonaise	118	L. Knapp

Flag Trick	116	F. Chiavetta
Lady Teddy	116	E. Ambrose
Canron	118	R. Jones
Top Flight	121	R. Workman
Evening	121	R. Leischman

Evening and Top Flight underwent important trials for the Oaks yesterday morning. Both showing good speed over the full distance of nine furlongs. Evening was timed in 1:52 after going the half in :47, three quarters in 1:11 3-5 and the mile in 1:37. Top Flight went along at a slower pace, but her workout pleased trainer Thomas J. Healey. Her final time was 1:54 4-5 after six furlongs in 1:15 2-5 and the mile in 1:41 3-5. The C. V. Whitney miss did her final furlong in :13 1-5, whereas Evening required 15 seconds.

Mate, winner of the Classic last season as well as the Preakness and American Derby, arrived at Arlington yesterday from Belmont Park along with three other horses owned by A. C. Bostwick and one the property of G. H. Bostwick. The latter gentleman rider will be here in a few days and will guide Mate in his engagements in the Stars and Stripes handicap, Arlington Gold Cup, and Arlington Handicap. Proteus, Scuttle and Accent were the other members of the A. C. Bostwick band, while Don Tasker was the lone representative of the younger brother.

George D. Widener, owner of Evening and Jamestown, will travel to Chicago from his home in Philadelphia to see the most prominent members of his stable in their engagements Saturday and Monday.

Dr. Freeland, owned by Benny Creech, and the Northway stable's Plucky Play, two leading candidates for the Stars and Stripes handicap, had useful trials yesterday morning. The former galloped a mile in 1:43 1-5 and the latter three quarters in 1:16 4-5.

ORDER TRAINER OF PHAR LAP BACK TO AUSTRALIA

Tommy Woodcock, trainer of the late Phar Lap, who was hired by Willis Sharpe Kilmer after the Australian wonder horse died, will have to go back to his native land, it appeared last night.

Word was received from Mr. Kilmer, who is in Harrisonburg, Va., that Woodcock's passport expires July 15 and government authorities have refused to extend it.

The Australian trainer is at Arlington Park with a division of the Kilmer stable. He saddled his first winner for Mr. Kilmer Tuesday when Sunmelus captured the third race.

"I greatly regret losing Woodcock's services at this time," Mr. Kilmer said. "His training methods have had my heartiest approval and coöperation. I hope to be able at a later date to induce Woodcock to return to America permanently."

Mr. Kilmer made no statement regarding the status of W. Elliott, Phar Lap's jockey, who has been riding at Washington Park and Arlington.

Coucci's Fine Ride Enables Okapi to Win

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—Jockey Coucci, rising apprentice rider, had to display his best riding form to guide the Brookmeade stable's Okapi to victory by a head over Balios in the Canarsie stakes, feature event on the Aqueduct card today. Balios was ridden by Jockey Mills, Coucci's chief rival for riding honors. Merry Caroline finished third in the field of ten starters in the five furlong sprint.

The stake was worth $5,675. The winner was timed in :59 flat and paid odds of 4 to 5.

The field was dispatched in perfect order with little delay. Balios showed the most early speed and rushed to the front, with Okapi and Fingal showing the way to the others. On the turn on the main track Balios held a length lead. In the middle of the stretch Coucci moved up on even terms with the pacemaker and in a long drive Okapi outgamed Balios for the honors.

After considerable wrangling by the stewards Concord, the favorite in the mile of the third event, was awarded the decision. Yancey was moved into second position, with Epoch third in a race that was marred by rough riding. Cloudy Day was disqualified.

Just Imagine, coupled with Kybo as Mrs. C. O. Iselin's entry, proved an easy winner of the second race at 6½ furlongs for maiden 3 year old and upward fillies and mares.

DODGERS POUND 3 PITCHERS; BEAT PHILLIES, 7 TO 0

Hack Wilson Hits 15th Homer of Season.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 29.—(AP)—Harold Elliott, Phillies pitcher, who is known as Ace because he is reputed to be always in the hole, got into a hole the Phillies couldn't pull him out of today and the Brooklyn Dodgers won the series opener, 7 to 0.

Hollis Thurston was the principal reason why the Phils could make no progress toward recovery after the Dodgers had scored four runs in the third inning. He yielded only five hits, scattered over as many innings, and won his sixth straight game and his second shutout in a row.

CARDS BEAT REDS, 10-9.

Cincinnati, O., June 29.—(AP)—With the ball game roosting on his bat, Gilbert lined into a double play today to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 10 to 9 decision over the Cincinnati Reds. The teams had matched rallies when the game fell from a pitchers' battle in the sixth. First the Reds batted around for five runs on six hits in the seventh, next the Cards rained singles, which with Orsatti's triple, brought six runs in the eighth. Then, with three walks and four straight singles to build on, Gilbert hit to the wrong spot.

Ohio State and Yale Take Lead in College Golf

HOT SPRINGS, Va., June 29.—(AP)—Ohio State and Yale, sending two contenders each into the quarter finals of the national intercollegiate golf championship, held a numerical advantage today after a pair of explosive opening rounds which saw the hopes of the far west shattered.

Princeton, Washington and Lee, Dayton, and Michigan each placed a man in tomorrow's thirty-six hole quarter finals as Don Moe of Oregon, western amateur champion; Henry Kowal of Colgate, medalist; and Fred Kammer of Princeton were eliminated in startling upsets.

Kepler Beats Fuller, 6 and 4.

Robert Kepler of Ohio State, runner up last year, overwhelmed Winston Fuller of Southern California, 6 and 4, this afternoon, after downing his teammate, George Berry, in the first eighteen hole match. John Florio, another Buckeye golfer eliminated Reuben Albaugh of Rice institute, 3 and 2. Previously he had won a 1 up decision over M. P. Warner of Yale, north-south amateur champion.

John Parker and Sidney Noyes scored victories for Yale. Parker removed Gail Stockton of Southern California, 2 and 1, after defeating John Howard of Michigan, 4 and 3. Noyes won both matches by a 1 up decision, defeating Bill Nacios of Penn State on the eighteenth and later downing Eddie Dayton of Michigan on the nineteenth.

Moffett Wins from Kowal and Heath.

Robert Moffett of Princeton easily beat Kowal in his first match, 4 and 2, and then crushed Milan Heath of Harvard, 3 and 2. Heath beat Moe this morning, 3 and 1. Billy Howell of Washington and Lee conquered Fred Damaske of Northwestern, 7 and 5, and won from Chester Birch of Dartmouth, 3 and 1.

Eddie Hammett of Dayton won from John Reston of Illinois, 1 up, after defeating David Gamble of Yale, 2 and 1, and Johnny Fischer of Michigan won from John Gordon of Princeton, 1 up, on the nineteenth after eliminating R. G. Bohnen of Chicago, 3 and 2.

Maureen Orcutt's 83 Is Stroke Over Low Gross

Englewood, N. J., June 29.—[Special.]—Maureen Orcutt failed by one stroke today to win the low gross prize in her first metropolitan tournament appearance since her return from England. She scored an 83 in the women's Metropolitan Golf association tournament at the Englewood Golf club to trail Ben Gottlier of Lakeville by one stroke. Mrs. George Rudnick's 84—10—74 took the low net prize.

Yanks Defeat Senators, 6-5; Gomez Routed

New York, June 29.—(AP)—The Yankees and their star southpaw, Vernon Gomez, both had close calls today but they came through safely and with a certain degree of success. The Yanks further increased their lead in the American league by defeating the Washington Senators, 6 to 5, and Gomez, although he failed to win his 12th straight game, got by without a defeat.

After a good start, Gomez weakened badly in the seventh and eighth innings, allowing the Senators to tie the score twice. The second time he was removed in favor of George Pipgras, who was credited with the victory, as New York scored the winning run in the last half of the inning. It was the first time in ten starts Gomez had been driven to cover.

Cleveland, O., June 29.—(AP)—Detroit pummelled the Cleveland Indians almost at will today, netting 16 hits from three pitchers and finishing up on the long end of a 13 to 4 score.

While his mates were driving Clint Brown and Willis Hudlin to the showers, Earl Whitehill pitched invincible ball for seven innings. The Indians scored two in the seventh and their last two in the eighth when Earl Averill connected with his 14th home run, scoring Cissell ahead of him. Joe Boley, ex-Athletic, made his debut in a Cleveland uniform.

In the Wake of the News

INTERNATIONAL TENNIS.

IN discussing the Davis cup yesterday, The Wake pointed out that two great players from one nation usually dominated trophy tenure for a period of from four to six years during the period of being "at the top of their game." That suggests the question whether this is quite fair, whether it truly represents international supremacy?

This condition is possible because there are only five matches in the Davis cup competition, four in singles and one in doubles. Thus an outstanding player practically insures two singles matches for his nation. If his teammate can win one singles, or if he also can team in the doubles, as frequently has been done, the Davis cup is practically won by one player. It is certain to be won by two outstanding players.

It must be conceded that such play involves great physical strain. Perhaps that is the reason why the older players fade, sometimes almost prematurely before younger men. Whether or not such is the case, one may ask again whether this best serves the purpose of the Davis cup.

Present conditions have stood since 1900. Suggestion of a change, therefore, would be almost revolutionary even in a radical age. So The Wake brings up, for controversial purposes rather than a suggestion, the thought that the number of matches might be raised to give greater participation. The matches for decision might be nine, instead of five, with six singles and three doubles, and no player eligible to compete in more than two matches.

Such an arrangement would make more places on a team and encourage younger men who now must wait their turn until the veterans falter. It is great experience for a young player to engage in international matches. Tennis has become worldwide. It is probably more worldwide than any other sport at this time. The idea is worth a thought, Mr. World Rulers of tennis.

YACHT RACE TO BERMUDA WON BY MALABAR 10TH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAMILTON, Bermuda, June 29.—Malabar 10th, owned by John G. Alden of Edgartown, Mass., was the winner of the class A Montauk Point-Bermuda race, it was announced today. The class B winner was Dorade, a large yawl owned by Roderick Stephens Jr. of Larchmont, N. Y.

Malabar's corrected time in the race was 69 hours 43 minutes and 48 seconds. It had almost a two hour edge over Highland Light, owned by Frank Paine of Boston. Dorade, which was sailed by its owner, won the trans-Atlantic race to England last summer.

Sox Name Jones to Face Browns in 2d of Series

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., June 29.—The Chicago White Sox and the St. Louis Browns tomorrow will play the second game of their five game series. Sam Jones is slated to work against George Blaeholder.

Bruce Campbell, class of '32, was held to two singles. He scored one run and drove in one.

Arthur Evans, the new lefty, pitching the ninth, again appeared good. Two typical Sox errors were made behind him and didn't seem to upset him very much. That is the kind of a strong heart a Sox pitcher has to have.

It was the sixth victory for Bump Hadley, class of '32. St. Louis observers seem of the opinion that the White Sox got skinned badly in trading Campbell and Hadley for Kress.

The White Sox are scheduled for a day of rest Friday. The next thing is to learn how to rest in St. Louis on July 1.

Brownie fans, if you can call them fans, resigned to accepting last place when the season started, now are talking about a place high in the first division. And they may land there, too.

Ohio Will Send Strong Team to Olympic Test

Additional track stars have entered the semi-final Olympic track and field tryouts to be held at Dyche stadium Saturday, it was announced yesterday by Racine Thompson, director of the meet. A strong delegation is coming from the near eastern Ohio district of the A. A. U.

In this group are Lowell Allen, winner of the Big Six pole vault title, with a record of 13 feet 8 inches; Jim Leske, high jumper, with a mark of 6 feet 5 inches; Peter Rasmus, former Ohio State All-American football star and holder of the Big Ten discus record, and Jesse Owens, sprinter and jumper.

Iowa Sends Saling and Gordon.

Iowa is sending George Saling in the hurdles, and Edward Gordon, who can be counted on for at least 25 feet in the broad jump.

Michigan State Normal has entered Rha Arnold in the 400 meter run; Kenneth Simmons in the 400 meter hurdles, and James McKinley in the pole vault. Glenn Rice of Arkansas, who sails the javelin 215 feet, has entered this event.

Louisiana State university has entered Eddie Stockwell in the 200 meter dash, Alvin Mereau in the 110 meter hurdles, Glenn Hardin in the 400 meter hurdles, and G. S. Bowman and Sid Bowman in the hop, step, and jump. Another Louisiana boy who promises stiff competition in the hurdle events is Lloyd H. Bourgeois of Loyola university of New Orleans.

Winners Go to Finals.

Proceeds from the meet will go to the Olympic fund to aid in financing the American team in the Olympic games. Winners of first, second, and third places in the meet will be sent to Palo Alto, Cal., to compete in the finals for the Olympic team.

Ross' Bout with Miller Is Shifted to Next Thursday

The West Side Boxing club yesterday set ahead the Barney Ross-Ray Miller bout from July 14 to next Thursday, July 7, at Sparta stadium. Miller is to return from Pittsburgh today to begin training at the Arcade gymnasium. Ross has started training at George Trafton's gymnasium.

Charlie Retzlaff will be out of the ring for a month because of an injury to his right hand, his manager, Jack Hurley, said yesterday. Retzlaff received the injury against Les Marriner Tuesday. Charley left last night for his farm at Leonard, N. D., and Hurley went to Duluth, Minn. The injury caused cancellation of a match with Isadoro Gastanaga of South America at New York July 19. Gastanaga and his manager, Solly King, will stop off in Chicago next month on their way to Los Angeles.

Henry Firpo, Louisville, Ky., middleweight, has returned to Chicago after an absence of three weeks. His purse for a match with Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, was attached by a former manager, Tom Jones, at Louisville last May 6. A settlement was made when Firpo agreed to give Jones a percentage of his future ring earnings.

Jack Art has signed to manage Mickey O'Shea, north side fighter.

HELEN JACOBS WINS, AND IS HER OPPONENT HUFFY!

Mme. Mathieu Almost Pulls Hair at Wimbledon.

BY EUGENE SPECK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WIMBLEDON, June 29.—The fading American glow over the Wimbledon tennis tournament finals was rekindled to a fresh blaze today through the victory of Helen Jacobs of California over Mme. Rene Mathieu of France in a semi-finals match, upholding the expectations of complete American domination of the women's singles. Mrs. Helen Wills Moody is an almost certain winner in her semi-final match tomorrow.

Everybody was peeved while Miss Jacobs was beating the French woman, 7-5, 6-1, and most of all Mme. Mathieu herself. She walked off alone after the defeat, leaving the surprised Miss Jacobs to trail behind, flabbergasted at the transgression on the age long tradition that the vanquished must leave with at least a courteous pretense of friendliness to the victor.

Friendly Match? Hah!

Friends of the French No. 1 player were quick to defend her against the charge of bad manners, asserting, "It's her way." But the match had been a testy meeting from the time Mme. Mathieu lost her composure because of Miss Jacobs' concern with keeping her blue bandeau straight, and it became an open breach in the second set when Miss Jacobs tried to delay Mme. Mathieu's second service because the ball boy was on the court.

The umpire ordered Mme. Mathieu to play the second ball, but she refused until the entire point was replayed. The pair's greeting after the match was dampened by Mme. Mathieu's curt handshake and huffy departure.

Mrs. Moody plays Mary Heeley of England tomorrow and should furnish the only all-American final in the tournament. The prospects of a United States final in the men's doubles was destroyed this afternoon when the Englishmen, George Hughes and Fred Perry, defeated Sidney B. Wood Jr. and Gregory Mangin, 7-5, 7-5, 6-4. Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn beat J. S. Olliff of England and R. Menzel of Czechoslovakia, 6-4, 6-3, 8-6, 6-3.

Chance for Every Title.

There is still a chance, however, of Americans taking every championship. Ellsworth Vines Jr. dominates the singles and Allison and Van Ryn the doubles in the semi-final stage. Miss Jacobs is safely in the finals of the women's singles and shares the favorite place with Miss Elizabeth Ryan in the semi-finals of the women's doubles. Vines and Mrs. Moody are ranked first in the semi-finals of the mixed doubles.

Today's results:

WOMEN'S SINGLES.

Helen Jacobs [U. S.] beat Mme. Rene Mathieu [France], 7-5, 6-1.

MIXED DOUBLES.

Elizabeth Ryan [U. S.] and Enrique Maier [Spain], beat Mrs. B. C. Covell [England] and Jack Clemenger [Australia], 6-7, 6-2, 6-0.

Betty Nuthall [England] and Dr. P. B. Spence [South Africa], beat Hilda Krahwinkel and Herr von Cramm [Germany], 7-5, 2-6, 6-2.

MEN'S DOUBLES.

Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn [U. S.] beat Roderich Menzel [Czechoslovakia] and J. S. Olliff [England], 6-4, 3-6, 8-6, 6-3.

George Patrick Hughes and Fred Perry [England] beat Sidney B. Wood Jr. and Gregory Mangin [U. S.], 7-5, 7-5, 6-3.

Jiro Satch and R. Miki [Japan] beat Christian Boussus and Andre Merlin [France], 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 6-1.

MEN'S SINGLES.

Schedule for tomorrow: Ellsworth Vines Jr. [U. S.] vs. Jack Crawford [Australia] and Jiro Satch [Japan] vs. H. W. [Bunny] Austin [England].

Walker Cup Team Minus Goodman Surprise to Fans

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—The failure of the United States Golf association to include Johnny Goodman of Omaha, Neb., on the American Walker cup team of ten named yesterday to play against the British this year at Brookline, Mass., was a surprise to followers of the game.

Goodman eliminated Bobby Jones at Pebble Beach in 1929 and he has done some good golfing deeds since. Since the Pebble Beach flare Goodman has missed few opportunities to add to his reputation, although he has yet to win the amateur championship.

He has been the outstanding amateur since the departure of Bobby Jones and George Von Elm in qualifying for the play in the national open, two years ago leading all the district trials. This branch of his career he brought to a brilliant peak last Saturday by shooting a 68 for his final round in the national open at Fresh Meadow, becoming low amateur.

In 1930, at Merion, Goodman was one of the eleven who had qualifying scores under 150, and his 149 matched Francis Ouimet's qualifying total. In the first round Goodman lost to the California champion, Johnny McHugh, who has since turned professional. The score was 1 up.

Last fall at Beverly Goodman was again the victim of one of those eighteen hole match play vagaries, dropping a decision to young Billy Howell of Virginia, 2 and 1, in the second round.

Officials of the United States Golf association refused to comment on the omission of Goodman's name from the cup team list, but it is known that he was considered, along with Gene Homans of Englewood, N. J., 1930 runner-up in the national amateur; Dr. O. F. Willing of Oregon, Johnny Lehman of Chicago, former western amateur champion, and Gus Moreland of Dallas, Tex., recently crowned trans-Mississippi champion, none of whom made the team.

The Walker cup selections were made prior to the recent open, in which Goodman made such a fine showing, it is understood. Unofficially it is believed the attitude of the U. S. G. A. toward Goodman may be summed up about as follows:

"Goodman is in good standing and popular. He was given thorough consideration in making the team selections, but it was not felt his match play record in the last two years was exceptional. Previous Walker cup experience carried weight with the selecting committee.

Most of the published criticism hereabouts intimates that Billy Howell, the Virginia youth, and Charley Seaver, the Californian, easily could have been left off the team. The selection of the other eight has not been subjected to general criticism. These eight are Francis Ouimet, captain; Jimmy Johnston, George Voigt, Maurice McCarthy, George T. Dunlap, Don Moe, Jack Westland, and Jess Sweetser.

STATE MAY DROP CASE AGAINST AUDITOR NELSON

Balked by Court Ruling in Banker's Trial.

State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county last night was considering the advisability of dismissing the indictment pending against State Auditor Oscar Nelson in that county. A decision by Judge Edward D. Shurtleff in the trial of William H. Miller, formerly vice president of the now defunct Waukegan State bank, who is charged with conspiracy, along with Nelson and others, put the problem up to the prosecutor.

JUDGE E. D. SHURTLEFF.

Judge Shurtleff ruled that because Nelson is one of the co-defendants in the conspiracy case growing out of the failure of the bank, although Miller is being tried separately, evidence cannot be introduced in the Miller trial concerning Auditor Nelson's official acts as head of the bank examination department of the state. Nelson was put on trial some time ago on a charge of misfeasance, due to the collapse of the Waukegan bank, and after listening to testimony for two weeks Judge Shurtleff sustained a defense point that only the state legislature could try a state officer for misfeasance, and he thereupon directed the jury to find Auditor Nelson not guilty.

Judge Maintains Stand.

Judge Shurtleff reiterated yesterday that he would hold to the contention that Nelson is supreme in his domain as state auditor and that his official acts may not be questioned by judge or jury, although he is accountable in court for his private and personal acts. Prosecutor Smith was trying to show by the testimony of a witness, Carl Stenger, former president of the closed bank, that its officers and directors held a conference with Nelson in the auditor's Chicago office. The subject of the conference was the keeping of the Waukegan bank open, Stenger said.

"I cannot allow you to introduce any testimony concerning what the state auditor may have done in his official capacity," Judge Shurtleff then interposed.

Prosecutor Smith then asked an adjournment to give him time to decide his course. He said he might decide to nol pros the case of Nelson in order that testimony on the conference may be used in the trial of Miller and the three other bank officials named in the same indictment. Last night he said he had made no decision and would not until this morning.

Fraud Conspiracy Charged.

In his opening statement the state's attorney said he expected to prove that the defendants were in a conspiracy to obtain money by false pretenses, that they had made false sworn statements regarding the bank's financial condition, and that it operated a false set of books. There are 11 counts in the indictment, which accuse the defendants of the intention to defraud depositors of $2,000,000.

Prosecutor Smith said he would show that the Waukegan bank was in reality a branch of a Chicago bank which has since been absorbed by another, and he pointed out that branch banking is illegal. The Chicago bank officials owned 795 shares of the Waukegan bank, Prosecutor Smith said, and when they knew it was worthless they tried to dispose of it to residents of Waukegan and thereby relieve themselves of stockholders' double liability.

The Waukegan bank lost $700,000 in deposits between September, 1929, and March, 1930, the prosecutor charged, and then listed a fake deposit of $500,000, and made other false entries showing a deposit of $200,000 and $100,000 falsely credited to bills paid.

JUDGE ACQUITS TWO BANKERS IN LOAN HEARING

William O. J. Hattstaedt, former chairman of the board of the closed Lake View State bank, and Daniel M. Rives, former cashier, were found not guilty yesterday of making false statements to bank examiners by Judge George Fred Rush in the Criminal court. The state charged that the defendants had deceived bank examiners by listing as a real estate loan $364,000 which had been used to purchase a building. The property was bought by a syndicate, which included most of the bank directors. Judge Rush held that there had been no deception in the entry, which was made on advice of the the bank attorney.

Rives obtained a sevcrance yesterday morning when Hattstaedt waived a jury. After hearing the evidence against Hattstaedt Judge Rush entered a not guilty finding for both men on learning that the same evidence would be used against Rives. Hattstaedt is under indictment with the former president of the bank, Edward D. McCabe, on charges of accepting deposits knowing the bank to be insolvent.

DEFENSE SEEKS TO UPHOLD LOANS MADE BY BAIN

Borrowers Parade to Witness Stand.

Attorney Francis X. Busch arose yesterday to the defense of the banking judgment of John Bain and members of Bain's family, who are on trial charged with conspiracy to defraud the depositors of the twelve closed Bain banks.

FRANCIS X. BUSCH.

W. G. McDonald, 6422 South Hermitage avenue, former director of the West Lawn State bank, was on the witness stand in Judge John M. O'Connor's court. He was called in pursuance of the plan of Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber to offer proof that the Bain banks were insolvent long before the state auditor closed them.

Can't Pay His Loans.

McDonald testified that he had borrowed $7,000 from the West Lawn bank, $4,400 from the Chicago Lawn State bank, and $825 from the West Englewood bank. He is unable to pay his loans, he said, and, under cross-examination by Busch, McDonald said he had sold his home to his son-in-law last July for $6,900 in cash and used the money to pay debts other than bank obligations.

"This man is lying," Attorney Busch charged. "That was a fake sale to his son-in-law to conceal assets. He was solvent when he made his loans and when the bank closed he was solvent. It was not bad banking policy to loan him the money."

Tries to Justify Loans.

Attorney Busch was trying to make the same point with each of the witnesses Raber called yesterday; that the loans were justifiable at the time made. Raber kept calling borrowers to the stand, showing that they had not paid their loans and endeavoring to show that the loans should have been called long before the closing of the banks, it being his contention that the Bain family was in a conspiracy to keep insolvent banks open.

Among the debtors who testified yesterday and the amounts of their loans were the following: Miss Mabel Benton, 7625 Colfax avenue, $3,055; Donald Holt, 8019 Prairie avenue, $11,500; Arnold Rasmussen, 7223 Kimbark avenue, $1,200; Dr. G. H. Mundt, 7000 South Shore drive, $65,000; H. S. O'Neal, 2607 East 78th street, $10,750; George F. Larkin, 3805 West 63d street, $47,200, and Attorney George Murphy, 7207 South Fairfield avenue, $1,125.

Court adjourned early yesterday on account of the Democratic convention, but the trial will be resumed today.

EARL OF DUDLEY, FORMER VICEROY OF IRELAND, DIES

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, June 29.—The earl of Dudley, former viceroy of Ireland and governor general of Australia, died here tonight, a few days after being brought by air from France, where he recently made his home.

The countess of Dudley, who, as Gertie Millar, was a famous Gayety theater star, was at his bedside. His first wife, formerly Miss Rachel Gurney, was accidentally drowned in the lake on the earl's Irish estate. He married Miss Millar in Paris in 1924.

Viscount Ednam, who becomes the third earl of Dudley, is a close friend of the prince of Wales.

John Winterhalter, Kane County Supervisor, Dies

John A. Winterhalter, 64, for 16 years a member of the Kane county board of supervisors, died at his home in Lily Lake yesterday. He was one of the county's best known men. Funeral services will be held at the home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

FATHER DUFFY IS BURIED WITH HIGH MILITARY HONORS

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—Father Francis P. Duffy, war time chaplain of the "Fighting Sixty-ninth," was buried today with high honors of the church and the army.

Among the thousands who marched in the half-mile-long procession from Father Duffy's church to the cathedral were high army officers, representatives of the state and city government, veterans of the Rainbow division and uniformed men of the 165th regiment—the old Sixty-ninth.

The coffin, borne on a gun caisson, moved along Forty-second street to Fifth avenue and up Fifth avenue through crowds that lined the sidewalks eight deep.

At the cathedral a solemn military requiem was celebrated with muffled drums and a bugle used instead of a bell. A crowd of nearly 6,000 persons jammed the edifice. An overflow throng of 6,000 or 7,000 more stood outside in the heat.

Then the body was borne to St. Raymond's cemetery in the Bronx, where a rifle salute was fired over the grave and taps was blown.

RITES TOMORROW FOR LEON KLEIN, CHICAGO PIONEER

Funeral services for Leon Klein, 82 years old, believed to have been the oldest Jewish native of Chicago, will be held at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow in the chapel at 936 East 47th street. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery. Mr. Klein died Tuesday night in his apartment in the Windermere hotel following five weeks' illness.

There was still an Indiana settlement a few blocks away when he was born in a house at Madison and Wells on April 27, 1850. His father, Simon Klein, was the owner of a dry goods store. The store later became that of Klein & Mandel, and in 1875 the elder Klein sold his interest and the concern became Mandel Brothers.

A short time later Leon Klein organized Klein & Rosenberg, manufacturing clothiers. He retired from business in 1927. Mr. Klein is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Julien Gusfield and Mrs. Edward A. Jandorf, a brother, Mosés Klein, and a sister, Mrs. Clara Spier. His wife, Mrs. Anna Schloss Klein, died three years ao.

John Walsh, Pioneer in Chicago, Dies Suddenly

John Walsh, pioneer resident of Chicago, died suddenly yesterday in his home at 686 North Sangamon street, where he had resided for nearly 70 years. Heart disease was the cause. Mr. Walsh was a blacksmith at Milwaukee avenue and Canal street at the time of the Chicago fire. His place of business was burned down. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery tomorrow.

BRITAIN'S GREAT BEGIN TREK TO TRADE MEETING

Plan to Spur Empire Business at Ottawa.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., June 29.—The British empire trade conference, which opens here late in July, will bring to Canada the greatest galaxy of empire statesmen ever assembled outside the British Isles. Many have already started. Others are making preparations to leave for the Canadian capital.

The latest revised list of official delegates constitutes almost all the great and near-great in Britain and the overseas dominions and colonies.

The following is the list of those who will participate in the trade parleys by which British statesmen hope to reroute a quarter of the world's trade for British benefit:

List of Statesmen.

UNITED KINGDOM—Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council, and Mrs. Baldwin; Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer; James H. Thomas, secretary of state for dominions, and Mrs. Thomas; Viscount Hailsham, secretary of state for war, and the Viscountess Hailsham; Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lester, secretary of state for the colonies; Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade; Mrs. Runciman, and Miss Runciman; Sir John Gilmour, minister of agriculture and fisheries.

COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA—Stanley M. Bruce, assistant treasurer, and Mrs. Bruce; H. S. Gullett, minister of trade and customs, and Mrs. Gullett.

NEW ZEALAND—J. G. Coates, minister of public works, and Mrs. Coates; William Downie Stewart, minister of finance and customs, and his sister, Miss Downie Stewart.

IRISH FREE STATE—Sean T. O'Kelly, vice president of executive council, head of delegation; S. Lemass, minister for industry and commerce; Dr. J. Ryan, minister for agriculture.

South Africa Sends Envoys.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA—N. C. Havenga, minister of finance, and Mrs. Havenga; P. G. W. Grobler, minister of lands, and Mrs. Grobler; A. P. J. Fourie, minister of mines and industries, and Mrs. Fourie.

INDIA—Sir Atul C. Chatterjee, member of council for India office, and Lady Chatterjee; Sir George Rainy, council of governor general of India; Sir Padamji Pestonji Ginwala and Lady Ginwala; Shanmukhan Chatty; Seth Haji Abdullah Haroon and Mrs. Haroon, one daughter and one son; Sahibzada Abdus Samad Khan.

SOUTHERN RHODESIA—H. W. Moffatt, premier; P. D. L. Fynn, treasurer.

Prime Minister Frederick Alderdice of Newfoundland will name three cabinet ministers as delegates.

NOTIFY BANKS TO WATCH FOR BOGUS WARRANTS

Banks and brokerage houses were notified yesterday of the discovery Tuesday that forgers have duplicated some of the 1931 tax anticipation warrants. County officials suggested warrants in possession of banks and brokers be sent to the county treasurer for examination.

The forgery of $3,000 worth of the warrants was discovered when brokers sent the warrants to the county treasurer for comparison with records of the office. Clerks found the amounts on the forged warrants were at variance with the amount charged to the serial numbers.

None of the warrants has been cashed by the county. They will not be cashed until the 1931 taxes are collected. As banks and brokers compare warrants with the records of the treasurer's office before making purchases, it is believed none of the forged warrants is held by banks or brokers.

County officials believe the forgery plot was discovered before the forgers had an opportunity to unload spurious warrants. The state's attorney's office and county officials are coöperating in an investigation.

FURTHER GAINS NOTED IN PRICES OF COMMODITIES

Hogs Continue Their Upward Move.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Further improvement in hog prices that have been surging steadily ahead for a month and the setting of new high marks for the season in cattle quotations were highlights in yesterday's developments in the commodity and security markets.

Cotton was higher on trade buying and covering, influenced by firmness of July, more showers in the southwest, and additional news about the depredations of the weevil.

There were fractional declines in wheat prices at the close yesterday. Corn and oats likewise showed slight dips. Minneapolis, however, reported a ten point gain in flour.

Sugar futures declined further in early trading, but encountered new outside buying and rallied later, the market closing 1 to 3 points net lower.

Bonds Are Lower.

In the securities markets the news was similarly mixed. Bonds were lower, the market in general being influenced by heavy offerings of United States treasury bonds. The weakness in governments was attributed to the fact that the treasury today ends its fiscal year with a deficit close to three billions. Stocks, despite the scarcity of inspiring news, advanced slightly, THE TRIBUNE'S averages for fifty stocks showing a gain of nearly half a point.

In the hog market the top for full carloads rose to $4.95, a gain of ten cents for the day. This represents a gain of about fifty per cent from the low point this spring.

The new high for cattle was set when 61 prime 1,206 pound Nebraska beeves brought $8.50, the best price since March 22. Now, for the first time this year, cattle prices are in line with those of a year ago.

Hits New Low.

Industrial news yesterday was not encouraging. Declines in scrap prices this week have brought the Iron Age composite for heavy melting steel down to a new all time low of $6.58 per gross ton.

Pig iron markets are also reported weaker. Raw steel production dropped from 16 per cent a week ago to 15 per cent this week, and a further drop is expected before the close of the week.

Electric power output for the nation declined slightly for the first time in four weeks, being 11.9 per cent below the 1931 level for the week ended June 25. In the preceding week output was only 10.5 per cent below the 1931 level.

In the Chicago district the decline was more severe, but it was probably due to a comparison with an unusually good period last year because of extreme heat. In the week ended June 25 output was 13 per cent below the 1931 level, compared with 9.8 per cent in the preceding week. Pre-

Investor's Letter Comments on Bonds and Confidence

BY SCRUTATOR.

Recently a number of well known American financiers have said improvement in bond prices is a requisite to recovery from depression. To prospective investors they have cited "bargain prices" of listed bonds.

However, it may take time to win back the confidence and courage of investors. It has been common to decry the wild speculation that prevailed during the prolonged bull market that collapsed in 1929. The out-and-out speculators have themselves to blame for their losses. But how about the investors who really sought sound securities, relying on the advice of banks and reputable investment concerns?

Letter Offers Comment.

Didn't those institutions depart from conservatism, often widely, in their underwritings and offerings of new securities?

Something of the attitude of the investor toward the banks and investment houses is expressed in the following letter:

"My experience may show the plight of the small investor, even the intelligent one—for the last three or four years. It prompts the questions: 'What is a good bond?' and 'Whom can you trust?'

"Some fifteen years ago I started to deal with one of the best known banks with a reputation for selling only gilt-edge bonds. I told the manager of the bond department that I wanted safety of principal first, as I had no money to risk or lose. He recommended always good bonds then. Everything went well until three years ago—never a cent lost, never even a coupon returned. A good record, wasn't it, and that man and that bank were worthy of my trust, weren't they?

"For the last three or four years, I have had no new money to invest but some bonds matured, others were called for payment and what was more natural than for me to reinvest through that bank? But nearly all the bonds sold to me in the last three years have gone bad or are on the verge of going bad. Why? I've come to the conclusion that they have let down the bars and risked their customers' money so they can make more money.

His Query and Reply.

"Two weeks ago the head of that bank was quoted as saying business cannot show much improvement until the people begin to buy bonds and that there are plenty of good bonds on the market. So I wrote to him about my experience and also my suspicion that the good, old, big banks have let down the bars.

"Mr. Banker sent me a nice, long letter saying they had sustained tremendous losses by trusting the people the bank dealt with and he asked me the same question that I put to him: 'Whom can one trust,—whose word can one take? He added that no one could foresee such an economic collapse as we are suffering from now, —nothing like it in the history of America ever was known. But isn't my experience a fair example? Is it any wonder that the small investor is afraid?

"And so I ask how are the investment bankers going to regain the small investor's confidence? From whom should we buy good bonds?"

Toward Returning Confidence.

In justice to banks and investment houses it should be said that generally they believed the securities they sold would work out right. The judgments of many people were bad during the boom days and dealers in securities were not immune to misjudgment and sometimes to deception. However, reputable underwriters and distributors of securities are relied on by investors for expert knowledge and appraisal. It is up to them to regain the confidence of investors.

NATIONAL GRAIN NOT RETRENCHING C. E. HUFF ASSERTS

C. E. Huff, president of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, created and financed by the federal farm board, denied yesterday that the sales agency was retrenching in eliminating several branch offices. On the contrary, he said, activities of the corporation "are steadily expanding, while at the same time offices are being consolidated."

New branch offices are being opened at Toledo, O., for Michigan and other grain business east of Chicago, as well as at Hutchinson, Kas., for southwest trade.

SUIT FILED TO TEST LEGALITY OF REGIONAL COAL SALES PROJECT

Washington, D. C., June 29.—(AP)—The department of justice announced today that anti-trust charges had been filed in the Lynchburg, Va., federal court against 136 bituminous coal mining companies to test the legality of a regional sales plan for disposing of their product. An injunction was sought in the proceedings, which charged combination and conspiracy in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

The coal mining companies comprised Appalachian Coals, Inc., the regional sales organization of the soft coal industry.

The plan of operation by the coal operators was submitted in advance to the justice department, but it felt the program could not be allowed to become operative until its legality was approved by the courts. The defendant companies are located in Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, and West Virginia, representing 70 per cent of production in that area.

SALES OF NORGE REFRIGERATORS AHEAD OF 1931

A meeting of about 200 Norge Rollator refrigeration dealers was held in Chicago yesterday, according to Peter Sampson of the Sampson Electric company, local distributors for those refrigerators.

Mr. Sampson added that the meeting was part of "a most complete and comprehensive national sales program for the summer months and that similar meetings are being held in the principal cities of the United States."

John H. Knapp, vice president, and R. E. Densmore, western sales manager of the Norge corporation, attended the meeting here. Mr. Sampson said Norge sales for the first quarter of the year were 241 per cent, compared with the same period of 1931, and in May Norge set a new record by completing the seventeenth consecutive month in which a pronounced gain was shown in sales over the corresponding month of the preceding year.

INSULL UTILITY TRUST ASSETS ORDERED SOLD

Court Closes Story of Fight for Empire.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The obituary of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., the enterprise through which Samuel Insull attempted to knit together a vast utility empire, was written yesterday in the United States district court.

Judge Walter C. Lindley instructed receivers to wind up the affairs of the trust and salvage what remains of the assets for the benefit of the creditors.

The order spelled death for the chief corporate instrument through which Insull hoped to perpetuate control of a utility system with assets upwards of three billion dollars. It was the difficulties which this company and a similar enterprise, Corporation Securities company, encountered during the terrific deflation that led directly to the downfall of Insull as the dictator of the nation's third largest utility system.

Goes Into Receivership.

The concern was placed in receivership last April. The original order authorized the receivers to continue operation of the company until further instructions from the court. Yesterday's order is a specific mandate to liquidate. The order was issued at the request of the receivers, Calvin Fentress and George A. Cooke.

The significance of the order was seen as the abandoning of hope that

New York, June 29.—The stock market took a somewhat brighter view of life today. Selling dried up all down the line—just in time, by the way, to save the list from touching record lows—and the close found various issues which recently have been weak displaying gains of from a fraction to a point or so.

Short covering was apparent in American Can, Case, Allied Chemical, United States Steel and others.

Utility Shares Firm.

Utility shares put up a firm front in spite of the weekly figures on electric output which showed a drop of some 31 per cent from the corresponding total for the same week last year.

U. S. Steel and Allied Industrial Shares had to contend with the Iron Age report advising those concerned that operations in this premier industry had receded to 15 per cent of capa-

CASH READY, BUT WHERE ARE THE BONDHOLDERS?

Mrs. E. C. Kennett Lacks List After Bank Closes.

BY AL CHASE.

Bank closings have brought about some odd situations, but probably none stranger than resulted for the bondholders of the half a dozen six apartment buildings in the 7400 block of North Hoyne avenue when the Phillip State Bank and Trust company recently discontinued business. Both interest and prepayments had been made through this bank.

MRS. EMMA C. KENNETT. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Now, with the bank closed and already notices being sent them by three different self-appointed bondholders' protective committees urging deposit of bonds with them, the puzzled owners of securities probably will be interested to learn that there has been no default, none is contemplated, and instead of sending their bonds to a committee they not only may hold on to them, but can get their interest payments by presenting their coupons at suite 1159 First National Bank building.

Mrs. Emma C. Kennett, who in the last decade has erected apartment buildings in Chicago valued at $5,000,000, and who is the mortgagor of the six apartment buildings mentioned, told THE TRIBUNE last night that she has the cash waiting for interest payments on the $270,000 first mortgage bond issues on these six buildings. She also stated that she has cash on hand to meet the prepayments due next December. She has a record of never having had a foreclosure in these $5,000,000 buildings.

Cash Is Waiting.

"There's been no default and none contemplated," she said. "About half of the bondholders already had presented their coupons at the Phillip State Bank and Trust company and been paid when the bank closed. Those who haven't been paid naturally don't know what to do. I haven't a list of the bondholders, so I'm taking this means of letting them know everything is all right and that cash is waiting for them in my office in the First National Bank building.

"There is no occasion for a bondholders' protective committee to enter the picture, for there's been no default and none is contemplated. The six properties are prosperous, the rentals being at the same level they were when I built them, and there are only two vacancies in the thirty-six suites."

$270,000 Bond Issues.

The six properties mentioned by Mrs. Kennett were each one financed by a $45,000 first mortgage bond issue underwritten by the Phillip State Bank and Trust company, totaling $270,000, and each paid down to $42,000, or making a total outstanding of $252,000. All are on North Hoyne avnue.

These are the Chateau Le Mans apartments at 7440-42; the Chateau Beauvais, at 7452-54; the Navarra, at 7441-43; the Barcelona apartments, at 7447-49; the Maison Louviers, at 7446-48, and the Valencia apartments, at 7453-55 North Hoyne avenue. Mrs. Kennett, who built all of these, lives with her three sons, James, 18; Maynard, 17, and Joyce, 12 years old, in the Chateau Beauvais.

Mrs. Kennett entered the building business ten years ago, forming the Kennett Construction company. She designed her own buildings and attributed much of her success to the fact that she dealt mostly with women, catering especially to their whims. For instance, she put two bathrooms in every suite, a feature conducive to domestic harmony. She specialized in three and six apartment buildings and always had a different type of architecture for each unit. She is now getting from $125 to $150 rental for the suites in the six buildings already listed. She is at present managing seventeen structures.

WRIGLEY JR. CO. VOTES PAYMENT OF 4 DIVIDENDS

Westinghouse Omits, to Conserve Cash.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 29.—The board of directors of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company today omitted the dividend on the common stock to conserve cash resources because the earnings position of the company has been poor for some time.

At the same time a dividend of 87½ cents a share was declared on the preferred shares, the same as in the two preceding quarters. The dividend is payable July 30 to stock of record July 11.

The company, it was said, had no outstanding bonds or bank loans and is in "very sound financial condition as to cash and net quick assets." In the two previous quarters the company paid 25 cents a share on the common stock.

Wrigley Dividend Voted.

Directors of the William Wrigley Jr. company today declared four monthly dividends of 25 cents a share payable August, September, October and November 1 to stock of record on the twentieth day of preceding months. This compared with a dividend paid by the company since 1929 of 50 cents a share on March 1, June 1, September 1, and December 1 of each year, which put the stock on a $4 annual basis. At 25 cents a month the annual rate would be $3.

The American Coal company of Alleghany county has omitted the dividend due for payment August 1. Three months ago the company paid a quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share. Before that date the stock was on a $4 annual basis.

Frederick Stearns & Co. directors have omitted the quarterly dividend due at this time on the 7 per cent preferred stock.

To Increase Payment.

The next dividend on McIntyre Porcupine Mines, Ltd., will be at the rate of $1.50 a share annually in United States funds, compared with $1 at present, according to J. P. Bickel, president, at the annual meeting of stockholders in Toronto. Mr. Bickel said the increase would give shareholders the net benefit derived from the premium on exchange and that if at the close of the fiscal year it was found that net earnings from the exchange premium exceed the amount disbursed, the additional amount will be included as an extra.

Directors of Debenhams Securities, Ltd., have omitted the preference dividend due June 30 because no dividends have been received by the company on its shareholdings during the current year.

Consolidated Car Heating company declared an extra dividend of $2 a share on its capital stock. In June, 1931, a similar payment was voted.

National Whaling bank of New London, Conn., declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share. This bank paid an extra of like amount January 1.

EXCHANGE HOLIDAYS

The Chicago Board of Trade voted yesterday to follow the lead of the New York and Chicago stock exchanges and close on Saturday, as well as on Monday, July 4. The Chicago mercantile exchange will be closed both days. The Winnipeg grain exchange will be closed on Friday, Dominion day, and open Saturday and Monday. All foreign exchanges, of course, will be open on July 4, while American live stock markets will be open Saturday and closed Monday. Sugar and coffee exchanges will be closed Saturday and Monday.

WHEAT PRICES RECEDE AFTER SMALL RALLIES

Get Conflicting Reports on Winter Crop.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Evening up operations in the July wheat delivery, with the resultant spreading between the nearby and the distant futures, furnished a good part of the trade yesterday, but the aggregate business was somewhat larger than the previous day. Local professionals were inclined to favor the buying side, and caused numerous small rallies, but this action was more than offset by scattered hedging pressure and prices averaged lower. The finish was within a fraction of the bottom, with net losses of ¾c. Old July was 48@48¾c; old September, 50¼@50⅝c, and December, 53⅝@53¾c at the last.

Conflicting reports were received as to the probable outcome of the winter wheat crop, with messages from the southwest indicating that the heavy rains recently had reduced the prospective yield per acre. Cutting has been resumed in some sections, and was reported as having made some progress in Nebraska. The movement of the new crop, however, is still very small, and the 11 winter wheat markets received only 578 cars yesterday, compared with 3,299 cars a year ago.

Expect Big Spring Crop.

To offset the possibility of a reduced yield of winter wheat the weekly report of the Cargill Elevator company of Minneapolis suggested that on the basis of the prevailing outlook bumper yields of all grain might be secured in the northwest this season. Scattered rains were reported overnight and had some influence on sentiment. The latter was decidedly mixed, however. Minneapolis wheat futures were ⅛@1c lower for the day. Owing to the favorable crop outlook it is expected in some quarters that the northwestern market will ultimately sell at a good discount under Chicago.

There was some comment in the trade on a cable telling of reduced prospects for the wheat crop in northern and central Italy due to rust, and claims that larger home requirements would result in smaller clearances from that country during the coming season. There were tentative requests for bids on new wheat from the Danubian and Balkan territory reported at Liverpool, but this was offset to some extent by the forecast for small clearances from Argentina. Liverpool closed ⅛@¼c per bu higher, with July at 51⅜c. Winnipeg lost ¼@½c for the day, with July at 53½c in Canadian funds. Export business was limited.

Corn Nears Season's Low.

Longs were sellers of July corn and reinstated holdings in the distant positions, while cash houses bought the July and sold September at 2⅝@2¾c difference. The undertone was easy, with all deliveries selling within a fraction of the lowest levels of the season and in new ground on the current downturn. Final trades were ⅜@½c lower, with July, 28⅜@28½c; September, 31@31⅛c, and December, 32@32⅛c. Favorable crop reports from the greater part of the belt attracted some attention. Cash demand was relatively slow and country offerings small, as outside markets outbid Chicago downstate.

July oats sold at a new low for the season, touching 19⅛c, due to scattered liquidation. Buying of July against sales of December at 2⅛c checked the break, but the finish was ¼@½c lower, with July, 19¼c; September, 19¾c, and December, 21⅝c.

Rye sold at the lowest price in over 43 years in Chicago yesterday, liquidation carrying the July down to 27⅜c, or ¼c under the inside figure of 1896. It is believed that the price witnessed yesterday is the lowest since previous to the civil war. The close was ⅛@⅜c lower, with July, 27⅜c; September, 31½c, and December, 34¾c. Cash rye gained 2⅛c on the future, with a sale of No. 1 at 35c, or 5½c over the July.

PRODUCE MARKETS

While the best grades of fresh eggs were steady other kinds were shaded ½c to make sales. Receipts, 12,331 cases. Butter was steady to ½c lower, latter on standards. Receipts 13,667 tubs. Live hens, leghorn hens and heavy leghorn broilers were ½c lower with friers, springers, and Plymouth Rock springs 1c lower. Receipts 53 trucks. Potatoes were steady for cobblers and strong on triumphs. Latter sold at $1.60@1.75 for sound. Receipts, 84 cars, with 129 cars new on team track.

Top yesterday, $6.50; average, $5.40.
Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 5,000; hogs, 16,000; sheep, 8,000.

Trading in hogs slowed down some yesterday, but prices pushed ahead 5@10c further, and a scattering of small lots of selected light weights made the $5.00 line before the session ended. The top for full carloads stopped at $4.95, showing a 10c gain for the day, while the general average moved up 5c to $4.50. The market lacked the pep that has characterized trading the last three weeks, yet at the low time a month ago yesterday's action would have been considered good.

Only a short holdover remained at the finish and these were being held off the market in anticipation of better eastern demand later in the week. A sharp rise at other points and the appearance of $5.60 hogs at eastern markets strengthened the selling side late. Outsiders during the first three days of this week bought 24 per cent of Chicago receipts against only 12 per cent three weeks ago. A year ago this week 19 per cent sold to shippers.

New High in Cattle.

A new high top for the season was established in the cattle market yesterday when 61 prime 1,260 lb Nebraska beeves sold to Swift for eastern trade at $8.50, the highest price since March 22. A large share of the supply of well finished cattle sold at $8.00 and above, with numerous loads of 1,000@1,500 lb averages at $8.25. Prime 1,370 lb Iowa cattle that had cost $6.00 as feeders 110 days ago reached $8.35 on the bulge. Prices in all classes of good grades were fully 10@15c higher. The response to light supplies was better than on recent sessions.

All interests were in the trade for larger numbers. The bulk of all beef steers sold at $6.50@8.25, only thin grassy kinds going below $6.00. A few of the poorest ranged down to $4.00 and slightly below. The range of cattle prices shows a tendency to widen out still further. For the first time in 1932 cattle price s are in line with a year ago.

Yesterday's top of $8.50 was exactly the same as a year ago, but a smaller share sold above the $8.00 line on the corresponding day in 1931. Advances of 15@25c in yearling heifers featured the butcher stock market yesterday. The best in load lots averaged $02 flat at $7.40, with five head making $7.50. These are the highest heifer prices since January.

Action Is Better.

Action was better in the lamb market yesterday and prices held firm. More lambs sold at $6.00 than at any other price, packers buying the bulk of their good natives and westerns at that figure. Six carloads of Idaho range lambs sold straight at $6.00. Two carloads of shippers reached $6.10, while medium grades from Washington, the first of the season from that state, sold at $5.25. A scattering of natives hand picked by city butchers topped the whole list at $6.50. Aged sheep and yearlings were scarce and unchanged.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 5,000 cattle, 16,000 hogs and 8,000 sheep, against 5,222 cattle, 17,014 hogs and 13,521 sheep the previous Thursday, and 4,296 cattle, 13,116 hogs and 9,715 sheep a year ago.

FOREIGN MONEY MARKETS.

LONDON, June 29.—(AP)—Money, ¾ per cent. Discount rates, short and three month bills, 1@1⅛ per cent. Bar silver firm and ⅛ higher at 16¾d.

PARIS, June 29.—(AP)—Three per cent rentes, 73 francs 40 centimes. Five per cent loan, 98 francs 30 centimes. Exchange on London, 92 francs 77 centimes. The dollar was quoted at 25 francs 44¼ centimes.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, June 29.—(AP)—Moderately increased small demands were reported today for a few lines of finished cottons. Gray goods are slightly easier on small sales. The fabric finishers will close a full week beginning July 4. Silk sales continued light. Rayon sales are small and prices irregular. Small orders were placed on men's and women's wear worsteds. Burlaps were quiet.

BUNKER HILL.

Bunker Hill & Sullivan Mining and Concentrating company reported for the first five months of 1932 profit of $107,670 before depreciation and depletion, compared with $478,409 in the like 1931 period.

COTTON HIGHER

A stronger tone developed in the cotton market, closing prices around the best of the day, net gains being 8 to 12 points in Chicago and 9 to 12 points in other markets, considering the active deliveries. Trading was not heavy and there was more disposition on the part of shorts to cover, with offerings comparatively light at times. Notices on July contracts were out in New York and indicated about 20,000 bales delivered. Foreigners, particularly Germany, were said to be on the buying side, which had a strengthening influence on the market generally. Weevil news suggested greater infestation and created uneasiness among the shorts, who were the principal buyers.

The weekly government weather report said conditions were generally favorable for cotton except for cloudy damp weather. Exports for the season to date are 8,247,000 bales, against 8,608,000 bales for the same time last year. Prices follow:

Why pay more than Household's low rate?

The nationally known HOUSEHOLD LOAN PLAN offers cash loans of $300 or less to husbands and wives at reasonable rates.

Loans above $100 and up to $300 are made at a rate less than the usual small loan rate.

If you are working and keeping house you have all the security needed for a Household loan.

Quick service. Strictly confidential. Husband and wife only need sign. No endorsers. 20 months to repay.

Lowest Rates in Chicago

COMMONWEALTH'S RATE is the lowest in Chicago on loans above $100 and up to $300.

The personal property which nearly every family owns and the signatures of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

Take 25 months to repay or if you pay in less time you are charged only for the time you keep the money. This allows you to control the cost yourself.

Also Salary and Auto Loans.
